Computer Curbs Follow $1M Liquor Theft

A $1.75 million computerized inventory system is being developed by the B.C. Liquor Distribution Branch in the wake of the disappearance of more than $1 million worth of stock.

Deputy Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Tex Enemark said today all security matters throughout the liquor distribution system are under review and security has been tightened while the inventory system is being installed with the help of the B.C. Systems Corp.

Consumer Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said Wednesday well over $1 million of liquor at retail value has gone missing because of shoddy security.

The minister said he is not accusing liquor employees of thefts because he has still not heard from the RCMP who were called in several weeks ago to conduct an investigation.

"But I can tell you that the security has been shoddy and I can tell you it is easier to steal a case of liquor than it is to steal a bottle. And I can tell you that it is easier to steal a forklift load of liquor than it is to steal a case."

Mair said in an interview he suspects that hard liquor made up most of the missing stock and quantity of missing merchandise is for the branch's current fiscal year which ends March 31.

"I don't know how far back the problem goes," Mair said, "but I suspect that it was going on during the NDP's term and even during the old Social Credit government's days.

There are 203 liquor stores throughout B.C. that produce annual gross sales of close to $500 million. Almost all the liquor, wine and beer is handled through the liquor control board's Vancouver warehouse.

"There has been a very casual attitude towards security and we intend to turn the place (warehouse) into a sort of armed camp," he said.

"For example there was nobody full-time at the gate checking on what went out against invoices. There were not enough security people and the security chief didn't even have a private office so he could talk on the phone without being overheard."

Cossitt Under Gun

OTTAWA (CP) — The Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais and the head of the RCMP security service attempted to get a top-secret document from Conservative MP Tom Cossitt and warned him of severe consequences of not handing it over, it was revealed today.

Cossitt (Leeds), who has made charges about Soviet funds entering Canada to assist terrorists, said the move by Blais and Michael Dare of the RCMP reflects an attempt by Prime Minister Trudeau to get him.

Cossitt raised the matter in the Commons. Blais said that it was clear that Cossitt had a secret document and that he may be in breach of the Official Secrets Act.

Blais said Cossitt's refusal not to give the document up immediately was detrimental to the country.

He said there is no intention to intimidate Cossitt.

Cossitt said he was warned by Blais and Dare that his office and home could be searched, that a warrant could be issued for his arrest and that the RCMP could put pressure on him to give up the top secret document.

RESERVES CUSHION FALL

Pressure Mounts In Dollar Slide

Times News Services

The United States dollar, which fell to record lows Wednesday, came under renewed pressure on Europe's money markets today.

The Canadian dollar was also traded down following an announcement that the Bank of Canada spent $706.6 million in foreign reserves during the month of February to cushion the currency's fall.

By the end of trading on the Montreal money market today, the dollar was changing hands at 89.39 U.S. down from Wednesday's close of 89.49 but up from the noon fixing of 89.38.

Figures released by Ottawa show that as a result of intervention by the central bank last month, official monetary reserves have fallen to $3,698.8 million in U.S. funds, their lowest value in nearly eight years.

West Germany's central bank decided not to take measures to halt the U.S. currency's slide.

"It looks like we're headed for a 1.90-mark dollar now," a German dealer said after hearing the bank's announcement.

Gold bullion stood at its highest level this year after the regular morning fixing by dealers in London.

Gold was fixed at $183.50 U.S. an ounce, up 50 cents on Wednesday's close, and $14 an ounce more expensive than it was Jan. 3, the first trading day of 1978.

The West German central bank decided it would not erect barriers to foreign capital or change credit policy to arrest the U.S. currency's year-long decline.

There had been speculation the West Germans might follow the Swiss and impose controls on foreign capital to discourage speculators from unloading dollars to buy marks. Such a move would probably have boosted the dollar in the short term, financial sources said.

The U.S. dollar was fixed at 2.0085 marks shortly before the announcement, but dropped to 2.0020 marks after the bank's central council statement was released in Frankfurt.

On Wednesday, the dollar was fixed at 1.9920 marks, breaking the two-mark barrier for the first time.

Canada's official monetary reserves have fallen to their lowest value in nearly eight years.

By Feb. 28, total reserves had fallen 19 per cent in the month to $3,698.8 million. It was the lowest level for reserves since March 31, 1970, shortly before the government freed the dollar to float and find its own value in currency markets against other currencies.

All figures are in terms of U.S. dollars.

Sinclair Stevens, Progressive Conservative finance critic, said the reserves loss was "about 40 per cent higher than we had expected." He said he expects the govern-

CHAPLIN'S COFFIN VANISHES IN NIGHT

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (Reuter) — Charlie Chaplin's coffin has disappeared from the grave where the comedian was buried above Lake Geneva, police said here today.

A police spokesman told reporters he could give no further details but that a police statement might be issued later.

The comedian died at his home in Corsier-sur-Vevey, near Montreux, on Christmas day last year. He was buried in the local village cemetery on Dec. 27.

A police official in Vevey said the coffin had apparently been taken away last night.

"The grave is empty, the coffin has gone. Judging by the state of the disturbed soil it looks as though it was taken away last night," he said.

Postal Strike Poised

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers is poised for strike action if conciliation fails to resolve the contract dispute between the union and the post office, CUPW president Jean-Claude Parrot said Wednesday.

The Public Service Staff Relations Board has scheduled hearings today and Friday to set terms of reference for the three-member conciliation board.

CUPW, representing 23,000 mail sorters and postal clerks, predicted a tough argument over the terms of reference.

"At the hearings, the post office and treasury board will parade all the restrictions on full collective bargaining contained in the Public Service Staff Relations Act . . . and other federal legislation."

The union is asking that the board be given "the widest possible terms of reference."

The last contract covering inside postal workers expired June 30, but the union will not be in a legal strike position until seven days after the conciliation board has reported.

Parrot said about 3,000 off-duty postal workers set up information picket lines across the country Wednesday to press the union's demand that the post office be made into a Crown corporation.

He said the union will attempt to resolve its dispute through conciliation, but added: "It is obvious that we are going into a position where very shortly we may well have to strike."

Parrot said the union started negotiations last April "and we still don't know the position of the employer on our demands."

Key union demands are the right for CUPW to veto proposed technological changes it feels would adversely affect members and an end to the use of casual, non-union labor in the post office.

The union says a major difficulty in contract talks is that bargaining for the government is conducted by federal treasury board officials rather than top post office department officials, who are more familiar with the problems.

STRIKE FORCE manning the picket lines tries to stop a car belonging to a supervisor from entering a Calgary municipal yard this morning. Local 37 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees went on strike shortly after 7 a.m. today after the city offered a two-per-cent pay increase and a reduction in the work week to 38 hours from 40. A number of services, including garbage collection, swimming pools, ice arenas, the Calgary Zoo, and water and sewage installations have been suspended.

Crazy-Quilt Pattern In Gas Hike

The Hillside Esso gas station had three customers at 10:20 a.m. today while the Gulf station across the street had only one.

Yet Esso gas was selling at 88.9 cents per gallon while Gulf was 5 cents cheaper at 83.9.

It was all part of a crazy quilt of prices across the city this morning as oil companies phased in increased rates.

Stations listed standard gasoline at 82.9, 83.9, 87.9 or 88.9 at different locations.

Because of a $1 a barrel increase in crude oil Jan. 1, oil companies may increase their wholesale prices effective today.

Gulf and Esso in separate statements said they expected retail prices to rise 5 cents a gallon across British Columbia while Shell said its stations probably would boost prices 4 cents a gallon.

All companies are expected to have their prices up 4 or 5 cents by Friday afternoon.

Prices for supreme and unleaded gasoline will go up by similar amounts.

The price increases may not last, however, because of a continuing price war.

Last fall, prices went from 82.9 to 86.9 because of a previous $1-a-barrel increase in crude oil prices. Service stations gradually reduced this price to the 83.9 level which prevailed until today's increases.

Some stations have already cut their new price from 88.9 to 87.9.

Price increases were felt in all other petroleum products as well.

Just after midnight Esso pushed its furnace oil price to 58.1 cents a gallon from 54.3 cents, a boost of 3.8 cents.

There will be a similar round of gas price increases Aug. 1 following another $1-a-barrel increase in crude oil prices June 1. Oil companies must wait 60 days to pass along their increased costs.

RENTAL CONTROL TO GO?

VANCOUVER (CP) — There is a 90-per-cent chance the British Columbia government will start to phase out its residential rent control program by the end of June, Consumer Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said Wednesday.

Mair said his ministry is compiling up-to-date statistics of rental and housing accommodation and vacancies in different regions of the province that will be used in any de-control program.

"But I am nervous about the whole thing," he said. "I don't want a horror story on our hands."

INDIANS VOW COOK PROTEST

A plan by native Indians to demonstrate at all celebrations marking the bicentennial of Captain James Cook's arrival in what now is B.C. has been endorsed by the West Coast District Council of Chiefs, a council spokesman said Wednesday.

He said the council, which represents 4,000 Nootkas in 13 bands on Vancouver Island, has also endorsed proposals by the Mawachaht Indian Band of Gold River that the concept of the bicentennial be rejected, and an advertising campaign mounted to give the Indians' version of Cook's 1778 arrival at Friendly Cove on the west coast of the island.

The Nootkas recently announced they will boycott the provincial government's bicentennial celebrations and keep visitors out of the remote coastal settlement, about 40 kilometres west of Gold River, unless they received a new longhouse, sewers, cable television, a ferry, gymnasium and unstated land grants from the provincial government.

Travel Industry Minister Grace McCarthy said the demands are outrageous but the government offered a $100,000 longhouse — which she later increased to $200,000 — and assistance in the creation of a crafts centre for the manufacture and sale of Indian art work.

The Mawachaht band will meet next week to decide on Mrs. McCarthy's latest offer, but the Indian spokesman said band members are angry because the government has not taken their demands seriously.

He said it is doubtful they will accept the minister's offer.

Rains Rake California

LOS ANGELES — Mud smashed into houses and power lines snapped under the weight of crashing branches as the hills and towns of southern California buckled Wednesday before a new onslaught of rain.

The storm slowed to a trickle in many areas by midday, but Pat Rowe, a National Weather Service spokesman, said a new storm is blowing eastward across the Pacific Ocean, and more rain is expected to drench many areas today.

In the exclusive San Fernando Valley community of Encino, a small hill was reduced to muddy ooze that inundated one house and damaged two others.

N. H. Green and his wife were awakened early Wednesday by the sound of the mud smashing into their newly remodelled home. The $100,000 house was badly damaged, but the Greens managed to escape injury.

Southern California Edison, Co. said about 100,000 customers were briefly without electric service after more than 100 power lines were downed or damaged by the storm. Power outages were longest, spokesman Bob Krauch said, in Ranch Palos Verdes, where 4,400 customers were without service for three to seven hours.

Gale-force winds buffeted San Diego County, where 13 centimetres of rain fell in 24 hours at Cuyamaca Reservoir. A flash flood watch was issued for deserts and coastal mountains.

Many city streets in Los Angeles and throughout southern California were flooded, and minor traffic accidents kept police busy.

Meanwhile, a sheriff's deputy drowned and hundreds of Phoenix homes were threatened by flooding in the wake of a storm that dumped up to eight inches of rain on parts of Arizona.

Hydro Unions Huddle

Officials from four unions representing 9,500 B.C. Hydro employees huddled today with the B.C. Federation of Labor for a strategy discussion.

On the agenda was the possibility of co-ordinated strike action beginning as early as Monday.

Three of the four unions are in a position to strike.

A substantial majority of the 3,600 office workers Wednesday rejected the Crown corporation's latest contract offer.

Fred Trotter, president of Local 378, Office and Technical Employees Union, said his union is seeking more negotiations with Hydro before taking strike action.

OTEU contract negotiations are stalled over wages and pensions. The union wants a guarantee that Hydro will not raise the rate of contribution or change the benefits of the pension plan during a two-year agreement.

In the Fraser Valley, electrical workers represented by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers continued a wildcat strike over the suspension of three linemen.

The IBEW, Local 258, is the only union to sign a new collective agreement with Hydro.

'Public Hearings' Kept Secret

DUNCAN (CP) — What were billed as "public hearings" by a provincial study group collecting information on the Cowichan River estuary were held in private, much to the dismay of concerned officials here.

A spokesman for the environment ministry said, however, that it was never intended to hold public hearings.

"It was a misunderstanding," the spokesman said. "When we announced that there would be public hearings, we meant that any member of the public could present a brief to the task force.

"The presentations were to be made by appointment with the task force."

Duncan Mayor Ken Paskin said he is surprised the hearings were held in private.

"This is going to make it very difficult for the people involved, such as local politicians, regional district board and North Cowichan council members, who are going to be asked to make decisions on the estuary, yet they are not allowed to hear or be present, when briefs are presented."

North Cowichan Mayor George Whittaker said he is upset because he wanted to hear the feelings of some of the people presenting briefs.

Study chairman Bryan Gates said his group was on a special, in-camera, fact-finding mission.

"We are not holding a public hearing, or a public meeting, and never advertised the hearings as such, although it did appear in the press as a public hearing."

The study group, instructed to come up with an over-all plan for the area, includes North Cowichan Alderman Graham Bruce, Cowichan regional director Lorne Campbell and Norm Worsley of the provincial economic development minstry.

Barbara Wallace (NDP — Cowichan-Malahat) told the task force Wednesday it should carefully consider the province's commitment to preserving agricultural land.

The Duncan area has the highest concentration of land within the Agricultural Land Reserve on Vancouver Island, which is starved for farm land, she said.

Record Rights

The sale of oil and gas exploration rights in B.C. during the current fiscal year hit an all-time high of $196 million.

Last year's sales were $45.6 million.

Ozard Asks for Pay

Bill Ozard planned to go down to the travel ministry office today to pick up his pay cheque but he didn't really expect to get one.

He's the man who was hired as a travel marketing supervisor at $2,035 a month.

But two hours after he reported for work Feb. 16 he was told the job had been withdrawn.

The job was apparently withdrawn because Ozard ran an ad in Victoria newspapers thanking those who had helped him get the position. Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy was on the list and not at all happy about the fact.

Ozard and his lawyer, Scott Marshall, feel he is still employed by the travel ministry.

"It is a fundamental fact of contract law that once an offer is made and accepted, it is binding and cannot be withdrawn," says Ozard.

He said he has a letter from A. G. Richardson, chairman of the Public Service Commission, stating the job had been withdrawn.

In return, a letter was hand-delivered to Richardson last Friday saying Ozard considers himself to still be employed. He has yet to get a reply.

Richardson said today he is waiting for legal advice and expects to answer Ozard by Friday.

In the meantime, Ozard, a Victoria native and former deputy minister of travel for Nova Scotia, is going to try and collect a pay cheque for the month of February.

Hydro Cuts Condo Rate

B.C. Hydro has announced reduced residential rates for condominiums previously paying commercial rates for communal uses.

Although condominium customers now qualify for the lower rate, it will come into effect from today only for those who apply before April 1.

Introduction of the lower rates comes after owners of a large Vancouver West End condominium development won B.C. Energy Commission backing last month that the higher rate was undue discrimination against the strata corporation.

Hydro has been charging individual condominium owners residential rates but commercial rates to the strata corporation for electricity used for facilities such as garages, pools and outdoor lighting.

"Application by customers is necessary because Hydro has no method of identifying those who may be entitled to the new rate," the corporation said in a news release.

KM. MILEAGE IS KLICKAGE?

TORONTO (CP) — Klickage could become the new metric slang word for mileage if Toronto librarian Mary Virtue has her way.

The word, submitted by Ernest McCallum, 69, of Sawyerville, Que., was chosen top entry in a country-wide contest started last month by Ms. Virtue.

Among the 600 ideas from persons across Canada were kmileage with the k silent and kiltage for persons with a Scottish background.

She plans to write to the Metric Commission asking that klickage become part of the metric vocabulary.

The winning word will be included in Brave New Words, a dictionary by Bill Sherk of Toronto.

Seventeen persons submitted the winning word but McCallum's was the first received, said Ms. Virtue, a librarian at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute.

McCallum, a retired engineer, is not impressed with the metric system.

"It's for the birds," he said.

The winner will have use of a new car for two weeks, a jogging T-shirt with the winning entry on it and a set of four metric books.

Each entrant gets a metric converter.

Vander Zalm Raps UIC Delays

Federal government delays of up to three months in processing Unemployment Insurance Commission applications are costing tyhe province at least $10,000 daily in welfare payments, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said today.

The minister said the chief complaint among social workers throughout the province has been the wholesale referral of legitimate UIC applicants to them by federal UIC officers unable to process the UIC applications in time.

The ministry undertook a two-month survey and discovered between 39 and 46 per cent of all new welfare applicants are people awaiting UIC benefits.

In four offices in the Vancouver area the percentage was nearly 75 per cent.

"We are faced with an intolerable situation where people who qualify for and should be getting UIC are forced to come to welfare because of inefficiency and ineptness on the part of UIC offices," Vander Zalm said.

Human resources offices across the province are reporting that delays of six weeks for UIC processing are now standard and that waiting periods of two and three months are not uncommon.

Vander Zalm said he will bring up the problem next week at a meeting with his federal counterpart in Ottawa.

Art Theft Loot Problem

CALGARY (CP) — City police officers say they are frustrated by some of the problems encountered in trying to solve a series of multimillion-dollar art thefts.

Last month, detectives raided a southwest Calgary home and seized art works valued at about $5 million.

As more art works were recovered a question emerged—where would police store the recovered items?

It was decided to store them at police headquarters, but there was not enough space. Offices had to be emptied to make room for the hundreds of boxes.

Supt Ernie Reimer said about 20 per cent of the recovered items have been identified by their owners. The rest must be displayed so that those who had been robbed can view the collection and identify their belongings.

Reimer said police estimate it would take two days to unpack the articles and put them on display. But that task, which began last weekend, will not be completed until next week.

Three detectives have been assigned to prepare the items for inspection, Reimer added.

Raymond Hertzog, 39, an associate professor at the University of Calgary, and Ernest McLeod, 35, a junior high school teacher, were to appear in provincial court Thursday on 38 counts arising from the raid.

the weather

Cold dry Arctic air covers most of the province. Most of B.C. reported below-freezing temperatures overnight and recordings of minus 10 to minus 15 were common in the Interior. Strong March sun should bring temperatures to 5 to 10 degrees above during the day along the coast but it is unlikley that Interior points will rise much above zero. Little change in the present pattern of bright brisk days and cool crisp nights is expected for a day or two.

TRAMP FLIGHT EYED

NEW YORK (AP) — Seaboard World Airlines, an all-cargo airline, applied today for permission to carry passengers along with freight across the Atlantic, charging as little as $100 — approximately $50 cheaper than the Laker Airways Skytrain trip — for a New York-to-London flight.

The proposal would make Seaboard's giant 747s an airborne version of tramp steamers, the ocean traders whose primary business is cargo but which carry passengers cut rate.

Seaboard said it can alter the configuration of its planes to make room for anywhere from 19 to 250 passengers. The number it would carry would vary depending on how much freight business the airline was handling.

In addition to London, Seabord has asked for approval of flights, one-way or round-trip, to Paris, Frankfurt, Rome, Milan, Zurich, Glasgow, Brussels, Copenhagen, Oslo and Stockholm.

Seaboard operates from New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Boston.

Joint Russian-Czech Mission in Space

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has launched a spaceship manned by a Russian and a Czechoslovakian, the Tass news agency reported today.

It was the world's first two-nation space launch.

Tass said the Soyuz-28 spacecraft would link up with the Salyut-6 space laboratory, in which Soviet cosmonauts Yuri Romanenko and Georgy Grechko this Saturday will break the 84-day world record for the longest single flight in space. They have been orbiting the earth since Dec. 10.

The agency identified the crew of the new space capsule as Alexei Gubarev, the Soviet commander, and Czechoslovak "cosmonaut researcher" Vladimir Remek. It said both reported feeling well and were carrying out their work program.

"With the launching of the Soyuz-28," Tass said, "a new stage is opened in the exploration and use of outer space for peaceful purposes jointly by the socialist countries under the 'Intercosmos' co-operation program."

It noted that the program calls for the launching of Polish and East German cosmonauts as well in 1978.

Blacks Win Power Battle

SALISBURY (UPI) — Prime Minister Ian Smith and three black moderates are agreed that power will be turned over to the black majority on Dec. 31 and 89 years of white domination in Rhodesia will at last come to an end.

An agreement to that effect will be signed by the four on Friday in Salisbury, a government spokesman said today.

Wednesday's announcement of a target date for black rule was a breakthrough in the long and arduous negotiations and represented a victory of sorts for Smith, who has been fighting for an accord that guarantees white rights.

Agreement to establish majority rule on Dec. 31 came in three hours of talks Wednesday among Smith and black leaders Abel Muzorewa, Ndabaningi Sithole and Jeremiah Chirau.

The creation of black-gov erned Zimbabwe — the African name for Rhodesia — would leave South Africa as the last citadel of white minority rule on the continent — and ironically as a possible protector of the new regime to its north.

South African Prime Minister John Vorster indicated in an interview published Wednesday that his country may come to the aid of a moderate government in Rhodesia in the event of an attack by Soviet- or Cuban-backed military forces.

Vorster fears that some of the more than 30,000 Cuban troops in Africa helping prop up the Marxist regime in Angola and fighting alongside Ethiopian forces against Somalia might one day join the Patriotic Front guerrillas fighting in Rhodesia.

Crashed jetliner settles into a bed of foam following takeoff crash

THEY JUMPED INTO HELL AFTER JETLINER CRASHED

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Continental Airlines jetliner flown by a pilot making his last flight before retirement crashed on takeoff Wednesday, killing two passengers and burning others who dropped from the plane into an ankle-deep lake of flaming jet fuel.

"Some people just jumped down into the flames . . . just jumped into hell," said Leona Bennet, 54, of Anaheim, Calif., who suffered a broken ankle while sliding down a burning ramp from the DC-10, which carried 184 passengers and a crew of 13.

The dead, identified by the coroner's office through dental charts, were Carl Schneider, 76, and his wife, Anne, 72, of El Cajon, Calif.

Other passengers said they were among those who fled after the crash through an emergency door on the left side of the plane, which passengers forced open despite a stewardess' warnings.

"Please don't do that! Don't open that door — not that one," one of the stewardesses shouted, said passenger Dave Clapp of Indian Wells, Calif.

"There was nothing but fire out there and she was fighting her way toward the door, to guard it, I guess, and keep people away . . . but then there was a 'pop' and the door was open and people were jumping."

The pilot, Capt. Charles E. "Gene" Hersche, El Paso. Texas, was making his final flight before celebrating his 60th birthday this weekend and retiring under mandatory age requirements, the airline said.

Witnesses praised the pilot's skill in preventing the jetliner from piling into a car rental agency as he fought to control the big plane skidding down the runway after the tires blew and the landing gear collapsed.

The plane slid to a halt on the grass 40 yards short of the building.

Federal Aviation Administration officials said Flight 603 had begun its takeoff run on a flight to Honolulu "under conditions of reduced visibility, with a low cloud ceiling and a heavy rain falling" when two tires on the left side landing gear blew out.

SHERRELL APPEAL FRIDAY

Representatives of the Insurance Corp. of B.C. will meet Friday in Ottawa with Immigration Minister Bud Cullen to appeal his decision that, in effect, bars American Robbie Sherrell from becoming the Crown corporation's new president.

Education Minister Pat McGeer, the cabinet minister responsible for ICBC, said Wednesday the board of directors' selection committee and a representative of Price Waterhouse, the firm that recommended Sherrell after an international search, will go to Ottawa.

The minister said it must be found out whether Price Waterhouse failed or whether the federal government has made an exception to normal procedures in dealing with Sherrell.

McGeer said Sherrell was praised by everyone who interviewed him as well as in all his references.

"I've never seen references as universally praiseworthy on any individual in my whole life," he said.

Socred Seat Loss Seen

The Social Credit Party would lose seats in the legislature if an election were called in the near future, party president Les Keen said Wednesday.

Keen said in a telephone interview from Vancouver the party would win the election, however, but with a reduced majority. Current standing in the house is Social Credit 35, New Democratic Party 18, Liberal 1, vacant, 1.

Keen made his remarks in response to recent statements by Premier Bill Bennett and NDP house leader Bill King.

Bennett said Monday he might be forced to call an election over the issue of financial credibility.

King (NDP—Revelstoke-Slocan) challenged Bennett on Wednesday to call an election over the issue.

Keen said he is constantly attempting to upgrade the Social Credit Party's strength, but would be unprepared for an quick election.

When asked to be more specific, he said his party would form the government, but with a reduced majority.

King said earlier that Bennett has lost control of his party, has become panic stricken and is afraid to account for the financial mess into which he has led the province.

"He shouldn't threaten (an election)," he said. "If he feels he needs a new mandate because his support is becoming questionable, then let him call an election.

Vigilance Slipped

"The condition upon which God hath given liberty to man is eternal vigilance." — John P. Curran, 1790.

Somewhere along the line, about 16 months ago, our vigilance slipped — the vigilance, philosophically, of all the citizens of Victoria, but, more practically, of members of city council and of the constant observers, amateur and professional, of civic government.

The result is that we now have on the books of Victoria a bylaw that must, by all reasonable standards, offend against the common values of liberty and justice.

The bylaw involved is a clause of the Trades Licensing Bylaw that deals with the operation of tour buses, tally-ho wagons and other sightseeing vehicles. Its existence became generally known only this week. It came to light in the aftermath of council's rejection of a new bylaw which would have consolidated all existing city law on the subject of sightseeing vehicles.

A committee of city council rejected the new proposal on grounds quite irrelevant to the current issue. That means that the offensive clause remains on the books.

It states that: "The council may, with or without any notice or hearing, cancel or suspend the licence of any person who owns a vehicle used primarily for the purpose of conveying persons on sightseeing tours of . . . the city if . . . the owner, operator or any person employed by the owner, by his conduct unreasonably annoys or offends passengers or pedestrians; or any operator of such vehicle or guide employed in it wilfully makes untrue or grossly disparaging or offensive remarks about Canada, the province, the city or the city's inhabitants, or gives false or misleading information concerning the operator's tours."

With the legal jargon removed, that means that council can stop any tour operator from doing business in the city on the basis of what is said on his tours or on the basis of ill-defined standards of conduct. Moreover, before doing this, council may or may not bother to tell the operator that it's about to put him out of business and may or may not bother to hear his side of the story.

If there weren't some serious points involved, the whole thing would be laughable. For example, why are passengers and pedestrians singled out as those who must not be annoyed? Any driver stuck behind a tally-ho wagon in a July rush hour has undoubtedly been most annoyed — and very reasonably so, too. That, however, was apparently not what the city fathers had in mind.

There are, though, more serious questions that must be asked, particularly questions about the total lack of due process of law involved. Who is to decide whether a tour operator is guilty of these nebulous charges? On what basis? To have politicians responsible for making those decisions (which seems to be the case) is to create a system wide open for abuse.

It is made even worse by the specific requirement that council need not hear the tour operator's side of the story.

The possible penalty for offending against the bylaw — the virtual closing down of someone's business — is, in its effect, at least as severe as the usual penalties for many corporate offences under provincial and federal laws. But in those cases, clear rights of due process — normally including a judgment by a court of law rather than by a council of politicians — are enshrined in the statutes.

The bylaw having been brought to public attention, city council has little choice but to repeal it. Moreover, both council and civic observers should consider this a small example to remind them of the need to maintain vigilance to ensure that such clauses don't slip by again.

A Sober Second Look

When the history of health care in the Victoria region comes to be written, the landmark speech by Health Minister Bob McClelland at the cabinet's meeting in Esquimalt on Tuesday should be seen as the climax of a long and fractious struggle over where new hospital facilities should be located. Lately the debate over the Helmcken hospital site has become increasingly acrid, but with the concessions to local opinion announced by the minister, the air should clear somewhat.

Is it too much to hope that Victoria doctors, hospital personnel and many concerned citizens "put this controversy away, hopefully for all time?" McClelland came at least halfway towards meeting their demands and allaying their fears for the future of Victoria General Hospital.

Let no one criticize the minister any longer for being rigid and inflexible where the planned Helmcken Road hospital is concerned.

He has acceded to a good many demands by the medical profession, the major one being that the new hospital be built in one phase, with 469 beds opening at one time, instead of first only 300 and another 169 at a later date.

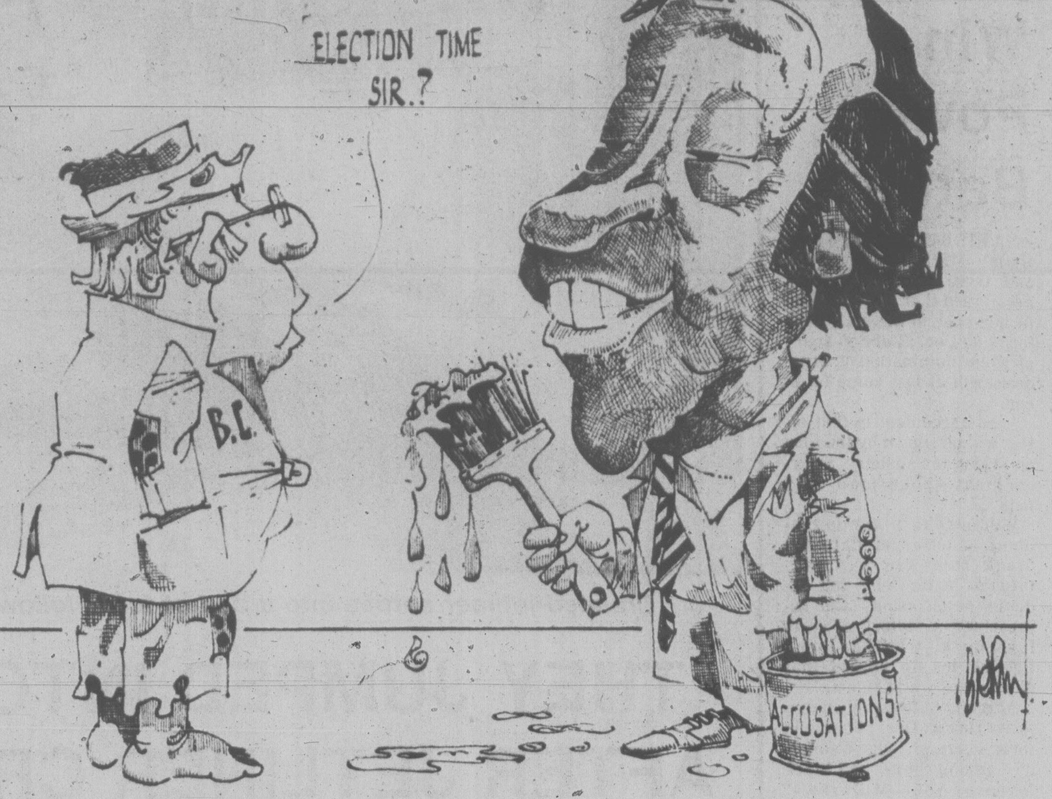
Pediatrics and obstetrics — child care and maternity — will be together in the new hospital, as demanded by the city's health care professionals.

Royal Jubilee hospital will receive $9 million for planning and construction of new facilities, to help prepare it for the larger role it will have to fill when VGH downtown is shut as an acute care hospital sometime early in the next decade.

Victoria General's demise will write finis to a century of sacrifice and service at the hospital, but McClelland has assured Victorians it will remain as some kind of health care facility, probably as an extended care hospital. We should look on it not as the end of an era but the opportunity to begin a new one.

A couple of small quibbles with McClelland: what are acute diagnostic services? This is what may remain at Victoria General after its acute care function is assumed by the new hospital but the label suggests it will remain with VGH. What's what?

The name of the new hospital: Victoria General North is awful. It may have been suggested by McClelland as a means of appeasing city dwellers and VGH patrons, but it will be 2½ miles from the city limits. Helmcken Hospital has already entered common usage. And John Sebastian Helmcken, the first physician in Victoria and a B.C. father of Confederation, deserves the honor.



JAMES RESTON

A Decent Guy Keeps Busy

LOS ANGELES — If you want to see a happy man, look at Jerry Ford. The former president, out here addressing a religious Congress of the Laity, seems more pleased with life in "retirement" than he ever did in the Congress or in the White House.

The reasons are fairly obvious. He is in vigorous good health. He is by nature an open, optimistic man, untroubled by the economic or metaphysical perplexities of life. He is not brooding over his narrow defeat in 1976, and probably no politician of his generation has come out of a quarter of a century in Washington with more friends or fewer enemies.

He talks about the past and the future now with more confidence and conviction than ever before. He thinks President Carter is in trouble and expects to see him continue to decline in the popularity polls for the rest of this year, but he takes no pleasure in this. Paradoxically, he is still fiercely partisan, but out-spoken in support of Carter in most major foreign policy issues.

Bogged Down

He is not only backing the administration on the Panama Canal treaties, but defending Carter's decision to send warplanes to Egypt and Saudi Arabia as well as to Israel. "Maybe the timing was off," he said here after a long talk with former secretary of state Henry Kissinger, "but the numbers are about right."

His main criticism of Carter is that "he lost the momentum we had going on the strategic arms negotiations with the Soviet Union, by getting bogged down on side issues, but maybe," he added, "he can get it back.

"Congress should be supporting the president more than it is on foreign policy issues," he insists. "I understand after Vietnam and Watergate that the congress wanted to regain some of the power it lost to the White House from the New Deal days on, but it has gone too far. We can't make our way in this kind of a world if the president is weakened by too much congressional interference in the conduct of foreign policy."

There are, however, two threats to Ford's serenity — golf and politics. He is hooked on these two monsters. He does not seem to understand that golf is Scotland's Calvinist punishment for original sin, and that presidential politics is an incurable disease.

In the coming weeks he will play in two more golf tournaments and make eight speeches; take classes at two universities, flying from here to St. Louis, lecture at Kansas and Kansas State; address a couple of Republican fund-raisers as distant as Florida, and then come back to California to move into his new golf course house.

He talks about all this with the enthusiasm of a young man. He's having "trouble with his chipping and putting," but otherwise, "everything is wonderful" In his 25½ years in congress, he concedes, the Republicans were in control for only two years. But look, he says, "We've won five out of six congressional elections since Jan. 20, 1977, and if we can pick up 25 seats in the House next November, we'll have a pretty good balance."

As to the mood of the country, he thinks he's in closer touch with the young now than ever before, and this is a "great young generation." Even religion is gaining strength among the young, he says, and like Jimmy Carter, this he emphasizes is important to him personally and to the country.

No Pretences

The one thing he won't concede is that the Republicans is counting too much on men in ther 60s to contest the presidency in 1980. Of the younger hopefuls, he seems to talk more about George Bush of Texas and Howard Baker of Tennessee than any of the others, but he obviously has somebody else in mind, namely Gerald R. Ford of Michigan.

He's going to keep up his party work at the present pace, "after we move into the new house," finish his book, now four months ahead of schedule, publish it late in 1979, and then decide whether to launch a major campaign for the Republican nomination early in 1980.

We'll see about all this later, but it's enough for now to observe an amiable man without the slightest trace of rancor after a lifetime in politics. He hasn't a mean or petty thing to say against anybody. There is no side to him, no pretence. Just a decent, unpretentious guy who can't get the ball in the hole. "But I'm working on that," he says.

Forgive Fox

Lately we hear a lot of the pros and cons of Francis Fox, previous solicitor-general.

Warren Allmand and Fox are two of the best solicitor-generals we have had in recent years.

Fox worked very hard; the security of the country and the integrity of the RCMP were always top priority with him, and he spared no time and effort to preserve this.

Since he is a very brilliant man, his talents can be used in other capacities for the good of Canada. His honesty, in standing before the people of Canada to tell his story had the admiration and compassion of many people.

Many of us realize that if our actions were to be publicized, we might not have a job.

Since God has forgiven Francis Fox, let us go and do so in like manner. — Anne V. Sherbrook, 1919 Davie Street.

Gov't Good News

I cannot do anything else but feel elated at the good will emanating from the pages of the B.C. Government News.

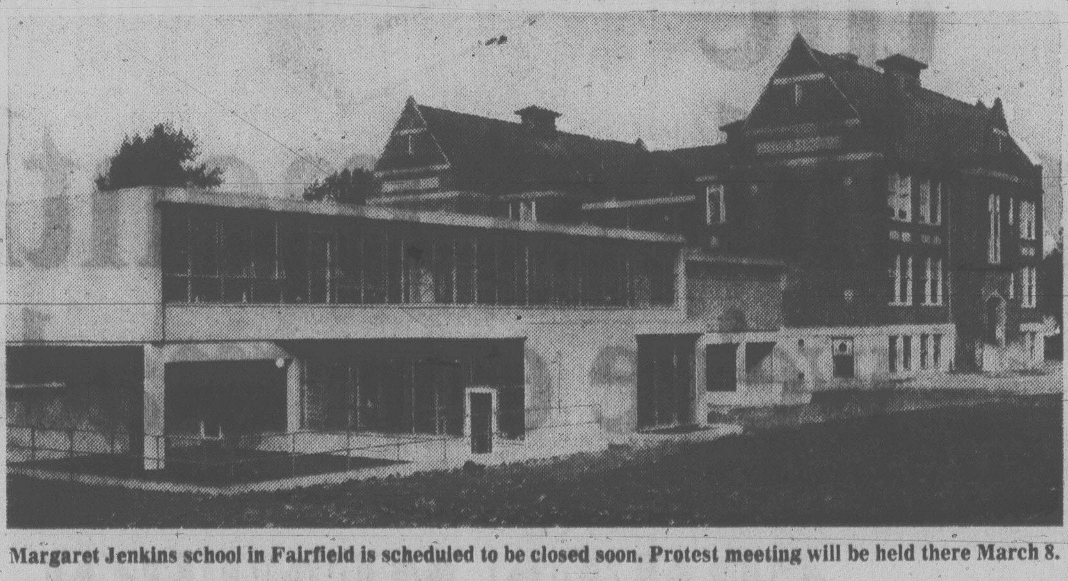
I am overcome with an inner glow of deep satisfaction that we are not forgetting the past accomplishments of our retired industrial giants who, from the softly padded confinement of their retirement, not only could but certainly should be enabled to still keep their fingers in the midst of things, helping a little here or slowing a bit there . . .

Our best wishes should go out to Dr. Gordon Shrum who was appointed chairman of the Vancouver courthouse and Robson Square project.

We can be sure that Dr. Shrum, a staunch advocate of galloping energy consumption, will see to it that there will be no shortage of electrial outlets in the place, so that every little gadget could find its rightful socket.

Also, we should not forget Mr. J. V. Clyne, the venerable past chairman of MacBlo, who was appointed to head the B.C. Heritage Fund. Mr. Clyne is eminently qualified to prune a lot of deadwood in the heritage sector, having done a remarkable job of almost entirely removing the unsightly and decadent virgin forest cover from the face of our province.

Let us only hope that the compensations offered to these gentlemen are proportionate to their retirement stipendia, which they unquestionably deserve. — John Willow, Victoria.



Margaret Jenkins school in Fairfield is scheduled to be closed soon. Protest meeting will be held there March 8.

Don't Close It

I am writing on behalf of Margaret Jenkins school, a school in the family neighborhood of Fairfield, and a school that I feel should not be closed.

Closure, either in whole or in part, will mean the transfer of students to Monterey and Sir James Douglas schools which already experience a degree of overcrowding. If this is the case then portables will be required for Monterey and Sir James Douglas's annex, recently closed, will have to be reopened. The main reason put forward (but not well-documented in the Facilities '77 report) for closing Margaret Jenkins is the financial savings that will supposedly occur. The construction of new portables and the reopening of the annex are hardly inexpensive operations.

Closing Margaret Jenkins will mean increased travelling for some students. This may seem a small point to most adults, but an extra mile or a half is a lot to a first or second grader, especially if it entails the crossing of many more intersections. When was the last time most adults walked or bicycled to work or to the local store? Most tend to travel by car, a vehicle that greatly negates the effect of extra distance, the hills between Margaret Jenkins and Monterey and the lack of direct connecting roads between the two schools.

The partial closure of Margaret Jenkins will result in the loss of a valuable science lab, a band room, an orchestral string room and rooms used by several special programs. There is currently talk of imposing a curfew in Victoria because young people are misusing their free time. Close rooms at Margaret Jenkins and the band program will fold and children will be denied a beneficial hobby which will give them a productive after school activity, keep them off the street and enhance their later life.

It will be those in the special hearing and eduationally retarded classes who will suffer the most from partial closure of Margaret Jenkins for they have already been shunted from pillar to post many, many times and moving again will only set back their successful integration into a school community.

Closing the school will destroy the fabric of our neighborhood by deterring people with elementary age children from locating in the area and will effect the whole socio-economic stratification of our community.

I close by urging all concerned, including those school trustees not present at the Feb. 22 meeting, to attend the school board's public hearing in the Margaret Jenkins gymnasium on March 8 at 8 p.m. — David Finnis, 1888 Gonzales Avenue.

Celebrate Explorer

The city of Victoria has some memorable and historic events, as a legacy in its interesting history.

One of these events took place on June 17, 1913, 65 years ago. Then completed in 1918, now the 60th anniversary (diamond).

This was the departure of the Canadian Arctic Expedition from Victoria harbor, under the Canadian born Commander Vilhjalmur Stefansson.

On his return in 1918 after five years in the Arctic he had discovered, explored and placed on the map, five new islands, naming these Borden, Brock, Lougheed, Meighen and McKenzie King. These were claimed, based on the ancient rights of discovery by Canada.

This was Stefansson's third and last expedition, and completed his life work in the Arctic of a total of 13 summers and 10 winters.

The B.C. government presented (by Richard McBride) Stefansson with a silver tray on behalf of the people of the province on the departure of the expedition dated June 17, 1913. At this time the silver tray is an Arctic legacy. This was the only souvenir he kept and treasured from any expedition.

Genealogists traced Stefansson's ancestry and found that he was a descendant of Leif Ericson, who discovered America nearly 500 years before Columbus. Then Stefansson one of the same family was the discoverer of the last unknown land in America and possibly the world.

Among the names in history's all time famous explorers and discoverers, Canada has only one — Vilhjalmur Stefansson, born at Arnes, Manitoba, Nov. 3, 1879. Albert Einstein and Will Rogers were also born that same year.

Captain Cook died in 1779.

In 1969 the Historic Sites and Monument Board of Canada, commemorated Stefansson with a distinguished monument placed in the Stefansson memorial park, near his birth place at Arnes, Manitoba.

In 1946 Stefansson was sixth on the list of 10 of the most famous people on earth. Einstein was fourth. That year Lowell Thomas wrote: "Vilhjalmur Stefansson, is one of the foremost, if not the foremost living explorer. His name and fame reach the ends of the earth. He is one of the great figures of our time."

In Victoria's provincial archives there are about 75 individual index cards to the name V. Stefansson, no doubt a significant achievement and recognition to one single man. Also of interest refer to "who was who" at your library.

Possibly to our own Canadian explorer on behalf of our beautiful city and the province, we could include some token appreciation to Stefansson on this 60th anniversary, along with the Captain Cook bicentennial celebrations.

We are learning and becoming more aware than ever that history is one of mankind's greatest legacies, to be preserved forever. — V. I. Josephson, 663 Lombard Drive.

Engine for Canada

Congratulations to the two men of Saanich on their inventing a new type of engine. It seems to have been proved out as very successful and efficient.

Canada certainly has a good share of inventors and highly skilled craftsmen and scientists. Let us hope that this engine is to be manufactured here in Canada to the benefit of Canada. It is about time that Canada produced a car and motorcycle exclusively Canadian. Here it would seem is the opportunity to realize that dream. The car is such an enormous factor in the individual's and national economy that it is very important that a proper share of that economy should be of greater help to Canadians than it is, in regard to employment and wealth. If the government wants, sincerely, to put up money for makework schemes here is a good subject for it. It would be generative of other work.

It would also be nice to think that it would not be a subject for speculative trading of shares on the stock market, with fortunes being made by that particularly useless type of person, who, as one has seen, is able to make a fortune out of a product that never gets into production but does nothing for the general well being and good of the people. — H. G. Cook, 545 Transit Road.

No Cannon, Thanks

I hear the James Bay folks do not want a cannon. Thank God, we have some people among us who don't want to hear about war any more. What about a bell? A bell to ring in the new morning, to joyfully welcome the day? A bell to ring out the day, to welcome the evening's peace? We have the Dutch bell tower in the city's centre, but nothing at the outskirts of our lovely town. Perhaps the army or navy will donate an old cannon and the lovers of peace will beat the implement of war into the blessed voice of peace. — H. B. F. Schmidt, 765 Arden Road.

FLYNT . . . elevated sponsorship

A Little Early For the Pulpit?

By MURRAY KEMPTON

(Kempton is a commentator on CBS Radio. These remarks were reprinted in The Progressive)

Larry Flynt, the publisher of Hustler, has invited us all to join him on our knees in recommitting ourselves to prayer. The washing of sinners in the blood of the lamb has lately become a national industry whose miracles are without parallel unless it be those on display in detergent commercials.

Flynt was convicted of obscenity a while ago and faces a prison sentence. His soul has since been saved by President Carter's sister, and, under this elevated sponsorship, he has now enrolled himself to obey the Lord in all things, save one so far. That exception seems to be the adjuration to put aside one's worldly goods. When last heard from, he had only transferred those to the control of his wife, who, being as yet undisabled by redemption, can presumably be trusted to run his magazines with their old zest and only faintly altered appeal to the lower senses.

Charles Colson, the old White House thug who preceded Flynt into the choir immortal, was conspicuous in the welcoming band. "Having experienced the ridicule, cynicism, laughter, and derision," he declared, "I know no man makes that kind of statement unless he means it — it isn't an easy thing to do."

That is a surprise. I had thought, the way things were going, that the discovery that one had been saved for Christ was becoming as easy as forgetting it had generally been. Colson has been traveling about with Eldridge Cleaver, confessing their sins and rejoicing mutually in their salvation. One luxury of the evangelical tour is the laxity of its confessional requirements. Before Cleaver was snatched from the burning, he used to preach to young blacks to get guns. A consequence of heeding this advice was that, to a dreadful extent, they got themselves killed in the streets. I can't think of many worse sins that the recording angel could write down against Cleaver, and yet accounts of his performances are bare of references to his mentioning it.

But then to be penitent, while avoiding exactitude about precisely what, is powerful stuff for the probation officers that Cleaver must and Larry Flynt may have to face.

The current surge of born-again Christianity would be more inspiring if there weren't quite this much evidence that the proud sinner is more apt to be unhorsed these days on the way to Waterloo than the road to Damascus. I do not think Larry Flynt belongs in jail but I hardly think he belongs in the pulpit this soon either. The Holy Spirit is altogether too sacred a subject to have its revival in America so embarrassingly suggest a national plague of blindness to the precept that God is not mocked.

Who Should Pay for Clean Environment?

By PAUL ST. PIERRE
The Sun

All those devoted to the Santa Claus school of economics will grieve about the policy statement from the Canadian Labor Congress on environmental pollution, for the congress has laid the cold facts on the line.

Those hard facts are that the people who will pay for a clean environment are not the capitalist labor bosses or some other hobgoblins of the popular demonology but me, brother, and thee. It is something most of us would have preferred not thinking about.

We might have been better prepared for the truth had we listened to some of the bitter complaints about global pollution control which have been voiced at the United Nations by Third World countries. But of course few people listen to anything said at the United Nations any more.

When the dominant labor organization of the country speaks, more people here are listening, and that CLC statement will be echoing about the hills for some time.

Given a choice between continued pollution and increased unemployment, the Congress states unequivocally where its choice lies. It is the same choice made by the Third World nations, countries we are more and more coming to resemble, to whom a clean environment is a luxury and not a fundamental.

"It would be an act of criminal irresponsibility to place jobs at risk, even for serious environmental considerations," is the statement of Donald Montgomery, secretary treasurer of the CLC. Up to now it has been pollution itself, not resultant shutdowns, which have been called criminal by one and all.

The Labor Congress statement isn't all negative, nor is it, for all that may be said by opponents, reactionary.

Mr. Montgomery puts forward a constructive suggestion. A special environment unemployment fund should be established, he suggests, to care for workers who lose their jobs in environmental cleanups. (He apparently does not dare hope that the loss of jobs, however criminal it may seem to him, will not continue in some degree.)

His is the sort of suggestion that government cannot lightly put aside. It is government at its several levels which introduced pollution controls. It was always done at the urging of the voters, but the politicians, as is their nature, have never told those voters how much they may have to pay for the cleanups.

In the suggestion of a special unemployment fund, as in its general criticism of what it suggests are over-strict anti-pollution laws, the Congress finally said what politicians found so difficult to say — that society as a whole benefits from a cleaner environment and that society as a whole should bear the costs.

Most of those who have agitated for clean air and water may be expected to agree with this but it will give the blue fantods to some of the ecofreaks who have either refused to talk about costs or evaded the problem by the slogan "Let the polluter pay."

Charging pollution costs against the industries responsible was a fair enough idea and remains workable in some degree, but the idea has always had limitations which were clear enough, even if not immediately obvious.

One disadvantage was that immediate implementation of strict pollution controls can drive some industries to bankruptcy or out of the country. (The CLC suggests the latter occurred in the big Inco layoff at Sudbury, the company shifting some of its operation to Third World countries more forgiving of pollution.)

A further disadvantage was that big companies with captive consumers might well afford expensive anti-pollution equipment, but since they then merely raised prices to the consumers to recover their costs the general citizenry paid anyway.

A third disadvantage, to which the CLC is pointing, is that shutdowns of polluting industries don't merely end those industries' profits, which might gratify those who despise the word profit, but create far greater havoc among working people who lose jobs. In practically every industry, payrolls exceed profits by large multiples.

Putting the burden on working people is unfair, says the CLC, and so it is.

We are seeing repeated inside the nation what has already been occurring in the international sphere.

Many of us who watched our skies darkening and our fish dying in the rivers may have taken it for granted that cleaning up the mess left by hasty and careless industrialization was a worldwide sentiment. It was not.

For a decade, the Third World countries have made it plain that they see international pollution control suggestions as something far different. They see these, rather, as a machiavellian plot by the developed countries, which can afford pollution controls, to hamper industrialization in the poorer countries, which can not.

The Brazilians, frantically clawing their way to the status of a fully industrialized state, don't give a damn if Thor Heyerdahl and his raft companions find a few clumps of congealed bunker oil in the Sargasso Sea. They see nothing wrong with smoking chimney stacks. Give us more, they say, we'll worry about cleaning up the environment later. It is, they point out, exactly the way we went about it.

Canadian Labor hasn't gone this far. They want clean air and water as much as the rest of us. But there is a bill to be paid, they remind us, and it shouldn't all be paid by men with lunch buckets or men who wish they had a job to carry a lunch bucket to.

U.S. Farming Runs Out of Technology

By PAUL SHINOFF
Washington Post

America's "green revolution" may be over.

The intense 30-year industrialization of U.S. farm lands, during which crop yields more than doubled though the introduction of complex harvesting machinery, petrochemicals and genetically engineered crops, appears to be at an end.

"We are bumping against the ceiling of applied technology," reports John Timons, Professor of Natural Resources at Iowa State University. "Unless we are able to develop new technologies, our productivity is not going to go up."

A survey of major crop yields in the last decade shows that, while production has continued to rise as unused farm land is brought back into production, the yields of major grains have dipped and swung in patterns unmatched since the dust bowl years of the mid-1930s.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, statistics for 1977 show corn and wheat below the yields attained in 1972. But what is of increasing concern to many agronomists and agricultural economists is that recently developed farm technology may have masked, or even contributed to, serious problems, particularly the decline in the quality of soil.

The most serious problem, they believe, is inceasing erosion, particularly in the midwest corn belt. Scientists contend that the heavy use of fertilizers has allowed crop yields to stay at relatively high levels. They warn, however, that this could be a short-term effect. Unless topsoil erosion patterns are corrected, they say, yields will drop considerably, and production costs will increase dramatically.

Other major problems include: increased sedimentation as topsoil and fertilizers run off into streams and reservoirs, depletion of irreplaceable supplies of ground water in the Missouri basin and a section of Texas, compaction of soil through use of heavy machinery, and use of high-quality farm land for urban development.

"We've been generating tremendous productivity," Timmons says. "But if we continue to interfere with soil and water quality, we're going to be in trouble."

In a report to congress last February the General Accounting Office (GAO) warned that because of excessive erosion, farms in the Great Plains, Corn belt and Pacific Northwest are losing topsoil at a rate that threatens crop productivity. Topsoil is crucial to crop production, because it contains most of the organic matter and a major share of the nutrients required by plants. Topsoil thickness varies from a few inches to several feet. Corn belt lands have a topsoil thickness of 6 to 16 inches.

As a general measure, scientists say losses of 11 metric tons per hectare are acceptable in areas of good-quality soil. But in a random study of 283 farms the GAO found that 83 per cent had losses higher than that. Some farms' losses ran two to three times that rate. It also found that the Department of Agriculture's soil conservation programs, costing several hundred million dollars per year, have been ineffective in establishing enduring conservation practices.

Fertilizers can't stop erosion

The GAO quoted a report by the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology (CAST) that indicated that Corn belt farmers were less effective in controlling erosion than they were 15 years ago. The United States was losing more than 3.6 billion metric tons of topsoil a year in 1972, compared to about 2.7 billion metric tons in 1934.

Much of the blame for increasing erosion in the Midwest has been laid on farmers who rushed to get more land into production to take advantage of rising grain prices following the 1972 U.S.-Russia wheat deal. The CAST report estimated that between 1973 and 1974 51 million acres were taken out of the federally subsidized soil bank program and converted into crop land.

Soil losses as great as 112 metric tons per hectare occurred in South Iowa, and erosion of as much as 540 metric tons per hectare was recorded on the sloping, cultivated fields in Illinois.

"It was a short-sighted thing they did," Timmons said. "But we got an exhortation from Washington to increase yields, so farmers went out and plowed up everything."

Increased use of fertilizers has allowed a shift away from soil-conserving crop rotations and has allowed farmers to make more intense use of the land through single-cropping or rotating major cash crops such as corn and soybeans. The GAO noted that, based on the 1974 market value of fertilizers, it would have cost $1.2 billion to purchase the chemicals needed to replace nutrients lost through erosion in that year.

Worried Sick About Health

katharine whitehorn

I hate health. Everywhere you go these days you see people with blazing eyes and thrust-out chests applying themselves to being healthy; no one refuses a cigarette without a self-righteous, "No not for me" and the mercury-tainted oranges are only the last in a long list of foods we've been told we'd better not eat or we'll be sorry. I'm not unsympathetic to people who actually are ill. I don't even particularly mind other people being healthy, but I do wish they'd shut up about it.

It is health as an end in itself that I dislike. Here we are, one of the healthiest societies in the world's history, worrying ourselves sick about whether we ingest too many additives or run too few miles or whether we eat as much roughage as the Africans, whose bowels function so much better than ours do — when they've got anything to put through them, that is.

Which is surely a fairly basic point: embarrassing figures show that most of the killer diseases were already declining, because of better food and sanitation, long before the arrival of miracle drugs; we have the luxury of going on to the aches of age instead of coming down with something incurable in youth; you would have thought the one society that could let itself off fussing about fitness was ours. But no.

Ivan Illych, in his unceasing feud with American medicine, has statistics to hand about the number of Americans who die of unnecessary treatment; and he is deeply suspicious of all preventative medicine. He sees it as yet one more rip-off, an attempt by the medics to get at those few Americans who are not already paying them money. No, you're not ill, say the doctors, but we can turn you into patients anyway; because how can you prove you aren't going to be ill if we don't? Hence lifelong treatments of expensive pills to reduce the blood-pressure; hence jogging, squash, health foods, health farms and no more cakes and ale: a sorry scene.

Don't get me wrong: I'm entirely in favor of experts whose job it is checking the asbestos at the workplace, the noxious factory fumes that envelop the cows whose milk we drink; let the water boards by all means stop anyone emptying so much as a jerry into the drinking water. And I'll go along with mothers, who are experts in a sense, insisting their children brush their teeth once in a while and eat something other than lollipops. It's the daily dose of worry I won't take.

If we've cured most of the things that aren't caused by stress, and stress is caused by worry, then fretting about our fitness may only make things worse. One of the saddest things about having been really ill is that you must bother about such things; just as one of the wretched effects of having been raped is that you dread every dark corner, every strange man. Teaching women to carry whistles and hatpins and warily scan every street makes the prevention almost as bad as the effect; and it's much the same if you have an excessive concern for health.

There are people who adore tinkering with their cars; they spend half of every Sunday filling their hair with oil, the gutters with detergent and their wives with fury; and there are people, I accept, who enjoy fussing about health. They believe in wholemeal bread or exercise of what the John Moore shopkeeper called "Mens and women's sana in corpore sano", but to my mind they risk missing the point of being healthy at all. They remind me of Dr. Eustace Chesser who seriously said that anyone wanting to make love in the early morning should first rise and have a bath in the interests of hygiene; or the charming retired policeman who assured me I should snuff up salt water in my nostrils every morning all winter to avoid colds: for heaven's sake, I'd rather have the cold.

I want to get on with my life, and not worry about my mortal coil, just as I don't want to worry much about my mortal car. I accept that cars need their 10,000-mile test; I am all for cancer screening and once-a-year-check-ups on the same basis. But my one regret is that one cannot simply unscrew an arm or a head and leave it in for repair — though I suppose, on the garage analogy, it would mean getting someone else's head back, chipped, with a new defect and a bill for £,200. It might be better, all the same, than a whole life spent listening for the knocking under the bonnet.

Victoria Lawyer Arbitrator

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ian H. Stewart, a Victoria lawyer, has been appointed by Labor Minister Allan Williams to lead a three-member arbitration board for a collective agreement covering 12,500 nurses working in 107 British Columbia hospitals.

The appointment was announced in letters to the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. and the Health Labor Relations Association, which represents the hospitals.

No date has been set for the arbitration board's first meeting.

The nurses applied Feb. 1 for binding arbitation under the Essential Services Disputes Act following three months of unsuccessful negotiations under mediator Clark Gilmour.

Union Appeals Firing

VANCOUVER (CP) — An appeal was launched Wednesday with the British Columbia Labor Relations Board by Local 31 of the Teamsters Union after a man employed with a city trucking firm was fired after saying that workers at Johnston Terminals unknowingly handled a shipment of poisonous chemicals.

Jerry Krewik, an employee at the firm for five years, was given 48 hours notice Tuesday.

Doug McLeod, president of Local 31, said Wednesday the board was asked to rule whether the dismissal was subject to arbitration.

He said grievance procedures initiated by the union following the dismissal have been recessed to next week.

Poison control experts said the chemical unloaded by the workers, barium chloride, could be lethal in doses as small as one gram.

Irvin Froese, vice-president of Johnston Terminals, said that the chemical was used in dyes for clothing and added that it had a "moderate toxicity level."

Rollback Cars Sold in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP are seeking a car dealer suspected of selling in the Lower Mainland about 100 late model luxury cars from Ontario that had their odometers rolled back.

Big Loss But Mine To Stay

VANCOUVER (CP) — Granby Mining Corp. said Wednesday it will keep its Granisle copper mine at Babine Lake, in north-central British Columbia, in operation despite a $2.6 million loss last year.

Robert Taylor, Granby president, told the annual meeting of sharerholders that provided the anticipated modest recovery in copper price materializes in the spring, "it is clearly in the best interests of the company to keep the Granisle mine in operation.

Granisle Copper Ltd. is a 98.3-per cent-owned subsidiary of Granby. The mine employs about 250 people.

Taylor told shareholders Granby is constantly reviewing the Granisle operation but said there were no obvious measures to be taken which would result in reduction in operating costs.

"We have no flexibility with regard to waste removal, and the options are simply to continue operating at maximum throughput in order to optimize the cost per pound of copper produced, or shut down completely," Taylor said.

He said the employees, represented by the United Steelworkers of America, have agreed to forego any wage increase during the depressed market conditions and have taken a four-month extension on their current contract.

Kitimat Refusal Seen Hurting Only Canadians

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadians have hurt only themselves, not the United States, by refusing to permit an oil port at Kitimat, a U.S. energy official said Wednesday.

The Canadian cabinet announced last week that it would not permit such a port, which would have received Alaskan oil and put it into a new pipeline to Edmonton. From Edmonton, existing pipelines would have carried the oil to the United States.

The official said in an interview that in addition to the jobs that the $750-million Kitimat project could have created, Canada will lose the substantial economic benefit of using existing pipelines to capacity.

"Alberta crude oil production is declining," he said. "If there isn't any port or pipeline built, the pipelines will have lower throughput and more spare capacity, which means higher tariffs for Canadians."

In 15 to 20 years, there may not be enough Western Canadian oil to supply Western Canadian refineries, he said. That would mean an oil port would have to be built anyway, either on the East or West Coast.

In discussing the Kitimat decision last week, Prime Minister Trudeau said there is a chance the decision might be reviewed at some future date if any Canadian need for such a facility appears.

But for now, he said, the federal government does not want to risk major coastal oil spills for a project designed only for U.S. benefit.

"Quite frankly, if it is just for the Americans, my offhand attitude is why don't they build a port on their West Coast if they want to bring oil for themselves?"

Congressional supporters of another project, the proposed northern tier oil pipeline, are expected to push legislation speeding up approval for that line as a means of bringing Alaskan oil to the central United States.

The northern tier proposal would involve an oil port in the state of Washington, near British Columbia waters.

$200,000 On Clean-Up

TERRACE (CP) — Canadian Cellulose Ltd. has already spent $200,000 to clean up a toxic chemical which escaped from a failed transformer at the Prince Rupert mill, a company official testified Wednesday in provincial court.

Orjim Burchardt, vice-president of the firm's pulp manufacturing operation in Prince Rupert, said the firm has been concerned with pollution control and has been monitoring the environment around the Prince Rupert mill during the 10 years he had worked there.

CanCel faces 16 pollution charges under the Federal Fisheries Act after a spill Jan. 27, 1977, of polychorinated bithenyls. The PCB's, used as an insulating fluid, escaped from a ruptured transformer and flowed into Porpoise Harbor near Prince Rupert.

Burchardt said that the firm cleaned up the oil spill around the roof where the transformer was and the surrounding area.

He said the company was told that the PCB spill would not be harmful to the harbor, but the firm decided to clean up the spill to better community relations.

He added that the pond where the PCB's had accumulated was filled with bleached hog-fuel by the firm at a cost of $200,000.

The safe level for PCB in food in Canada is considered to be two parts per million.

Testimony presented at an earlier phase of the trial in October, 1977, indicated that federal surveys found levels of PCB's in the harbor as high as 236 parts per million.

The trial before Judge Selwyn Romilly was adjourned to March 13.

Grim Picture Over Hydro

More than 350 Victorians Tuesday were given a grim preview of what B.C.'s landscape might look like in a generation or two if alternatives to hydro power are not found.

The picture, drawn by Mike Halleran, a film producer and writer at a public meeting, was not challenged by Charles Nash, corporate affairs manager for B.C. Hydro.

Halleran, through film and narration, drew a bleak scenario of a province with all its major valleys flooded and without its rich food-producing farmlands and thousands of acres of valuable timber land.

He portrayed the province's valuable fisheries resource reduced by more than 30 per cent and most of its resident waterfowl including ducks, geese and swans, wiped out by the flooding of vast marshlands.

Nash told the audience he is just as concerned as environmentalists about the future.

"But as the population grows and the demand for power increases we will need more power," he said.

"That is why we are looking at alternatives such as nuclear power, coal and other sources of energy."

He said at present the demand for power is decreasing.

"It's giving us a breathing spell. We need it; it was getting too hectic"

The meeting, sponsored by the Victoria Sierra Club and the Victoria Fish and Game Association, focussed on the proposed McGregor diversion dam, a tributary of the Fraser.

Under the plan, the McGregor will be forced over the Pacific-Arctic divide into the Parsnip river. From there will it enter the Williston reservoir on the Peace River.

It will then be used to increase power production at the Bennett dam and other dams Hydro wants to build on the lower Peace River.

Nash said studies on the project have been halted in view of findings by biologists that the joining of the two river systems may endanger the fisheries resource.

But he added the studies will be resumed if the fisheries problems can be resolved by biologists.

Halloran believes McGregor Dam would bring disaster to the Fraser River.

Nash said no dam would be erected until all studies are completed on the impact the scheme would have on the environment.

Obscene Calls Net Stiff Fine

CHILLIWACK (CP) — A 36-year-old Yarrow man was fined $1,200 and given a two-year probation term Wednesday for making four obscene telephone calls. Provincial Court Judge Thomas Meagher sentenced Gerald Julias Thiessen after he pleaded guilty to the charges in this Fraser Valley community east of Vancouver.

"It's the stiffest sentencing we've ever had," said Bob McLuckie, security manager for the B.C. Telephone Co.

The conviction came after B.C. Tel traced the four calls made July 9 and 10 to the same Chilliwack woman back to Thiessen.

MINIMUM SECURITY 'LIKE COUNTRY CLUB'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Twin Maples minimum-security jail near Maple Ridge in the Fraser Valley is almost a country club compared with the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre (Oakalla), two women prisoners said Wednesday.

Pat Anderson and Val Riches made their comments to a provincial inquiry into women's jails.

Until Feb. 16, they were prisoners at Twin Maples. The following day, they were in the hallway outside the room where the inquiry is being conducted by Justice Patricia Proudfoot of the British Columbia Supreme Court.

They weren't waiting to testify to the inquiry then, however. They were waiting to appear in court on charges of escaping from Twin Maples.

Since then, Anderson and Riches have been incarcerated in Oakalla.

They appeared Wednesday before the inquiry to tell of the difference between the two institutions.

"The overcrowding (at the Oakalla women's jail) is bizarre," said Anderson, 25, serving two years less a day for robbery. "It's going to blow.

"But Twin Maples is a great place with great potential," she said with nods of approval from Riches, 35, under sentence on a false-pretenece charge.

"The staff do play 'head games' with inmates at Twin Maples," Anderson said, "but it's such a peaceful place. I can't understand why the people at Oakalla don't want to do their time at Twin Maples."

Anderson and Riches made it clear they were applauding only Twin Maples' rustic setting and doors without locks, not what they see as ineffective counselling, inconsistent jail discipline and staff dealing with prisoners as if they were children.

'I Was Hurt. . .' Accused Killer Describes Fight

A 33-year-old North Saanich man, accused of second degree murder, told the B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday he hit a person with a knife who was holding him during a fight.

But Ervin Ray Beebe said he thought it was Helmut (Ham) Gruber, 26, that he struck, not James Struik, 23, the man he is accused of stabbing.

Court has heard from several witnesses that Beebe and Gruber had an argument in the Golden Bear tavern in Sidney late Dec. 17 or early Dec. 18 over whose turn it was at the pool table. Beebe left the pub and was followed by Gruber and a little later Struik left.

Beebe, testifying after the Crown completed its case, said Gruber had made "short bursts" to get to him outside the pub but he "put on some speed" and went over a fence.

His next recollection was seeing the silhouette of a figure "and the next thing I remember is being hurt. I didn't really know where I was or what was going on. I just knew I was hurt. Nothing was right all of a sudden."

He told defence counsel David Wilson that he saw "something bright up in the sky, from six to eight feet, something coming down at me" and he put his hands up. It was a "powerful blow" which hit him in the eye and cheek.

He said the blow spun him around and doubled him over and he received more blows to the head.

He recalled being on his hands and feet and seeing a big foot and "I thought I was going to catch it in the head" but he moved to one side. Still on his hands and knees, he said "I felt considerable force" being applied but he could not be specific about which part of his body received blows.

Then he received blows to his ribs and three severe blows to his head.

"I thought I was going down and out," he said. "I hit the person who was holding me. Well, I had to do something to extradite myself from the situation. I was aware I had a knife. I thought I would cause him severe pain and get away."

Beebe said he didn't recall hitting the person before that and thought two people were hitting him because of the force and the way the blows were coming.

He first recalled having a knife in his hands when he was first on his hands and knees.

He had no idea if it was his knife and couldn't say how it got into his hands.

Beebe said the blow he struck was "a blind swing. There was someone on top of me. I thought I would get him in the stomach."

Asked if he aimed the blow at any particular part, he said "I couldn't see him." He felt the blow land and then the grip on him was released and he broke free and ran.

He said no when asked if he can remember anything about the knife after the fight, if he can remember seeing the knife at any time since then or if he can say what happened to the knife.

As he ran off, he said "I saw this big guy coming again. So I took off. I took it to be the big fat Gruber guy. I was surprised to see him. I thought I had stabbed him. I thought I was fighting him. I thought he was on top of me."

Asked if there was anything else he could have done in the fight, he replied "I could have let him beat me."

Beebe was to be cross-examined today by Crown counsel George MacMinn.

Earlier, court was told that a blood analysis of Struik showed he had an alcohol content of .148 or almost twice the impaired level for a driving offence under the Criminal Code.

Cpl. Melburn McIntosh of the RCMP said a 200-pound man would have to consume a minimum 10 glasses of beer to reach that reading. Assuming he had been drinking four hours, with oxidation, he would have had something like 16 glasses of beer.

Gruber testified that he arrived at the Golden Bear shortly before midnight and joined Struik. There was an argument between him and Beebe over whose turn it was at the pool table. Gruber picked up the 8-ball and sat down and Beebe broke two glasses of beer over the table and left.

A little later, Beebe returned to the doorway and said "anyone want a ride" and Gruber said "I told him to get the hell out. He said 'why don't you come and make me.' "

He followed Beebe out but the latter maintained his distance. Then he saw Struik running from the pub. Gruber said he "half walked, half ran" towards them and Beebe was on both knees and Struik was on one knee, crouched over him, with his left arm over Beebe's back and shoulder. He saw Struik hit Beebe two or three times with his right arm and then the fight broke up.

"I saw a knife in Beebe's right hand. I could see the blade, about four inches of blade I saw."

Gruber said he called out "look out Jim, he's got a knife" and Struik replied "I'm hit, I'm hit."

He helped Struik back to a truck and drove him to Rest Haven Hospital during which Struik passed out.

Gruber said he is 260 pounds and five feet, 11 inches and agreed Struik was "a big, strong fellow." He said he didn't run after Beebe in the parking lot and at least two times and possibly three he started to go back to the pub.

Asked if he called Beebe "chicken," he said "I might have."

The trial is before a jury of seven women and five men with Mr. Justice Richard Anderson presiding.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

One of three teen-agers charged with a break-in last weekend at a furniture shop was denied bail Wednesday in Victoria provincial court.

David William Holst, 19, had his application for release rejected by Judge William Ostler and was remanded until today to fix a date for a preliminary hearing.

Holst, 18-year-old Kelly Norman Lambert and 17-year-old Bernard John Strating, all of 1115 Caledonia, were charged with breaking and entering and possession of stolen furniture and home appliances from Mais Furniture, 1821 Cook.

Lambert and Strating, represented by lawyer Jasper Bomhof, elected to have their bail applications heard today and were remanded in custody.

Ostler fined a 26-year-old man $100 after he pleaded guilty to obstructing a peace officer.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told the court William Randall Browning, 2500 Florence Lake Road, was a passenger in a vehicle which was stopped Feb. 4 by Colwood RCMP.

Lang said the driver was taken to the police vehicle for transport back to the Colwood detachment for a breath test when Browning approached the police car and asked what was going on.

Browning was told, Lang continued, but refused to let the police proceed by holding the car door open. When police got back out, court was informed, Browning took a karate stance and was warned about the obstruction. However, when the officer returned to his vehicle, Browning again grabbed the door handle and prevented the door from being closed. He was arrested and transported to the detachment, Lang said.

A 24-year-old motorcyclist was fined $150 after pleading guilty to dangerous driving.

Larry Hickson, 935 Selkirk, was spotted by city police at Douglas and Fisgard doing a "one-wheel cat walk" against a red light.

Police said a chase ensued, through a number of red lights and against one-way traffic at one point, reaching a speed of 60 m.p.h. before the officer lost him. He was picked up again shortly afterwards, Lang continued, and the chase reached speeds of 90 m.p.h. before police could force Hickson off the road.

Defence lawyer David Lisson said Hickson denied going that fast and also insisted he stopped and was not forced off the road by police. Lisson also said his client had sold the bike and had registered in a safe-driving course starting Monday at Camosun College.

Shane Leonard Gooderham, 22, of 131 Robertson, was fined $200 after pleading guilty to driving while his licence was suspended.

Lang said Gooderham was stopped Jan. 20 by Esquimalt police on Old Esquimalt Road and a check was made on the Canadian Police Information Centre (CPIC) network on his driving record.

Police told Gooderham his licence had been suspended as of Aug. 6, 1977, but Gooderham told the officers his driving record was "so good" it couldn't be suspended. Police then told him he had accumulated 59 driving points since February, 1973.

A 17-year-old who had an expired learner's licence and damaged his mother's car in an accident was given a suspended sentence, placed on six months probation and ordered to attend the Metchosin camp and not drive during his probation.

Dale Rodney Giebelhaus, 1215 Alderman, pleaded guilty to taking an auto without the owner's consent and Lang told the court Giebelhaus took the keys for his mother's vehicle from her purse Feb. 18 and subsequently became involved in a mishap.

A 22-year-old man was given a 20-day, intermittent jail term after pleading guilty to driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 Feb. 16.

George William Fortin, 984 Dunford, was given the sentence after Lang told the court Fortin was convicted Dec. 15, 1976, of the same offence and was fined $500 at that time.

Fined $200 for refusing a demand for a breath sample made by police were: Joanne Addison, 32, of 703 Esquimalt; Robert Dale Fontaine, 46, of 1345 Pandora; and David Jamieson Turner, 28, of 578 Langholme.

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: Albert Kenneth Burt, 17, of 1939 Maple, $700; Teresa Ann McDonald, 42, of 3054 Jenner, $400; Gordon Charles Reed, 49, of 10363 McDonald Park Road, $350; Irvin Arthur Huget, 33, of 2715 Jacklin, $350; and Cheryle Celie Tubb, 31, of 1222 Goldstream, $200.

In addition, Burt was fined $60 after pleading guilty to two counts of being a minor in possession of liquor.

Developer, Banker Guilty Of Corruption: Judge

An unemployed former national bank president and a Central Saanich land developer were found guilty in county court Wednesday of wilfully attempting to obstruct the course of justice and corruptly offering or agreeing to accept a secret commission.

Richard Brian Higgins, 42, of Saanich, president of Unity Bank of Canada from 1972 to 1975, and William Alfred Eastgate, 43, president of Seaboard Enterprises Ltd. and several related companies, will be sentenced March 13 by Judge Peter Millward.

Unity Bank was absorbed by the Provincial Bank of Canada last year.

Millward, in convicting both men at the end of the 18-day trial, including 2½ days of summation this week, amended one count of the indictment to change "obstructing the course of justice" to "wilfully attempting to obstruct the course of justice."

As amended, they were convicted of conspiring to wilfully attempt to obstruct the course of justice, between April 26 and April 30, 1977, by destroying and altering documentary evidence "thereby attempting to conceal the offences of giving and receiving, corruptly, benefits to an agent" contrary to the secret commission section of the Criminal Code.

Eastgate was accused of offering Higgins, an agent of Unity Bank, an opportunity to participate and share without personal investment or efforts in the business ventures of Seaboard Enterprises and W.A.E. Holdings, resulting in profit to Higgins of $110,000, as consideration for Higgins showing favor to Seaboard and W.A.E. Holdings in their credit applications to Unity Bank.

Higgins was accused, being an agent of Unity Bank, of corruptly agreeing to accept this offer from Eastgate and W.A.E. Holdings as consideration for showing favor to Seaboard and W.A.E. Holdings in the credit applications to Unity Bank.

These offences were said to have occurred between Jan. 1, 1973, and April 30, 1977. W.A.E. Holdings is Eastgate's personal company.

Both men remain on bail pending sentence.

Millward said he had considered all the circumstances but the "crucial element" was Exhibit 74, a profit-splitting memorandum.

Signed by both men, it said: "Please accept this document as our agreement to share any profits or losses on a 50-50% basis covering the land development with W.A.E. Holdings Ltd. and Seaboard Enterprises Ltd. 10.03 acres from G. Doney lots 4-5-6-7 Block 1 R 2E Section 4 SS Plan 1830 in which W.A.E. Holdings Ltd. has a 50% interest. This agreement is with yourself or company name you may wish to form in the future."

The memo was dated May 16, 1973, one day after Higgins agreed to a line of credit for $425,000 to Seaboard. But both men testified the document was actually made in December, 1974.

Millward said the prosecution argued that an understanding was reached in January, 1973, that Eastgate would perform certain services for Unity Bank and the bank would provide him with a personal line of credit for $250,000 and pay certain commissions.

In May, 1973, Higgins went to Victoria and inspected Eastgate's business operations. Eastgate made arrangements with Seaboard Enterprises that W.A.E. Holdings would share equally in profits from a land development. The Crown argued that the following day, Higgins and Eastgate signed Exhibit 74 setting out terms that Higgins would share profits with W.A.E. Holdings.

Millward said "no consideration passing from Higgins is expressed in the memorandum" but the Crown argued that it was Higgins' approval of loans negotiated with W.A.E. Holdings and Seaboard Enterprises.

The defence argued that while most of the facts were not at issue, they bore a different interpretation and Exhibit 74 was "not signed pursuant to any corrupt agreement" but was prepared and signed in late 1974 for tax purposes and possible employment of Higgins locally.

Millward said he had to ask himself whether he was satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the Crown's version was correct and the defence's incorrect and it was not a matter of choosing one version over the other.

He said Eastgate had a good appreciation of the Income Tax Act and its regulations and Higgins was a sophisticated and knowledgeable businessman familiar with taxes.

Millward reviewed the testimony of Seaboard accountant William John Elliott, an unindicted co-conspirator, who said he had never seen Exhibit 74 and Eastgate never explained why Mount Newton Holdings would share 50-50 with W.A.E. Holdings in land development profits.

He said Mount Newton was Higgins' company with Eastgate holding the single share for him but this was changed April 28, 1977, to substitute the name of Eastgate's four children through erasures in Elliott's working papers.

Millward said that, giving the benefit of every possible doubt, he found the evidence of Higgins and Eastgate unacceptable.

The prosecution's case was presented by Mike Hutchison. Higgins was represented by Peter Freeman and Eastgate was represented by Derek Brindle.

Heroism Fatal

LUDWIGSHAFEN, West Germany (AP) — A 24-year-old auto mechanic was burned to death after trying to save three children from a fire that destroyed a five-storey apartment house, police said Tuesday.

Pastor Can Stay

VANCOUVER (CP) — Peter Wang, 34, of Taiwan, a pastor at a local Presbyterian church since he arrived in Canada two years ago, received a 14-month stay of execution Tuesday on a deportation order.

The stay was delivered just one week after a two-day Canadian immigration appeal board hearing when Wang testified he was beaten in Taipei by four agents of the Kuomingtang government while his uncle disappeared when held for questioning by the government.

Wang's wife, Mona, 33, and son Thomas, 6, are also included in the deportation order.

Brannen Lake Future Promised by Summer

Attorney-General Garde Gardom said Wednesday a final decision on converting the old Island Youth Centre in Nanaimo into an adult facility should be made before summer.

Gardom told a news conference he had just received a report from the B.C. Buildings Corp. which said the facility could be converted into minimum-security institution for men and women, with a limited capacity medium-maximum-security remand centre.

He said it would cost about $4 million to convert the centre — formerly known as the Brannen Lake School for Boys.

The attorney-general said the facility would handle 90 to 100 prisoners, the largest percentage of whom would be minimum-risk, and would serve the Vancouver Island area north from Duncan.

Gardom made the statements after meeting earlier with Nanaimo citizens who complained they hadn't been consulted about the project.

He said community input would be considered.

The attorney-general said information about the project had been public for about three months and meetings with community leaders had taken place.

The new institution, if approved, would help alleviate overcrowding at the Vancouver Island Regional Correctional Centre near Victoria, Gardom said.

Conversion of the centre was recommended late last year in a report prepared by a committee headed by Warren Lane, a retired inspector of corrections facilities.

ment will be forced to raise interest rates now in an effort to attract foreign capital.

The dollar has been in a decline for the last 15 months, falling from a peak value of $1.03 U.S. in late 1976 to a 45-year low of 88.9 cents U.S. last week. (See Canadian dollar background story on page 10.)

It appears that a good share of the recent U.S. stock market decline can be attributed to a concern over the dollar.

"The way the dollar has been going down, it just scares the hell out of anyone who owns dollar assets — and that includes plenty of Europeans," says one American economist.

However, there is no indication U.S. officials will try to stop the dollar's decline. But the federal reserve and others are believed to be advising the treasury department to adopt an intervention policy that would put moderate sums into the market every day.

This would be a shift from current policy, adopted on Jan. 4, 1978, by which the United States joins with other nations to counter "disorderly markets."

$200M Ottawa Loan Just a Drop In Bucket

OTTAWA (CP) — The $200 million in United States funds the government is borrowing from Canada's chartered banks is such a trivial amount that its impact on the value of the dollar can be little more than psychological, say bank officials.

Bankers view the move as a prelude to bigger things to come, said Jim Webber, a Toronto-Dominion Bank economist, in an interview Wednesday.

Webber said speculation in the banking community was that the government is close to announcing that it will borrow between $1 billion and $4 billion in long-term funds either in New York or on the European market.

When Finance Minister Jean Chretien announced Monday that the government was moving to draw $200 million of the $1.5 billion credit it had arranged with the chartered banks, he acknowledged it was only an interim measure to support the sagging dollar on world currency markets. He said Canadians could expect foreign borrowings, but refused to release details.

"Two hundred million dollars is a trivial amount, really, when you consider how much changes hands on the Eurodollar market every day," Webber said. "The idea is that it could have a psychological effect.

This week's borrowing is considered a short-term loan. The government made a special arrangement with nine of the country's chartered banks last fall to have $1.5 billion available as standby credit to be used as needed to support the dollar on world markets.

A short-term loan of this type works and—in theory—can prop up the 89-cent Canadian dollar this way:

—Chretien gives the chartered banks four days notice that he intends to draw out $200 million from the government's standby credit in United States dollars.

—Each bank participating in the fund instructs its traders in Europe to get the best price they can on the European market for its share of the $200 million.

—The money then goes to Chretien-or, in actual practice, to the Bank of Canada. The government pays interest five-eighths of one per cent higher than the rate the chartered banks had to pay to secure the money.

In the case of this week's loan, the interest charged was 6⅝ per cent, or $40,000 a day. Meanwhile the government still has to pay a standby fee of about $13,000 a day in order to keep its $13 billion in standby credit at the chartered banks.

—Once it has the $200 million, the Bank of Canada puts it into Canada's foreign exchange reserve. This means the money can be used to buy Canadian dollars back from other nations which feel they have a glut of Canadian currency and are trying to get rid of it.

—By having this money available to buy back Canadian dollars when foreign traders appear uninterested in them, the government can generate at least some demand for Canadian currency. As long as there is demand, the price of the dollar is not likely to drop too far too fast.

The problem is that $200 million in U.S. funds does not go very far in buying back unpopular Canadian dollars on the world market.

"This is why we (bankers) are expecting the government to look to a big long-term loan fairly soon," said Webber.

He said such a loan would be unusual for Canada.

Canada has done its previous borrowing inside the country, except in 1968 when it went to the International Monetary Fund for a loan.

However, the effect of this week's borrowing will not be evident in the report because it has not had time to work its way into the system.

Saturday's Man

the Bay

The Bay would like to introduce you to a new kind of shop . . . and a new kind of shopping. It's called Saturday's Man. And that's who it's for. The man who values his leisure time . . . and wants to spend it in style.

Saturday's Man is a shop filled with casual, coordinated separates for the leisurely life. Clothes that make you look your best . . . for tennis, for golf, or for just plain taking it easy. Some Just Enter For the Hell of It

The Central Saanich Cross-Country is very dirty and slightly dotty but contestants have a rousing time thrashing and splashing their way through the rolling countryside

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Even if Saturday's weather is fine and sunny, hundreds of residents and visitors are certain to get wet.

In fact they'll be soaked. And muddy. Perhaps scratched and bruised. And probably more than a little tired.

But, strange as it seems to the uninitiated, that's all part of the fun in the Central Saanich Cross-Country Run, an event which started off in a relatively small way in 1968 and now attracts a huge field of athletes.

Last year there were 800 youngsters and adults in the eight classes; this year there could be even more.

Busloads of competitors from Vancouver-area track clubs and others from Washington will be coming over to compete against the local talent.

They are the dedicated types who grimly relish the loneliness of the long-distance runner and take their year-round training seriously.

But there are other free spirits with a more cavalier approach, who enter for the hell of it. And this is one of the things that gives the Central Saanich run its slightly dotty reputation.

Meet director Malcolm McAvity recalled that last year one such impromptu group — he believes they were provincial government employees — entered a team calling themselves "The Dusty Sneakers."

"They didn't place all that well but they had fun," he added.

Then there's the traditional rivalry between staffers of the Sidney Review and a team from the Armed Forces diving unit, which also competes in the Sidney whaleboat race.

"They always taunt each other, boasting how hard they've been training and what they're going to do to the opposition."

This kind of spirit reflects the philosophy of the man who began the whole thing, the late Basil ("Nip") Parker, a teacher at Glenlyon School.

McAvity, a former student of Parker's, says despite being an amputee he was a formidable participant in sport and outdoor activities of every kind.

In starting the Central Saanich run, Parker was trying to provide something for students other than the stars who predictably made all the teams, he said.

It was to be something anyone could strive for, basically a fun event, and that's how it is to this day.

McAvity said unlike some so-called cross-country races which are run mainly over roads, this one is almost entirely over open country.

There are fences to clamber over, inches-deep mud to plow through and a notorious water obstacle — Hagan Creek — to negotiate, twice.

In the past, more than one runner has come to momentary grief in the rain-swollen creek, emerging soaked to the skin.

The course for the open men's class and the juvenile boys (16 and 17-year-olds) is five miles but for all others it's 2¾ miles, except the bantam girls (11 and 12) who run two miles.

The event starts at 1 p.m. Saturday in Centennial Park on Wallace Drive, and most of the races finish at picturesque St. Stephen's Church, St. Stephen's Road (off Mount Newton Cross Road).

Much of the action takes place over the scenic fields of Woodwyn Farm on the West Saanich Road. McAvity says two good observation spots are the weir on the farm — "it's always fun to see them splashing through the creek" — and the western end of Mount Newton Cross Road, with a fine view of the whole Hagan Valley.

Afterwards there's tea and prizegiving, with Central Saanich Mayor Jean Butler handing out trophies and masses of ribbons, including special awards for the veterans (over age 40 for men, and 35 for women) who complete the rugged course more or less intact.

Any rash soul beset by spring madness who feels like having a go should bear in mind that entries — 75 cents per individual, $3 per team of six runners — have to be in by 12:45 p.m. Saturday.

May the course be with you.

13% Hike In Saanich Police Bill

Saanich police board approved a record $3,575,000 budget Wednesday, an increase of more than 13 per cent over last year.

The hefty increase is a matter of concern for board chairman Mayor Mel Couvelier but he said today he doubts the budget can be pared any further.

Only $65,000 was cut during Wednesday's seven-hour session, which the mayor described as the most exhaustive budget screening the board has ever conducted.

"But I am confident we have trimmed every piece of fat that can be trimmed unless we are actually going to make cutbacks in the strength of the police department, and I don't think anyone is advocating that," Couvelier added.

The 13-per-cent-plus increase upsets council's general 1978 budget strategy, which has instructed municipal staff to keep expenditures to the 1977 level plus a six-per-cent allowance for increased salaries.

Couvelier noted that $3.1 million or 87 per cent of the total police budget goes to salaries.

"As a consequence we are locked into these increases."

But he expressed confidence that other municipal departments will bring in their budgets at well under the police level, adding: "They'll just damn well have to."

The police board chopped a proposal by Chief Bob Peterson to hire four civilians this year so that officers now doing clerical chores could be switched to police duties.

Couvelier told members he would have difficulty persuading council that the hirings are justified at a time when other department heads have been told to hold the line.

Based on eight months' expenditure the salaries of the four would total $34,000, but Couvelier said the full-year costs in 1979 would be $54,000.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Today we are taxed for welfare and to support the unemployed. Can you tell me what country first decided that the poor and unemployable were a social responsibility. What is the historical background. J.B.R.

A. England was the first to recognize the unemployed and unemployable were a social responsibility. During the reign of Henry VIII (1509-47) large cities raised money to look after the poor. During the Stuart dynasty (1603-1701) legislation was passed making it a duty. The Privy Council of the time saw to it that magistrates raised taxes to assist the poor.

Second Look At Parade Ban On Youngsters

Angry members of the Victorian Celebrations Society Wednesday night directed the executive to take a second look at its ban on children in the Victoria Day parade.

President Ozzie Osborne said the ban would be reviewed because of the strong objections of some members and the many letters and phone calls of protest.

But he told a stormy meeting of the society at Victoria city hall he favored the ban.

Osborne was heckled throughout his speech as he said he had promised the downtown merchants there would be a separate children's parade on Saturday, May 20, before the Victoria Day parade two days later.

Osborne said the merchants wanted to get involved in the festival, offering prizes to the youngsters after the Saturday parade, which would be four blocks long.

He said the Victoria Day parade on Monday, May 22, was something for adults — children should have a parade of their own.

But several VCS members shouted: "They want to be in the adult parade. They look forward to it all year."

Other members said that if anyone has to be removed from the parade it should be some of the American bands which come to Victoria to earn points to qualify them for the Rose Bowl parade.

"Remove the American bands, not the Victoria youngsters," one member shouted.

Osborne several times had to say: "Shut up, let me finish. You've had your say."

Osborne said the executive had tried to compromise by lowering the age to 12 for the Victoria Day parade from the original announcement of 15.

However, if the age was reduced any further the children's parade would not attract many people, Osborne said.

He said the executive will review the decision but he will continue to argue in favor of separate parades.

At the start of the meeting letters from baton-twirling groups and other citizens were read out, all protesting the ban on youngsters.

Each letter was greeted by loud applause from the members.

However, when the debate began, Osborne said the question should go back to the executive because a full debate by the members would take several hours.

The meeting voted 24-11 to refer the question back to the executive provided it would review the decision.

"Yes, there will be a review. This is a positive motion," Osborne said.

Oil Spilled In Harbor

An estimated maximum of 500 gallons of bunker oil was spilled on the Inner Harbor upland area and shoreline early this morning during tank filling operations at the Gulf Oil bulk storage plant on Songhees Road.

The company's Victoria manager, Bob Porter, said only about 20 to 30 gallons entered the water and the area was immediately boomed to prevent the spill from spreading.

Clean-up work was expected to be completed today, he said, but because this involves digging it will take somewhat longer to re-fill and restore the site.

He said the spill was caused by "operating failure" at about 8 a.m. today, as one tank was being filled from another.

BREAD RISING

Bread prices are going up in Victoria.

The wholesale price has risen 1.75 cents a loaf but at the retail level the price will be about 4 cents higher.

McDonald's will bring in higher prices on Tuesday and McGavins has already increased prices.

1,700 Coming To Decry Job Lack

The B.C. Federation of Labor expects to bring about 1,700 people in about 10 buses to Victoria from the Lower Mainland for an unemployment demonstration on March 30, Victoria Labor Council was told Wednesday night.

David Rice, chairman of the council's unemployment committee, said the federation has been told by ferry authorities that total is the maximum the ferries can accommodate.

He said the federation is negotiating with B.C. Ferries to see if arrangements can be made to bring more people across for the demonstration, slated to coincide with the opening of the legislative session.

Rice said the plan is for the trade unionists and the unemployed, including those from Vancouver Island, to gather at Memorial Arena and then parade through downtown streets to the front of the Legislative Buildings prior to the opening of the session at 3 p.m.

The demonstration is part of the federation's publicity campaign to make jobs the top political issue in the country.

200 Fight To Save School

Parents of children attending Tolmie elementary school said Wednesday night they like their neighborhood school and asked trustees not to kill a good thing.

The request came during a quiet public hearing to discuss possible closure of the school.

About 200 people attended the meeting, organized by the Greater Victoria school board to gather facts and get input from parent and teachers who will be affected by the board's decision to reduce space next year due to declining enrolment.

Tolmie was first on the list of six elementary schools singled out for possible closure next year.

School superintendent Allan Stables chaired the meeting, which was attended by six of the nine Victoria school trustees.

After a factual presentation of the school facilities by Evan Oakley, administrative assistant to Stables, the trustees collected several briefs from staff and parents for examination.

'Tough Marbles'

By AL FORREST

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce created a monster when it helped found the Victorian Celebrations Society, former chamber president Helen Beirnes said today.

She said the society was created to unite groups interested in Victoria celebrations but instead it is carrying on feuds with all other tourist groups in the city.

Beirnes was replying to VCS president Ozzie Osborne who earlier this week criticized the chamber and the Visitors Information Centre for using Victorian Days costumes during a tourist blitz of Alberta and not inviting him along.

"All I can say to Mr. Osborne is: tough marbles," Miss Beirnes said.

"We didn't have room for figureheads on the blitz, we were all too busy. The only people we invited were workers. We invited Fred Usher, who is a director of the society."

She said the society does not have any exclusive right to the Victorian Days costumes because they were created to be worn by everyone.

"I thought the society was complaining because not enough people were wearing the costumes. Now they are complaining because we wore them on the tourist blitz," she said.

"I think the society should get on with the job of promoting Victoria and they should forget their own little power trips."

Miss Beirnes said the Victorian Days celebration was created by the chamber, which established the Victorian Days Association. There was also a Victoria Celebrations Committee operating separately in the city.

The two organizations merged to form the society and to bring unity to the May festival.

"The organization was founded to end quarrels like this but instead we seem to have created a monster. I hope the society will end this petty bickering and start working for the good of the city."

The VCS came under fire a week ago when information centre president Ted Balderson said quarrels among local tourist groups seemed to have ended, with the exception of the VCS. He said he hoped the society would begin working in harmony with other Victoria groups.

Osborne was replying to this charge when he complained about not being invited on the tourist blitiz of Alberta.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market continued fractionally higher in active mid-afternoon trading.

Volume of trading by 2 p.m. totalled 1.91 million shares compared with 2.13 million at the same time Wednesday.

Advances led declined 165 to 115 with 229 issues unchanged.

Among industrials, Calgary Power A climbed ⅝ to $36⅜, Canadian Corporate Management A ½ to $33, Pacific Petroleums ½ to $38, Bow Valley Industries ½ to $22½ and Canadian Imperial Bank ⅜ to $26⅜.

Cominco dropped ⅝ to $23⅜, Texasgulf ½ to $16⅝, Canron ⅜ to $22⅞, Torstar B ⅜ to $13¼ and Norcen Energy Resources ⅛ to $15⅛.

Pamour Porcupine Mines A rose ⅜ to $6, Roman Corp. ¼ to $23¾ and Kerr Addison Mines A ¼ to $11. Denison Mines declined 1 to $59½ and Pine Point ⅜ to $18½.

PanCanadian Petroleum was up ⅜ to $33, Coseka Resources ⅜ to $6½ and Canada Northwest Land ¼ to $10⅞. Siebens Oil and Gas slipped ⅞ to $28⅛ and Skye Resources ¼ to $7½.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were slightly higher in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EST was 294,200 shares, compared with 268,600 shares traded up to the same time Wednesday.

Power Corp. A climbed ¼ to $10¼, Toronto Dominion Bank ⅛ to $17¼, Alberta Gas Trunk Line A ¼ to $15, Alcan ⅛ to $25⅜ and Moore Corp. ⅝ tnorcen Energy Resources dipped ⅜ to $15⅛, Domtar Inc. ¼ to $14¼, Bank Canadian National ⅛ to $14¾ and Inco A ¼ to $15⅜.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today, failing to generate much enthusiasm over a steadier showing by the dollar in foreign exchange.

Trading was fairly quiet. NYSE volume came to 13.24 million shares at mid-afternoon.

The dollar began a modest rally late Wednesday after hitting new lows against several leading foreign currencies. But traders seemed skeptical that it was ready to launch any significant rebound.

Analysts also said the market was restrained by uncertainty over whether striking members of the United Mine Workers will approve a proposed contract settlement when they vote on it this weekend.

Ambac Industries led the active list, climbing three to 44⅛ on word of a merger agreement between the company and United Technologies.

United Technologies rose ¾ to 34⅝.

London

LONDON (CP) — Reduced reserve figures sent the London stock market sharply lower near the close of light trading. The Financial Times index was down 8.2 to 435.6 an hour before the close. Leading industrials sagged, while gold issues firmed with higher international bullion prices. Canadian stocks gained.

FLOODWATER CLEAN-UP will cost about $5 million and take four to six months at the Safe Harbor Dam on the Susquehanna River. Recent flooding caused water to pour into the main generator room, saturating the electric circuits in the generators. the copper windings in each generator has to be removed, dried, and checked for damage.

8,000 Seats for Charter

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Air has allocated 8,000 airline seats to a charter program that will begin in the summer, the company said Wednesday.

Prices for the program will be $199 for a return ticket from Vancouver to Toronto and $215 for a return ticket from Vancouver to Montreal.

The airline said that the program will offer 20 departures from Vancouver to Toronto and Montreal destinations and 10 Vancouver-bound departures from Montreal and Toronto.

A CP Air spokesman said most of the charter seats would be on B-747 aircraft with the remainder of seats on DC-8 aircraft.

Boeing Seeks New Buyers

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — In the same way that auto manufacturers lure buyers with a variety of models and options, the world's largest commercial airplane builder is campaigning for its share of a $75 billion 10-year market.

The Boeing Co. sales and engineering executives are presenting three new designs to foreign and domestic airline companies. They include:

—The 757, a twin-engine transport with the body of a 727 trijet, new high-technology wings and advanced power plants. The plane would carry about 160 passengers.

—The 767, also a twin-engine aircraft, with about 200 seats, although different body lengths might provide seating for 180 to 210 or so passengers.

—The 777, a trijet designed for longer ranges than the 757 or 767, with a capacity of 200 to 210 passengers.

Whether the company will move ahead with one or all of the programs is unknown. Boeing has not had a new transport project since the start of the 747 superjet of 1966.

Airlines would not only have the option of one of the three designs but also of engine selection. Four prospective engine builders are General Electric, Pratt Whitney, SNECMA of France and Rolls-Royce of Britain.

There appears to be sizeable markets in the next 20 years for all three design categories. Some experts have suggested world airlines will need to commit about $75 billion for new technology equipment during the next decade.

Prices probably are not firm yet, but using the 767 as an example, it can be assumed that the twin-engine airplane would cost about $21 million to $23 million in 1977 dollars.

By the time deliveries might begin in about 1982, the price probably would climb to the $25-million-plus range, reflecting inflation.

Arts $ Million a Mystery

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will spend an extra $1.45 million this year supporting the arts, but no one seems to know exactly what the money is going to be used for.

State Secretary John John Roberts told the Commons Wednesday that there will be "an increase in the grants portion to be undertaken under the Festival Canada program."

He said this allocation had been approved by treasury board too late to be included in the government spending estimates for fiscal 1978-1979 tabled this week.

However, some mystery surrounds Festival Canada, to be formally unveiled by Roberts next week.

Several officials in his department refused to discuss it Wednesday, although a press officer finally confirmed that Festival Canada is merely the name for this year's government celebrations of July 1, Dominion Day.

Asked what grants under this program would have to do with the arts, the spokesman said, "I have no idea. I haven't a clue what he idea. I haven't a clue what he (Roberts) was talking about."

During the last week, Roberts has been attacked in the Commons by David MacDonald (PC—Egmont) for cuts in government support to theatres and the arts in general.

Roberts has said Canada Council financing for theatres has increased, but that theatres have been hard hit because they are "peculiarly subject to the impact of inflation."

Under-the-Table Deals Described

TORONTO (CP) — Crown Attorney Roderick McLeod told an Ontario Supreme Court jury Wednesday about what he described as under-the-table payoffs and rigged bids by several Canadian businessmen and companies which increased the costs of dredging contracts.

"Instead of submitting honest, competitive bids, the companies charged got together in advance of the tendering date and agreed among themselves to fix bids," McLeod said.

McLeod said the successful bidder on dredging tenders would be pre-arranged by the companies submitting bids.

He said the successful company would make as high a bid as it could without risking loss of the contract. The other companies involved in the agreeement would submit even higher bids or no bid at all in return for a payoff from the successful bidder.

"The government was misled into believing that these were competitive tenders," McLeod said. "The amounts of the payoffs were added to the cost of doing business and were passed on to the public.

Eleven men and eight companies are charged with conspiring to defraud the federal government, province of Ontario, Toronto Board of Harbor Commissioners and Hamilton Harbor Commissioners of more than $4.2 million.

The defendants are Harold McNamara, Sydney Cooper, Gerard Filion, Louis Rochette, Frank Hamata, Albert Gill, John Bahen, Hugh Martin, Jean Simard, Bruno Desjardins, James Jarrell, McNamara Corp. Ltd., Marine Industries Ltd., Sceptre Dredging Ltd., Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd. (formerly T. C. Gordon (Nova Scotia) Ltd.), Peter Kiewit Sons Co. of Canada Ltd., J. P. Porter Co. Ltd., Richelieu Dredging Corp. Inc. and C. A. Pitts Enginerring Construction Ltd., C. A. Pitts General Contractors Ltd.

McLeod said that Simard, Desjardins and Martin, all senior officials in the companies charged, often stayed in the background and had no direct involvement in the bid-fixing.

He said that McNamara and Cooper were more involved in the mechanics of the bid-fixing and the other defendants participated on a smaller scale.

McLeod said that Horace Grant Rindress, formerly president of J. P. Porter Co. Ltd., gave statements to police in return for an agreement that his evidence would not be used against him and that he would not be prosecuted in Ontario, provided his information was accurate.

He also said that Albin Louis Quinlan, formerly general manager of marine operations for McNamara Corp. Ltd., Roland Thibault, formerly general manager in charge of dredging for Marine Industries Ltd., and Robert Joseph Schneider, formerly president and director of Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd., had given statements on the understanding that their evidence would not be used against them.

Quinlan, Thibault and Schneider were not granted immunity from prosecution, he said.

Caution Stressed

OTTAWA (CP) — Both a free trade area with the U.S. and unilateral free trade are discarded as viable options for Canada in a background paper prepared for the Economic Council of Canada.

The paper, prepared by Quebec economist Roma Dauphin and released today, says central Canada, and Quebec in particular, will be hurt by adoption of either of the two policies.

The study was conducted by Dauphin, a University of Sherbrooke professor, as part of research for a 1975 report for the council on commercial policy.

The council's final report, however, entitled Looking Outward, concluded that there should be a move toward freer trade and viewed favorabley a Canada-U.S. free trade area.

But Dauphin says a free trade area with the U.S. would subject Canadian manufacturers to "exploitation" by U.S. counterparts. It would also mean a drop in real wages across the country and price increases in natural resources that would bring larger incomes to resource owners.

LYSOL TESTS CAN'T ALTER THE TASTE

SASKATOON (CP) — An official of the company that produces it said Wednesday efforts to make Lysol disinfectant spray more upalatable as a beverage have proved fruitless.

Albert Hodges, vice-president of Starling Drug Ltd. of Aurora, Ont., said efforts were launched several months ago in response to reports that people in northwest Saskatchewan were using it as an intoxicant.

"We've really exhausted our efforts" to find a different method to denature Lysol that would further limit its appeal as a beverage, he said.

8,000 Seats Reserved For Cut-Rate Flights

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Air has allocated 8,000 airline seats to a charter program that will begin in the summer, the company said Wednesday.

Prices for the program will be $199 for a return ticket from Vancouver to Toronto and $215 for a return ticket from Vancouver to Montreal.

The airline said that the program will offer 20 departures from Vancouver to Toronto and Montreal destinations and 10 Vancouver-bound departures from Montreal and Toronto.

A CP Air spokesman said most of the charter seats would be on B-747 aircraft with the remainder of seats on DC-8 aircraft.

Racism Protest

HAMILTON (CP) — A small group of demonstrators gathered outside a downtown shopping mall Wednesday to protest the deportation of Jamaican domestic workers.

Members of the Committee Against Racism said the group was trying to bring to public attention the plight of Jamaican women who immigrated 10 years ago at the request of the Canadian government.

Group member Sherry Adams said about 2,000 Jamaican women were asked to come to Canada to ease a shortage of domestic help.

She said the women were advised by Canadian and Jamaican officials to conceal the fact they had husbands and children.

Now that the family ties have been discovered, the women are being deported, she said, adding that this is a cruel and callous way to deal with them.

Pension Boost Speedily Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — In a rare show of co-operation in what many consider an election year, the Commons took only 40 minutes Wednesday to approve a bill giving a pension break to about 100 Second World War veterans who escaped from prisoner-of-war camps or evaded capture.

Normally a government bill takes weeks or months to get approval.

The bill gives the same pension break to about 200 First World veterans who spent months or years in PoW camps.

The legislation is reactive to April 1, 1976. Jack Marshall (PC—Humber-St. George-St. Barbe) said most of the veterans should get cheques between $1,300 and $2,600 in retroactive pay.

Veterans Affairs Minister Dan MacDonald said the average age of the 200 First World War veterans affected is 82.

The legislation puts the evaders and the First World War PoWs in the same footing as those of the Second World War.

Under the legislation a single veteran who was in PoW camp or evaded capture for 90 days will receive $60 a month or 10 per cent of his disability pension, which ever is larger.

The Canadian Pension Commission said it will pay the pension to those eligible veterans it can identify. But it hoped eligible veterans also will apply.

The idea behind extra compensation for former PoWs, long demanded by veterans' associations, is that they suffered more than others and their lives have been effected by that suffering.

The government long ago agreed to special compensation for Hong Kong PoWs, saying they suffered severely. Experts have noted that they suffer from severe premature aging, more so than other PoWs.

Documents Stolen

MONTREAL (CP) — Dale Thomson, a McGill university professor seeking the federal Liberal nomination in the federal riding of Westmount, says his campaign headquarters were broken into last week and documents stolen.

Locks on the doors were apparently picked and telephone wires tampered with, Thomson said. The culprits made off with lists of names and telephone numbers.

"Whether it was some kind of political hanky-panky or a prank by some kids or whatever, we have no idea," the political science professor said.

The theft was discovered late Wednesday morning last week when campaign workers opened up the office. Police are investigating, Thomson said.

Police would not comment Wednesday night.

"I wouldn't accuse one of my opponents," Thomson said. "I'm going to be on the up and up and I'm assuming my opponents are too.

The other contenders for the candidacy, lawyers Mark Felfer and Don Johnston and insurance agent Richard Rhone, were unavailable for comment.

"I think somebody just went in, grabbed what they could and ran," Thomson said. "We had all the documents in one or two places.

"Whether they knew what they were taking, I don't know."

Former cabinet minister C. M. (Bud) Drury, who has held the mainly wealthy, English-speaking riding since 1962, announced his resignation from politics Jan. 27.

Blais Ducking OHIP Questions

By KEN POLE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais skated all over the place Wednesday in an attempt to avoid answering questions about the RCMP obtaining confidential information on psychiatry patients from Ontario Health Insurance Plan files.

He was being chased, unsuccessfully, by Ontario Conservative Bill Jarvis, whose questions in Parliament were prompted by a report that the Mounties had been asked by federal government departments to get their hands on information about applicants for security-sensitive posts in the public service.

The RCMP got the information, despite the supposed confidentiality of OHIP files and Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurtry said it was "an interference with the privacy of individuals that is totally unacceptable."

Jarvis, the Tories' shadow cabinet watchdog on the solicitor-general's department, asked in the Commons which departments were involved and who had authorized the RCMP check.

"No directions were given on the part of any department of government to obtain the information in the way in which this information was obtained," Blais replied initially.

Jarvis then asked whether the RCMP officer who told McMurtry about the incident was "lying or misleading the attorney-general" and followed this up by suggesting that if a direct order hadn't been given, then the two government departments certainly were at least aware of the file search.

"The information was obtained as a result of the activities which are conducted by the RCMP security service in obtaining security clearance of federal civil servants," replied Blais, who has been under fire almost every minute of his month-old tenure in the solicitor-general's portfolio.

"In obtaining such clearance, information is sought on matters relating to mental stability. That, indeed, was the direction which was given to the RCMP when obtaining clearance. ..."

Jarvis seized on this seeming admission that direct orders had been given, asking again whether "at least one or, likely, two federal departments" knew about the search.

"Who knew about it? Which department and under whose authorization was this? Surely the solicitor-general cannot avoid answering that question if he has any integrity at all."

Blais said that he wasn't trying to avoid the question.

"The question is quite clear and the reply is quite clear. There was no specific direction from any government department."

Undeterred, Jarvis asked a third time whether the search was done with the prospective employers' knowledge.

"At this time," Blais said, qualifying his answer even more, "I have no indication that there was any knowledge in the department that information was obtained from OHIP files. ...

"I say there was no direction from any federal department."

SMILING SAMSON TALKS TO PROBE

MONTREAL (CP) — Former RCMP constable Robert Samson, who took the stand in handcuffs, flashed a broad smile Wednesday as Mr. Justice David C. McDonald asked for his views on how a security service should be set up.

"I never thought, Mr. Chairman, that I would be consulted," the 32-year-old Samson told McDonald, who is chairman of a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing.

But Samson said he'd think about the question and offer his views later.

"I'm always willing to leave my present residence, even temporarily," he added.

He has spent the last two years in St. Vincent de Paul, a dank federal penitentiary that was closed in 1971, then reopened and renamed Laval Institution.

He was sentenced in 1976 to seven years for placing a bomb — which exploded prematurely, slightly injuring him — near the Montreal home of supermarket executive Mitzi Dobrin.

Although Samson refuses to say whey he set the bomb, he has said he did "plenty worse things" while on the force.

TOM TUTKO
. . . here March 13

Tom Tutko describes himself as a "frustrated entertainer — a speech looking for a place to happen."

A professor at San Jose State University in California, Tutko is also an accomplished writer who has been in the field of clinical and sports phsychology for 16 years. He is the author of six books in his field, including his recent best seller — Winning is Everything and Other American Myths.

Tutko won't be writing on Monday, March 13, but he will be a "speech that has found a place to happen."

The place will be the Empress Hotel. The occasion is the annual Victoria Sports Celebrity Dinner and Tutko today confirmed his appearance as a guest speaker at the affair that each year honors Victoria-area athletes, teams and personalities.

Described by others as a polished, humorous and entertaining speaker, Tutko will head a list of guests that includes football's Jerry Tagge, soccer's John Best, baseball's Dick Vertlieb and wrestler Gene Kiniski.

Proceeds from the dinner, co-sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Saanich and the Greater Victoria Sports Council, will again go to assist Kiwanis charities. Tickets, at $17.50 each, are available from members of the Sports Council and from the Sportcaster and sports departments at CJVI, CFAX, Colonist and Times.

Receiving awards during the evening will be female and male athletes-of-the-year, a team-of-the-year and the persons selected to receive Sportsman of the Year and Distinguished Service trophies.

Times News Services

The effort expended had little to do with the results produced in several National Hockey League games Wednesday night and the cry "we wuz robbed" could be heard from more than one dressing room.

It was heard at Vancouver, where the Smythe-Division-leading Chicago Black Hawks outshot the Canucks 23-18, including a 12-4 edge in the final period, and lost 3-2.

"I thought we were the best team by a country mile," insisted Detroit coach Bobby Kromm after his Red Wings outshot New York Rangers 36-27 but ended up the losers by a 3-2 score. "I didn't think the Rangers played well at all tonight. We did all the damage, but they got the two points."

At Atlanta, Flames coach Fred Creighton saw his team outshoot Buffalo Sabres 40-30 and lose 4-3. "Not much went right tonight," said Creighton. "In this hockey game we deserved a lot more than we got."

The story was much the same at Toronto, where Philadelphia Flyers outhustled the Maple Leafs early in the game and outshot them 33-29 but lost 3-2 and at Bloomington, where Minnesota North Stars had a 41-25 advantage in shots but were beaten 3-2 by St. Louis Blues.

There appeared to be no argument over Montreal Canadiens' 5-2 win over the Penguins at Pittsburgh after Montreal had outshot the home side 39-33.

Two second-period goals carried the Canucks to their third triumph in five starts this season against the Black Hawks.

The second-place Canucks, with 48 points in 62 games, got goals from Garry Monahan and Chris Oddleifson and an empty-net goal by Hilliard Graves to pick up the victory. Ted Bulley, with his 15th tally of the year, and J. P. Bordeleau, with the Chicago net empty, replied for the Hawks, who remain 16 points ahead of the Canucks.

Following a scoreless first period, the Canucks took a 2-0 lead with the unanswered second-period goals by Monahan and Oddleifson.

Chicago narrowed the score to 2-1 early in the third period on Bulley's deflection with Chicago holding a man advantage and it wasn't until Graves took some of the pressure off with an empty-net goal with 42 seconds remaining to give Vancouver a 3-1 lead.

Chicago coach Bob Pulford pulled Esposito again with 17 seconds remaining and it paid off as Bordeleau tucked a loose puck behind Ridley with four seconds remaining.

"It was like a boxer landing all the important punches but getting knocked out in the 15th round," Detroit's Kromm lamented.

The knockout punch came when Rangers captain Phil Esposito sank the rebound of Ron Greschner's shot at 8:59 of the third period for his second goal of the game and 25th goal on the year.

Gorge Takes Third

Gorge Molsons took over sole possession of third place in the first division by blanking Nanaimo City 3-0 in a Vancouver Island Soccer League match Wednesday night at Royal Athletic Park.

Stubborn defensive play, led by Bagisha Bains, coupled with soem fancy shooting to bring in the victory.

Goaltender John Iruretagoyena claimed the shutout while Dan Green, Greg Booth and Mark Robb anchored the offence.

Green opened scoring at 12 minutes on a pass from Robb and Mike Sails and Booth connected at 68 minutes, kicking the ball in off a Nanaimo defender.

Robb completed scoring by faking out the defence, picking up a high pass from Robb and balsting in a picture-book effort at 88 minutes.

Gorge now has 18 points, one more than fourth-place Duncan Powel's Men's Wear and one less than second-place University of Victoria Vikings.

Meanwhile, league play this weekend shifts to third-round action in the annual Jackson Cup competition.

Vikings tackle Nanaimo United of the second division in the opening match at 2:15 p.m. Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

All other matches are scheduled for Sunday and will appear in the Sports Menu.

UVic Bid Starts

CALGARY — There had to be some apprehension for coach Mike Gallo and the University of Victoria Vikettes as they awaited today's opening round of the Canadian collegiate women's basketball championship tournament.

Three times the Vikettes have rolled through an undefeated regular season to the Canada West University Athletic Association title. Twice they have lost one game in the national final and missed the crown.

Tonight they launch another attempt to go all the way to the national championship, tackling Bishop's Gaiterettes, champions of the Quebec University Athletic Association in a first-round game.

Mulcahy Gives DataTech Lift In B.C. Hoop Playoff

The good news is that Dave Mulcahy has been a standout for Victoria DataTech in recent weeks; and the bad news is that guard Brian MacKenzie is a doubtful starter for Saturday's second game in the B.C. senior "A" men's basketball finals here Saturday night.

DataTech, who defeated Burnaby Bullets 86-71 in the opening game of the provincial final at Vancouver on Sunday, can take the B.C. title with a win here on the weekend.

The second game is set for the University of Victoria McKinnon gymnasium Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and, if a third game is necessary, it will take place at the McKinnon gym Sunday at 1 p.m.

Mulcahy in the last six games for DataTech has averaged 20 points while being the club's leading rebounder. He had 20 points in the first series game while Bob Burrows had 21 and Jim Duddridge 17.

Brent Mullin is credited with playing a big part in the DataTech win as well as he held Burnaby's import, Neil Bieker, to 10 points.

Coach Walt Burrows feels that if his club can up with the same type of defensive performance that marked the first game, they should advance along the playoff trail to the nationals.

MacKenzie suffered a knee injury midway through the second half of the game in Vancouver. The full extent of the injury is not yet known, but it is feared that if the diagnosis is ligament damage, then MacKenzie may be lost to the club for the balance of the season.

University of Victoria Jayvee women will meet the UBC women in a playoff game as a preliminary Saturday at 6:30. Second game of that series will take place Sunday.

Cats Get Caught; Robertson Injured

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

PORTLAND — Victoria Cougars may have lost more than a point after playing to a 3-3 Western Canada Hockey League tie with the Portland Winter Hawks here Wednesday night.

Geordie Robertson, the Cougars' leading scorer who just returned to action five games ago, may be sidelined again.

The 18-year-old centre, who scored his 48th goal of the season earlier in the game, reinjured his ankle in the final seconds.

A tendon injury to the same ankle kept Robertson on the shelf for 11 games recently.

Robertson twisted his ankle when he took a faceoff that had been called in the Victoria zone with only three seconds left in the game. The Victoria team doctor was to check the injury out today and see if Robertson will be available to play in tonight's rematch here at the Coliseum.

Jumping off to a 3-0 first-period lead, the Cougars were in excellent position to salt away another road victory. In the end, however, they were hanging on for dear life to protect the tie.

Now with seven wins, two ties and only one loss in their last 10 roads games, Wednesday's game before 5,042 fans turned around abruptly only seconds after Robertson had a glorious chance to put it away.

Ahead 3-1 after two periods, the Cougars did a good job of protecting their lead through to the ninth minute of the third period despite constant pressure from the Hawks, who had been humiliated 10-5 in Victoria the previous night.

Then, just before the nine-minute mark, Robertson found himself unmarked in front of Portland goalie Mark Hunter. He took his time and fired a shot that Hunter blocked. Play immediately swung into the Victoria zone and fiery Doug Lecuyer scored his 37th goal of the season to greatly revive the Portland team.

Instead of leading 4-1, the Cougars, in a matter of seconds, led by only one, 3-2.

Another Portland break produced the tying goal five minutes later but thanks to some sparkling goaltending by Steve Amiss, the Cougars held on.

Defenceman Larry Playfair climaxed Portland's comeback with the third goal. With Victoria again under pressure, Playfair fired a shot from the point that was wide of the Cougar goal. However, the puck struck Victoria defenceman Glen Cochrane and angled past Amiss.

Another defenceman, Keith Brown, scored Portland's first goal, the only one in the second period. Kim Spencer and George Fritz were the other Victoria marksmen, scoring their goals in a span of 36 seconds.

Portland coach Ken Hodge replaced starting goalie Jerry Price with Hunter after the Fritz goal and the youngster from Edmonton came up with some key saves thereafter to keep the Hawks in position for the comeback.

Victoria coach Jack Shupe wasn't too thrilled with his teams' performance. While they checked well, they didn't hit. The Hawks took care of most of the heavy bodywork and in the final analysis, deprived Cougars of a much needed victory.

"I don't care how great the goaltending is, three goals is not enough to win if you play like our guys did in the final two periods," said Shupe.

Poor ice added to the problems for both teams, who stumbled through hectic moments in their own defensive zones, many times because of players constantly falling after running afoul of chips and cracks in the ice.

The point was good enough to keep Victoria in second place in the Western Division. They moved over to permit Seattle Breakers a share. The Breakers made their gain in Lethbridge by defeating the Broncos, 6-5.

New Westminster Bruins, fourth and last in the Western Dviision, are five points behind Victoria and Seattle after defeating Regina Pats 5-4 and in the only other tussle, Brandon Wheat Kings topped Billings Bighorns, 5-3.

Braves Lead Junior Series

CHEMAINUS — Saanich Braves took a clear lead in the best-of-seven Patterson Division championship series by downing Fuller Lake Flyers 6-2 in South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League playoff action here Wednesday night.

Murray McLaren scored two goals to set the pace for Braves, who lead the series 2-0. Steve Craig, Bruce Tuck, Tom King and Bill Adkin added single tallies for Saanich while Glen Naylor and Don Bodger replied for Flyers.

Ken Stanton blocked 35 shots on the Fuller Lake net and Geoff Murdoch of Braves made 29 saves.

The third game of the series is scheduled for Sunday at 1 p.m. in Fuller Lake Arena.

Meanwhile, Juan de Fuca King John's Gulls took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Peart Division consolation series by edging Lake Cowichan Baird's Trucking 7-6 at Lake Cowichan Arena.

The third game of that series is set for 8 p.m. Monday at Juan de Fuca Arena.

U.S. Won't Cancel Davis Cup Tourney

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — The U.S. Tennis Association has refused to cancel its sponsorship of the 1978 Davis Cup tennis tournament because of participation by South Africa.

However, association officials said they would ask South Africa to withdraw from Davis Cup competition in 1979.

The association's board of governors made the decision to stick with the Davis Cup after meeting with a NAACP group in Biloxi, where the association is holding its national convention.

SEVEN ISLANDERS ON B.C. REP TEAM

Six players and a substitute were selected from the Vancouver Island Rugby Union to play for British Columbia in an exhibition match against Queensland of Australia at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Burnaby's Swangard Stadium.

Gary Johnston, who will captain the provincial side, was picked from the Island along with K.C. Walt, Ray Rogers, Mick Eckhardt, Hans de Goede and Gary Grant.

Darryl Noulette was named as a substitute.

Scotia Girls Save Penny

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — The pressure is beginning to show on Penny Larocque, though it rarely was in evidence Wednesday night when the Nova Scotia crew climbed atop the Canadian women's curling championship.

"I was struggling, I was overthrowing. The girls (her front end) really kept me in the game," the Dartmouth skip said following her 9-5 victory over Yukon-Northwest Territories.

The Nova Scotia victory over Donna Alexander's rink from Whitehorse lifted the Maritimers into first place in the 11-rink, round-robin championship after nine rounds following a third-straight Alberta loss.

Betty Cole's Edmonton foursome, which had all but been conceded the national crown after winning its first five games, fell 12-7 in the evening draw to Newfoundland's Sue-Anne Bartlett from Labrador City.

The Alberta string of setbacks began against Nova Scotia on Tuesday night and continued Wednesday afternoon when Sheila Seltzer of London directed Ontario to a deserved 11-6 win over the Albertans.

Elsewhere Wednesday night, Manitoba's Cathy Pidzarko moved into second place behind the Nova Scotia rink when the Stony Mountain club tallied a decisive 9-3, seven-end win over Carole Topp's Quebec rink.

In other games, British Columbia, with Heather Naywood of Richmond calling the shots, downed Ontario 8-5 and Saskatchewan, represented by Charlene Goodwin of Saskatoon, drubbed Prince Edward Island's Gloria Basha of Charlottetown, 13-2. New Brunswick's Bathurst foursome led by Karen McDermott had the ninth-round bye.

In the afternoon draw, LaRocque salvaged a 7-6 victory when B.C. skip Haywood failed to hit and hold with her last shot in the 10th end

The triumph moved Nova Scotia into a tie for the lead when Seltzer, who said following her third straight loss Monday that the rink's only concern then was in the roll of spoilers, guided her rink past Alberta, 11-6.

Hit for Pursuing Ideals, Bays Get Their Dander Up

Okay you guys, I've had enough. I confess!

Soon after that little piece criticizing James Bay Athletic Association for drubbing Castaways 112-6 in a Vancouver Island Rugby Union game was printed, I began to feel I shouldn't have written it. Mainly because I wasn't at the game (I was watching one elsewhere at the time).

The day after the column appeared, my burly friend Al Foster of James Bay phoned to fill me in on the goings-on. And now I've received a well-written letter from JBAA president Les Underwood. So I've got to tell you about it.

I had been upset at the ridiculous score, felt indignant that a club would go on piling up the points like that, and said, in effect, the Bays were just too strong.

"When our team took the field, expecting to face the Castaways first division side, we were presented with a team substantially composed of junior players in the Castaways organization," Underwood's letter says in part. "We had no warning that the Castaways first division players would chose not to present themselves for this competition, forcing their club to dig deeply into junior ranks.

"When this state of affairs became apparent to our players, we were presented with the alternative of turning a duly scheduled first division rugby match into an "exhibition" contest, thereby wasting to a large degree the hours of practise and effort put by our players into developing a skilled and honed rugby attack; or, in playing the game as we know how, attempting to perform as well as possible on the field.

"There really is no choice in such circumstances, and the result now speaks for itself. It is of no small importance that, after the game, senior members of the Castaways organization approached our captain and told him that they accepted full responsibility for the result."

Underwood says the Bays aren't blaming those young Castaways who played.

"The question to be answered, as far as we're concerned, is not whether we were at fault, but rather should a recognized first division rugby side be permitted to make a mockey of first division league play?

"Obviously, a fundamental question of philosophy arises when you pose the suggestion that a team is too strong and plays too well. If the object of organized rugby is to achieve a medium (you may also say "mediocre") calibre of play, then obviously the presence of a strong, hardworking organization like JBAA would defeat that aim. On the other hand, if the object of the rugby organization is to promote the game and to excel wherever possible, then the presence of a club like JBAA is really the best possible promise for fulfillment of that goal."

In his long letter, Underwood goes on to point out the fact that every player on James Bay's first division squad is a Canadian who learned his rugby and developed his skills in Canada; that the club's game is based around a dedication to hard work and constant practice; that the club has won and defended the B.C. club championship; and that its players and coach Tillman Briggs have all played a major part in representative rugby, both for the Island and B.C.

"We therefore find it disconcerting to see these efforts met in local rugby circles and in the media with an apparently negative attitude, perhaps fostered by backroom politics calculated to tarnish our image," the letter says.

Well, I haven't been in any backrooms lately, Les . . . and I certainly have no desire to tarnish the James Bay image. I just like to see both teams enjoying their rugby and, like many fans, prefer to watch an even, exciting game rather than one with the score hovering around the century mark. Still, as I said before, I hadn't previously been aware of just what went on behind the scene on that day late in November.

"Finally," Les Underwood says in his letter, "we can only say that we do not regard ourselves as infallible. We can be beaten. When we are, we hope it will be on the field by a team that is prepared to dedicate itself to the game to the extent that we have.

"Then we will all benefit, not only because the calibre of rugby has equalized, but because it has improved."

FOOTNOTE: I went to Carnarvon Park last Saturday to watch a league game between Castaways and James Bay. It wasn't on, though it was scheduled. Castaways apparently chose not to meet the Bays at all this time, saying they could not field a team.

Ealey Wants To Play

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts have sent quarterback Chuck Ealey official notice that they are exercising the option in his Canadian Football League contract but Ealey has no delusions about prospects of being in the lineup this season.

"I assume they want me to buy my way out," Ealey says. "Well, I'm not about to buy my way out. All I'm asking is an opportunity to play somewhere and win. I would welcome a chance to compete for the job here provided I could be sure the deck was not stacked against me.

Marshall Accepts Post

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jim Marshall, who played one Pacific Coast League baseball season with the now-defunct Vancouver Mounties in 1957, said Wednesday he has agreed to manage Vancouver Canadians, the city's new PCL entry.

Vancouver is returning to the PCL after an eight-year absence and has a working agreement with the American League Oakland A's.

Marshall, 45, said in an interview from his Scottsdale, Ariz., home that he would be completing contract details with club owner Harry Ornest and Oakland owner Charles O. Finley soon.

Trilec Tramps On Techline

Trilec Installations came up with the one-sided decision in two Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League games Wednesday night at Victoria High School.

Trilec trampled Techline Copy Centre 106-68 while Scorpions came up with a relatively-narrow 76-64 decision over University of Victoria Jayvees.

Ken Weins set the pace for Trilec with 28 points while Darrell Johnston chipped in 25 and Pete Cavin added 20. Bruce English was the top gun for Techline with 19.

Ian Scott and Mike Miller each fired 17 points to lead Scorpions while Kurt Houlden topped Jayvees with 10.

Norton Takes The $200,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Challenger Ken Norton accepted a bid of $200,000 Wednesday to fight champion Leon Spinks for the world heavyweight championship, a spokesman for Norton said.

The proposed bout, scheduled for mid-May in Las Vegas, Nev., would be televised by CBS and would block an early return fight between Spinks and Muhammad Ali, the man he beat for the title

The World Boxing Council had warned Spinks that he must fulfill a pledge that the winner of his bout against Ali would next face Norton.

CBS has an agreement to pay $1.5 million for Spinks's first defence against any fighter other than Ali. Of that total, Spinks would receive $1 million with $300,000 set aside for expenses. That left only $200,000 for the challenger and at first Norton had balked at that figure.

But spokesman Murray Goodman said Norton changed his mind and manager Bob Biron notified Top Rank, Inc,, which owns promotion rights for Spinks's next five bouts, of the decision.

Biron sent a telegram to Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, accepting the $200,000 offer for Spinks's first defence and specifying that the fight take place in Las Vegas in mid-May.

Another Cosmo

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Cosmos, champions of the North American Soccer League, have bought another top player, luring goalkeeper Jack Brand, 25, from Rochester Lancers. No purchase price was announced.

Lions Sign Two; Set Camp Here

British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League have made a move to strengthen their running attack, signing two players, one of them an import fullback.

Signed for the upcoming season are fullback Bill Deutsch of the University of North Dakota and Canadian wide receiver Paul Sheehan, a graduate of Western Kentucky. Deutsch, 22, is 6-foot-3, 230 pounds while Sheehan is 5-foot-11, 185 pounds. Deutsch was a 12th round draft choice of Baltimore Colts last season and was cut at training camp. Sheehan, 23, drafted by the Lions two years ago, is from Ajax, Ont.

The Lions also announced that training camp would open in Vancouver May 27 and switch to Courtenay on Vancouver Island the following day.

Lions are expected to stay there 2½ weeks with the first pre-season game June 13 at Empire Stadium against Grey Cup champion Montreal Alouettes.

The club will hold a development camp in Victoria this weekend for juvenile and high school players.

Eighty-five boys from 15 to 20 years of age have been invited from teams on the Island.

The camp at Centennial Stadium will be under the direction of Lions' coach Vic Rapp and his assistants. Camp co-ordinator is Roy Vollinger. Guest coach is Frank Hindle.

There will be an exhibition game at Royal Athletic Park, Sunday at 2:30 p.m. for which there will be a spectator charge.

England Takes Second N.Z. Test

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (Reuter) — England avenged its defeat in the first cricket test by scoring a 174-run victory in the second test against New Zealand Wednesday.

England's success, masterminded by pace bowler Bob Willis, ended one of the most controversial test matches of recent years and paved the way to an exciting climax of the series in the final test starting in Auckland on Saturday.

New Zealand was set to make 280 for victory after England captain Geoff Boycott declared at his side's overnight total of 96 for four. But the home side crashed against a furious assault by Willis and was all out for 105 just 52 minutes after lunch.

The English players went into the final day still upset by the run out of Derek Randall on Tuesday by New Zealand fast bowler Ewen Chatfield during his bowling runup. There was further controversy today when the umpires warned Willis twice for running on the pitch during his delivery.

This forced Willis to bowl round the wicket and he met with instant success, taking three wickets in 10 balls to end with four for 14.

Scores: England 418 and 96 for 4 declared; New Zealand 235 and 105.

Lauda Sets Lap Mark

JOHANNESBURG (CP) — World driving champion Niki Lauda of Austria broke the lap record at the Kyalami track by nearly 2½ seconds Wednesday in the first official practice for Saturday's South African Grand Prix.

The Austrian lapped the 4.1-kilometre (2.5-mile) track in his Brabham-Alfa in one minute, 14.65 seconds, an average speed of 197.9 kilometres per hour (122.97 m.p.h.), breaking the four-year-old record of 1:17.05 recorded by Dave Charlton of South Africa.

Mario Andretti of the United States was second in his Lotus in 1:14.90.

WINS RACE

SASSARI, Italy (AP) — Knut Knudsen won the 21st Sardinia cycling race despite Belgian Roger De Vlaeminck's victory in the final leg Wednesday. De Vlaeminck covered the 116-kilometre leg, the fifth in the series, in two hours, 52 minutes and 30 seconds for an average speed of 40.347 kilometres per hour. Knudsen won the first and third legs.

FILM STARS NAMED IN OAKLAND OFFER

OAKLAND (AP) — The San Francisco Examiner says actor Walter Matthau and actress Angie Dickinson are two members of a six-person syndicate bidding $10.5 million for the Oakland A's baseball team.

A's owner Charlie Finley refused to confirm or deny the report.

"Their representative insists their names be left out of it," Finley said of the group, which made its bid last week.

The Oakland Tribune quoted Finley's lawyer, Neil Papiano, as saying of Matthau and Dickinson: "They are my friends, but I haven't heard them mentioned."

The Tribune said other possible members of the group are Irwin Allen, director of the movie, The Towering Inferno, and James Nederlander, a former part-owner of New York Yankees and owner of movie theatres across the United States.

Fan Behaviour Study Launched

LONDON (Reuter) — A British research group has announced it will launch a $140,000 study into the behavior of unruly spectators who have disrupted soccer games.

The announcement came in a report on football hooliganism by the Social Science Research Council (SSRC), a government body. The SSRC report ruled out harsher sentences and heavier fines to deter the violence.

The 60-page document said there should be closer monitoring of fans and proposed a new system for collating information on football hooliganism. It also accused the media of sensationalizing violence at games.

18 additional standard features, yet nearly $200 less than last year's car with the same equipment.

When we designed the new Chevette, we made a great little car even better. Because this year's Chevette Hatchback Coupe has 18 additional standard features. Some were formerly extra-cost options. All are now included as standard equipment.

Slide behind the wheel of a nimble new Chevette Hatchback Coupe and you'll discover reclining bucket seats, AM radio, sport steering wheel, console, swing-out rear windows, cigarette lighter, glove box lock, right hand door dome light switch and a color-keyed instrument panel — all standard equipment.

Outside, Chevette looks snappier than ever with whitewall tires, bumper rub strips, body side mouldings, deluxe grille, wheel trim rings, chrome headlight bezels and bright hood edgemoulding. All standard.

Tucked under the hood is an efficient 1.6 Litre overhead-cam L-4 engine with 4-speed manual transmission. Standard. And here's the best part: even though you get more, you pay less. Based on manufacturer's suggested retail prices, the price of a Chevette Hatchback Coupe is $199.60 less than last year's model with the same equipment.

Visit your Chevrolet dealer today and discover the better-than-ever Chevette. It's a lot more car for a lot less money.

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price for the 2-door Hatchback Coupe. Freight charges, provincial sales tax and licence are extra. Dealer may sell for less.

A lot more car for a lot less money.

Trudeau Sets Date For 'Non-Elections'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau on Wednesday set Oct. 16 as the date for byelections in eight vacant federal ridings, but there is little chance any will take place.

All eight seats are expected to be filled during a general election earlier, probably June.

Under electoral rules, Trudeau had to set a byelection date Wednesday in only one riding. But he told the Commons he had fixed the date for all eight vacancies in the 264-seat House.

He has until summer, 1979, to call a general election, and has suggested he might wait for spring.

But political events indicate otherwise. Liberals have just had a major pre-election convention and pep-rally, Trudeau has had economic talks with the provinces, plans a major speech in New York this month and is continuing meet-the-people tours.

MPs laughed as Trudeau made the announcement Wednesday, and he broke into a broad grin.

Gov't Pushing Spending Power

OTTAWA (CP) — The government asked Parliament Wednesday for more spending power at the same time the opposition was hammering it for delaying reforms to stimulate economic activity.

Final suppleementary spending requests of $1.09 billion were introduced in the Commons by Robert Andras, treasury board president, bringing to $47.59 billion the total of federal spending plans for the year ending March 31.

The supplementary spending requests came after a stormy question period in which Finance Minister Jean Chretien was once more accused of misleading the country by making over-optimistic statements about the economy.

Opposition Leader Joe Clark noted that Chretin had promised a job-creating employment tax credit program for business would be in place March 1 — Wednesday — but it was not. Under the plan, the government subsidizes companies through tax breaks for creating jobs.

Chretien said later — after consulting with officials — that it would be ready next week.

Clark also pushed Chretien for a commitment that planned revisions to the Bank Act, the regulatory legislation for the country's chartered banks, would be introduced to Parliament before the Easter break March 22.

Chretien refused to give any guarantees. The government later was accused by the opposition of deliberately stalling Bank Act revisions until after a general election expected later this year.

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, said the country has already been misled by Chretien tinto believing that it was heading into 1978 on firm economic footing.

Figures released Monday showing output of goods and services increased in 1977 only by 2.6 per cent flatly contradict optimistic government forecasts, he said.

Chretien last week said the economy grew at a real rate of five per cent in the final six months of last year, and should do the same in 1978.

But the gross national product (GNP), a measure of total output of goods and services, expanded only by 4.3 per cent for the six months, and by a disappointing 3.2 per cent in the final three months of the year.

Chretien blamed his advisors, saying the growth figures were less than he had been led to believe.

Broadbent said the finance minister's remarks are extremely serious because of current uncertainty about economic prospects. "We need honesty perhaps above all else if we are going to come to grips wit the situation."

The opposition also ppressed the government over its spending estimates, noting that government members had suggested there may be errors in the main estimates for the financial year starting April 1 that were published last week.

Andras said then the government expects to spend $48.25 billion next year, an increase of nearly 10 cents on every dollar spent in the current year. This year's spending of $44.45 billion is 8/2 per cent more than in 1976.

Recipe gives this tart a continental flavor

TRY A WALNUT TART

375 ml flour
2 ml salt
150 ml butter, cold
25 ml sugar
1 egg, beaten
25 ml cold water
1 can, 300 ml, sweetened condensed milk
375 ml walnuts, chopped
25 ml rum (or 5 ml rum extract)

Measure flour and salt into a large bowl. Dice cold butter and cut into flour with a pastry blender until mixture resembles coarse cornmeal. Mix in sugar. Beat egg and water with a fork, add and mix. Reserve 125 ml of the mixture and refrigerate. Press remaining dough into a ball then gently press over bottom and sides of a 1 l round cake pan or flan. Pierce with a fork at 1 cm intervals all over. Refrigerate 1 h.

Bake at 220° C for 10 m. Remove from oven.

Roll out reserved dough and cut into fancy shapes or diamonds (about 12).

Blend remaining ingredients and pour into pie shell. Arrange dough cutouts around rim. Brush with milk. Reduce oven heat to 180° C and bake for 40 m.

Serve cold, cut in thin wedges.

Duchess Potatoes Made With Cheddar

Mary Moore

In the fall of 1977 my sympathy went to potato growers in the East because wet weather hurt their crops. This damage is showing in their condition in the bags we are buying in the supermarkets. Some of them turn grey when scalloped.

So I took another tack. I have given you Duchess Potatoes which are simply mashed potatoes jazzed up with a few extras and baked.

This time I went further and made Cheddar Duchess Potatoes They were pure white.

CHEDDAR DUCHESS POTATOES

8 medium potatoes
½ tsp. salt (first amount)
¼ c. margarine
½ c. milk
2 large eggs
½ tsp. salt (second amount)
1½ frozen slices bread (see below — cracked wheat or white)
one 4x1x1" piece cold Cheddar cheese (see below)

Scrub and pare potatoes and cut into quarters. Cook in minimum of boiling water with ½ teaspoon salt until tender. Drain. (Save liquid for future soup.)

In beater bowl beat cooked potatoes until perfectly smooth — no lumps (I had 3½ cups). Add and beat in margarine, milk, eggs, ½ teaspoon salt (second amount) and beat until thoroughly blended, scraping down sides of bowl once or twice.

Turn into large, oiled, shallow casserole and spread out evenly. Cover with combined bread and cheese crumbs. NOTE: A quick way to make the crumb-cheese topping is to have the bread frozen and the cheese cold. Break the frozen bread into quarters and cut the cheese in three pieces and put in blender. Blend for 10 seconds — no more or cheese may cling to blades.

Spread evenly over potatoes. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 20 minutes or until heated through and golden. NOTE: This may be prepared in advance. If put in oven cold from refrigerator baking time should be longer — 25 to 30 minutes.

CB Buffs Make Abby's Day

DEAR ABBY: Thought you'd like to know the following: My CB buff neighbors have quite unusual handles. She is "Dear Abby," and her husband is "Abby Grabber." How does that grab ya'?

MYRTLE CREEK

DEAR MYRTLE: Beautiful. It made my day.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to REALIST who's tired of hearing women gripe about unpleasant surprises after marriage. She wonders why these things aren't noticed before marriage.

How on earth is a woman supposed to know how many showers a guy takes before she marries him? It's not your everyday topic of conversation while going together.

No way could I have known that the guy I married would snore, thrash around and grind his teeth in his sleep, or that his beer intake would triple and his cigarette smoking double.

How could I know beforehand what kind of father he'd make — and for that matter, how could HE know a lot of things about ME before we got married?

When we were going together he was into sports. Now he finds them "too strenuous." He used to love the beach. Now it's "too crowded." He used to like to dance. Now it's "silly." And socializing is "too boring." I wonder why men "slow down" so much earlier than women?

NOT PERFECT EITHER

DEAR NOT PERFECT: Maybe when there's a comfortable home to come to, a man finds fewer reasons for leaving it. But apropos "surprises" after marriage: While going together, both men and women are inclined to be on their "best behavior." However, characteristics as basic as violent tempers, physical uncleanliness and "me-first" attitudes rarely go undetected even in the courting stage.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with Kurt for a year. He's 30 and has never been married. I'm 29, divorced, with a child who stays with my mother most of the time.

Maybe I'm old-fashioned, but I don't believe in living together before marriage, so when Kurt asked if he could move in with me, I said no. (He was having financial problems.)

Next thing I knew, Kurt told me he was sharing an apartment with a guy. He didn't say where, but he gave me the phone number.

I called him up and a girl answered! He explained that he's living with her only "temporarily." He says she is just a friend.

I was furious and gave him an ultimatum — move out of her apartment and into mine immediately, or forget me completely. He said, "I'll think about it." Does this sound like he loves me and intends to marry me?

I don't want to lose him, but I can't let him live with another girl, even though he claims she's only a friend.

Hurry your answer. MESS

DEAR MESS: Kurt sounds like a loser to me. If you're wise you will forget him.

MOCK TURTLE CAME BEFORE ALICE

craig claiborne

By CRAIG CLAIBORNE
New York Times

There are many people, no doubt, who believes that mock turtle soup is more literary than real — something coined, perhaps, by Lewis Carroll for Alice's Adventures in Wonderland.

The fact is that Carroll actually created and named the character Mock Turtle because of the soup which had widespread currency in English kitchens long before Alice came about. It is made with a calf's head — and that's no joke. Calves' heads are available at well-supplied butcher shops in metropolitan areas — and the reason for the name is that the meat of a cooked calf's head has much the same texture as that of turtle in real turtle soup.

The ingredients for the dish include the classic spices that provide the characteristic flavor of real turtle soup. After you have made a kettle of mock turtle soup, you can put it to a marvelous second use, as the base of Lady Curzon's soup. This soup is otherwise almost impossible to make in certain areas where the sale of canned turtle soup is forbidden by law because green turtles are among the endangered species of the world.

Lady Curzon was a Chicagoan christened Mary Leiter in 1870. She became the wife of Lord Curzon, the British viceroy to India.

Position aside, it would be sufficient unto the day if she were responsible only for the creation of the soup that bears her name. It is irresistible.

MOCK TURTLE SOUP

½ calf's head, boned, about three-quarters pound
1 calf's tongue, cleaned
3 quarts veal broth (made with the reserved head bones if desired) or chicken broth
Salt and freshly ground pepper
2 tbsp. butter
3 tbsp. finely chopped shallots
1 cup finely chopped onion
¼ pound cooked diced ham, about one cup
1 cup thinly sliced mushrooms
3 whole allspice
3 whole cloves
1 tbsp. dried sage
1 tsp. dried marjoram
1 tsp chopped fresh thyme (or half the amount dried thyme)
1 tsp. dried savory, optional
1 bay leaf
¼ cup chopped fresh parsley
2 tsps. chopped fresh basil (or half the amount dried basil)
⅛ tsp. cayenne
2 tbsps. flour
¼ teaspoon ground mace
1 cup madeira wine plus additional wine to serve on the side.

1. Place the boned calf's head and calf's tongue in a kettle and add cold water to cover. Bring to the boil and simmer five minutes. Drain well and run under cold water until thoroughly chilled.

2. Drain well. Cut the meat into one-inch cubes. Discard any fatty portions. Cut away and discard the white bristly portion around the mouth.

3. Return the cubed meat and the whole tongue to a clean kettle.

4. Add the veal broth and bring to the boil. If necessary, add a little salt and pepper. Simmer one and one-half hours, covered.

5. Meanwhile, melt the butter in a saucepan and add the shallots and onion. Cook until wilted and add the ham and mushrooms. Tie the allspice, cloves and sage together in a small cheesecloth bag. Add it. Add the marjoram, thyme, savory, bay leaf, parsley, basil and cayenne. Cook 10 minutes, stirring often.

6. Sprinkle the mixture with the flour, stirring. Spoon off two cups of the broth from the calf's head and add it to the mixture, stirring. Cover and cook one hour. Remove the cheesecloth bag and bay leaf.

7. Pour the mixture into the container of a food processor and blend thoroughly. Add this to the soup.

8. Add the mace, one cup of madeira, salt and pepper to taste.

9. Remove the tongue from the soup. Cut it in half. Use one-half for other purposes such as sandwiches. Cut remaining one-half into cubes and return it to the soup.

10. Serve the piping hot soup in bowls with more madeira on the side. This soup keeps well when refrigerated. It can also be used to prepare Lady Curzon's soup (see recipe).

Yield: Eighteen or more servings.

LADY CURZON'S SOUP

1 tbsp. butter
½ cup finely diced mushrooms
2 tbsps. curry powder
3 cups mock turtle soup wth meat (see recipe) or canned turtle soup
½ cup heavy cream
1 egg yolk
1 cup whipped cream, optional

1. Heat the butter in a saucepan and add the mushrooms. Cook until wilted.

2. Sprinkle with curry powder. Cook briefly, stirring with a wire whisk. Add the soup, stirring constantly with the whisk.

3. Blend the half cup of cream and egg yolk. Remove the soup from the heat and add the yolk mixture, stirring constantly with the whisk. Return the soup to the heat and cook briefly until piping hot but not quite boiling. If the soup boils, the yolk may curdle.

4. Pour the soup into cups (this soup is traditionally served in demitasse cups) and serve. Or — and this is traditional — float equal amounts of whipped cream on top of each serving and run briefly under a hot broiler until the whipped cream starts to brown.

Yield: Four to six servings.

This Acid Adds Zip

QUESTION: Citric acid is used as a food additive; is it dangerous in small amounts?

ANSWER: Citric acid is the naturally-occuring acid which helps to give citric fruits their zippy flavor. The human can metabolize citric acid completely; therefore, there is no reason to be concerned about consuming citric acid. It is, in fact, an intermediate in normal body metabolism of carbohydrate.

Citric acid is added to some foods to perform important functions, in addition to imparting flavor. It can act as an antioxidant, as an acidulant and as an agent which binds undesirable minerals. Citric acid will keep certain minerals in solution, thereby preventing precipitation and the development of cloudiness.

QUESTION: Does it make any difference whether the regular or the quick cooking type of cereal is used?

ANSWER: The nutritive value of both types of cereal is approximately the same. In some of the quick-cooking varieties, a salt substance is added during manufacturing which brings about a quicker gelatinization of the starch and significantly reduces cooking time. It is strictly a matter of personal preference as to the type of cereal that is purchased, unless one is following a diet restricted in sodium (salt) intake.

QUESTION: Where is the best place to store home canned foods?

ANSWER: Store them in a cool, dry place. Since light causes darkening of food in glass jars, keep these either in a dark storeroom, or else wrap them in newspaper or place in cartons.

Pen Pals Meet After 30 Years

elizabeth forbes

This is one of those human interest stories that surface now and then to the delight of a person like myself.

It came to me through someone who told someone and that someone passing on the main details.

I got in touch immediately with the persons concerned and gained their consent to tell you the story.

It centres around a meeting last week between Mrs. Sam Burcher of Auckland, New Zealand, and Mrs. James Ross of this city.

Of particular interest is the fact that although this was a first meeting for them, they had known each other, as pen pals, for more than 30 years.

They started corresponding when Mrs. Ross (then a teen-ager Audrey Porter) heard through a friend here that Enid Elliot, out in Auckland, also a teenager, was keen to correspond with someone in this part of the world.

"I wrote to Enid and she wrote back," Mrs. Ross remembers, "and we hit it off right away."

In those early years letters travelled back and forth regularly.

More recently "we narrowed it down to one long letter a year and we kept promising ourselves that one day we would meet, although that possibility did seem a bit remote."

Then "all of a sudden" came the good news.

Aukland's Cornwall rugby team was due to play a series of games in Vancouver. The Burchers had a son-in-law on that team and they were coming along, with other fans, to see the games.

Naturally, that also included a short visit in Victoria as guests at the Ross home on Cedar Hill Road.

"It was terrifically exciting, especially waiting for them to arrive and wondering what it would be like to really meet," Audrey Ross says.

As it happened they knew each other immediately and the friendship that started in letters quickly gained a new dimension.

As Mrs. Ross tells it, "we talked and talked. We went right back to the beginning when we exchanged our first letters, then brought each other up to date."

It was amazing, she added, as they remembered various happenings, how much their lives paralleled each other in many instances.

Both were just 16 when they started to correspond. Both had about the same number of boy friends and they discussed them freely in their letters.

They both went out into the business world at the same time, Audrey Porter in an office here and Enid Elliot with 20th Century Fox in Auckland.

Mrs. Sam Burcher (left), Mrs. James Ross check 30-year-old letter

Their engagements were announced close together and "right away we started describing our fiances and raving about them in letters."

Audrey Porter married first, but in the same year, Enid Elliot became a bride.

Each has three children — two girls and a boy. And to add to the chain of coincidences, both the sons married within a week of each other in August two years ago.

"I'm a little ahead on the grandchildren," Audrey Ross says. "I have three. Enid has one and another on the way."

Last week, in going back to early pen pal days, the two friends came to the conclusion that while dates and boys loomed large in their thoughts, other interests were not forgotten.

"One topic that we talked about, over and over again, was the fact that Enid could spend Christmas in a bathing suit on the beach while it was winter in Victoria," Mrs. Ross says.

"And when we were sun tanning on the beach here, she was enjoying winter sports down there."

There was also Enid Elliot's talent for sewing. "In her letters she often descibed the dresses she made and even sent along snapshots as well, to show me how she looked in those gowns."

Today, Mrs. Burcher still enjoys "making things." And to prove it she presented Mrs. Ross with an evening shawl she had crocheted from pure New Zealand wool.

Reminiscing also brought back memories of "profound" discussions the two girls had on growing up.

In a letter dated in the 1940s, one which Mrs. Ross still treasures, Mrs. Burcher wrote about gaining more freedom from parental control.

"It's nice to be able to stay out as long as I like when I'm on a date now," she said in part.

Then she asked "are you allowed to do that, too?"

Over the years weddings, children and grandchildren were all recorded on camera and snapshots were exchanged fairly often.

"I've no doubt that is why we were able to recognize each other so easily last week," says Mrs. Ross.

Questions that loomed large in the minds of both Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Burcher, before they met, were how will the husbands like us and how will they like each other?

As it happened they "hit it off right away and we all parted firm friends."

The two women also vowed to write to each other more frequently from now on. "More as we did long ago."

Will they meet again?

"We hope so," is the way Audrey Ross puts it.

She and her husband have a warm invitation to visit Auckland soon. Do they plan to accept that invitation, I asked.

An anticipatory look came into Mrs. Ross' eyes, but all she would answer was "maybe."

Still Man's Best Friend

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — Reversing the old maxim, Israeli Shlomo Boehm proved man is dog's best friend when he went to jail Monday rather than surrender his pet to a veterinarian.

The Alsatian dog has bitten two persons and a judge here ordered a vet to examine him. But Boehm would not divulge the whereabouts of the dog, who he said is being kept by a friend. The judge said Boehm would be freed when he surrendered the dog.

Here's Cure for Choking

Food for Thought

By DR. JEAN MAYER and
DR. JOHANNA DWYER

A silent mealtime killer claims some 3,500 North American lives a year. The typical victim is a middle-aged elderly person who is talking, drinking and eating all at the same time. Suddenly they begin to choke, usually on a chunk of unchewed meat. And if not dislodged, the piece of meat can produce lethal results.

Choking on food is our sixth leading cause of accidental death; in fact, this type of choking is so common that it has a special nickname of "cafe coronaries."

In many cases, the sudden collapse and death is mistaken for a heart attack. Adults over 45 and children under 4 are the most common victims.

Almost always, the culprit is a piece of solid food, usually meat, that is sucked into the opening of the larynx when the victim inhales air at the wrong moment. The food obstructs the larynx and the windpipe; as a result the victim cannot speak or breathe. Some people have a panic reaction and will leap up from the table and run about. Others rush to a restroom. Still others just pitch forward and collapse, all in complete silence.

Very often, these choking deaths take place in persons who have had too many cocktails and then tackle a steak, washed down by still more to drink. Bad or missing teeth, or poorly fitting dentures, also are contributing factors in adults since people with such dental problems are more likely to swallow large pieces of food without sufficient chewing. This is also true of persons who for years have had painful gums or bad teeth and have learned to gulp larger and larger pieces of food instead of trying to chew properly.

At the other end of the age scale, young children who are very small or who are sick are likely to have choking problems because their protective laryngeal reflexes, which shut off the airways when food is going down the gullet, may not be fully developed or functioning properly. Epileptic children, who are subject to convulsions, and mentally retarded youngsters, also are common choking victims.

Everyone should know how to signal that they are choking. The best way is to use sign language by pointing at or grasping the throat. Then anyone nearby can move to help dislodge the food.

The old method of slapping the victim on the back is usually just a waste of precious time, and so is mouth-to-mouth resuscitation because the air passage is completely blocked. At times it may be possible to remove the food by reaching into the throat with the thumb and index finger. But the best course is to employ a simple procedure called the "Heimlich manoeuvre," named after its developer Dr. Henry Heimlich of Cincinnati Jewish Hospital.

To do this, you get around behind the victim (whether he is standing or seated), wrap your arms around his chest, just under the rib cage and clasp your hands together half way between the breast bone and where the belly button would be. With a firm, jerking motion, press your fist upward into the abdomen, in a hugging action. This will cause the lungs to compress, forcing air and the food to pop out of the windpipe and mouth.

The same procedure can be performed from the front if the victim has collapsed and is lying face up. Press forceably on the abdomen with your fist. Also, if no one else is present, a choking victim can do the Heimlich manoeuvre on himself by clasping her hands and pressing suddenly upward on his abdomen.

Of course, it is best to prevent the choking from occurring in the first place. Very young or sick children and elderly persons who normally have trouble eating should have their food cut up finely before eating it. And it's a good idea to have someone with them while they eat. Dental problems should be corrected, especially if they hamper chewing.

Finally, watch your manners. Eat slowly, chew thoroughly, and try not to talk and swallow at the same time. Above all, if you do choke — or are with someone who seems to be choking — know what to do.

SAVORY ROUND STEAK

1½ to 2 lbs. round steak, cut
 1 to 1½-inches thick flour
salt and pepper
2 tbsp. salad oil
3 medium onions, sliced
2 cups canned tomatoes
2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. steak sauce
1 bay leaf
½ tsp. chili powder

Remove any excess fat from meat; cut meat into serving-size portions. Cover a board (or piece of waxed paper with flour). Season with salt and pepper. Place steaks on floured surface. Cover with more flour. Using a meat malet or edge of saucer pound flour into meat. Turn steak over; continue pounding flour into meat until no more flour is absorbed by the meat. In heavy skillet or Ducth oven, heat oil. Brown steak thoroughly on both sides. Top meat with onion slices. In bowl, combine remaining ingredients. Pour over and around steak. Cover; simmer gently over low heat until tender — approx. 1¼ to 1¾ hours — depending upon thickness of meat. If necessary during cooking process, add more tomatoes or a small amount of water to prevent sauce from becoming too dry. To serve, skim off excess fat. Place steak on warmed serving platter; top steaks with onions and drizzle with sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

your health

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

My nine-year-old grandson fell and ruptured his spleen about two months ago. The spleen was removed and he left the hospital after 10 days. I don't want to pry, but I would like to know if this operation will affect him in later life. Will he be able to take part in all activities? — Mrs. W.E.

Dear Mrs. E.: I don't feel that it is "prying" for a grandmother to look for added assurance. Grandparents deserve to be given details that will relieve their anxiety, expecially when such a severe accident occurs.

The spleen is a remarkable organ that is actively involved in many of the important processes that go on in the body. The manufacture of blood cells, the storage of blood and the utilization of iron are only some of the functions of the spleen.

One of the main roles that the spleen plays throughout life is to destroy red and white cells that have exhausted their function and are no longer needed. The spleen can also capture and kill bacteria that may be circulating in the blood stream. When there is a sudden loss of blood, for any reason, the spleen, which stores a large quantity of blood, tries to replenish the blood loss.

With so many important functions it is difficult for most people to understand how the removal of the spleen is not detrimental to the eventual health of the person.

Fortunately, the wisdom of the body is so remarkable that there are other structures that can take over just about all the duties of the spleen. Tissue cells distributed throughout the body are part of the "reticuloendothelial" system. These cells and the bone marrow compensate for the removal of the spleen by taking over many of its important functions.

You can be certain that your grandson, after a normal period of convalescence, will be able to return to full and normal activity. His operation will not interfere with normal growth and excellent health.

There is a tendency on the part of parents and grandparents to overprotect children who have had such a serious accident. Sometimes, in these cases, the psychological scars are more difficult to cope with than the operation itself.

As a child, I remember that the town barber was called in to do "cupping" when my father was sick. Is it still used? How does it work? — Mr. S.S.I.

Dear Mr. I.: Some ethnic communities still call in their barber as a "consultant." Cupping is the technique of applying an inverted small heated glass to the skin surface. When suction occurs it brings more blood to the area and, in many instances, is effective for some types of muscle pain. Long before antibiotics were available, cupping was even tried for treating pneumonia.

Modern methods and drugs have, of course, replaced the need for the cupping specialist who used to thrive especially in small European communities.

AUSSIES PROTEST SLUR BY HOPE

PERTH, Australia (AP) — A joke by Bob Hope has upset residents of the Perth suburb of Balga, who consider it a slur on the Australian town.

Keith Wilson, a member of the state legislature, said Thursday he has received about 60 complaints from people who protested the joke used in Hope's shows at the Perth entertainment centre last week and published in a Sunday newspaper.

Wilson said he has written to the organizers of the shows and management of the newspaper asking for a public apology.

Three local sporting clubs and the Balga high school also wrote to the organizers.

Reports said Hope asked actress Florence Henderson:

"What's that perfume you're wearing, Florence?"

"Evening in Paris," she replied.

"Smell mine," Hope said.

"Phew, what's that?"

"Afternoon in Balga," said Hope.

Sheran Godfrey of Balga, one of the protesters, said that the district is brought up like a bad smell whenever somebody felt like making a joke.

"It's all very well for people to laugh but they are laughing at us," she said.

Horse and Carriage Wasn't the Answer

SOUTHPORT, England — A Liverpool businessman who lost his driving licence through drink thought he had the answer when he bought himself a horse and cart. But Southport magistrates fined him $21.50 for being drunk in charge of a horse-drawn carriage.

After a few drinks at a wedding reception, 31-year-old Roger Rimmer drove his carriage into an automobile. And he had to leap from the carriage when the two horses bolted down the highway.

The crash occurred when Rimmer tried to steer his pair of greys past a car driven by college lecturer Frank Bernard.

"I always go that way home because the horses know the way," he told the magistrates. "I had only two or three vodkas at the wedding reception before setting off home."

Police Constable Stephen Stonehill said he was on point duty near the scene of the accident. He became suspicious when Rimmer doffed his hat to him as he drove past. He would have given Rimmer a breath-analysis test but for the fact that "a horse carriage is not a motor vehicle under the Road Act."

Rimmer testified he had begun overtaking Bernard's car before Bernard started to turn across his path.

"I tried to halt the horses," he said, "but you can't just ask horses to stop and hit reverse gear."

Rimmer said his eyes were not glazed from alcohol but because he had been driving for seven miles on a windy day. He was unsteady on his feet because of the accident.

Southport magistrates said the fine levied on Rimmer was the maximum fine for being drunk in charge of a horse-drawn carriage. The penalty in Britain for driving an automobile while under the influence of drink is usually five times that amount with a licence suspension of one year.

Grave Found

JELLING, Denmark (AP) — Archeologists believe they have found the grave of the Viking King Gorm and his Queen Thyra, who died in the 10th century and are considered the founders of the Danish monarchy.

TRASH TREASURE TEASER

WILLIAMSTOWN Mass. — Everyone dreams of finding a treasure in a trash pile. Ed Bohl did, and doesn't know what to do with it.

Ed found a bottle.

It is made of thin glass glass. It is about seven inches tall (17.3 centimetres to be exact), round, with a long, slender neck and a bottom the shape of a ball. The glass is coated here and there with a greenish crystalline film.

The experts tell him it is an unguentarium, a vessel that held perfumed oils buried in the tombs of people who died long ago and wanted something nice to bring along to the hereafter.

When Ed took it to one expert to be appraised, the man said, "I thought you were going to show me an antique, not a museum piece," and wouldn't touch it for fear he might break it.

Ed found the bottle among the rubbish from a house stripped of its furnishings after the owner had died. Ed was hired last August to clean up the place. The bottle had been left in a kitchen cabinet.

Ed tossed it in the back of his dump truck and went about his collections.

"Everytime I threw another load in the truck, that little bottle caught my eye. Finally I tossed it on the seat next to me. It knocked about in the cab for three months before I brought it home."

His wife, Patricia, thought it was unusual, too. When she took it to the sink to wash it, she found a note inside.

The note was dated April 15, 1933. It was handwritten to a Miss Harris from someone named Grace C. Parcella, who said she was passing the bottle along to Miss Harris out of friendship.

"I was told," Grace Parcella wrote, "that it was buried with the mummies about 2,000 year ago and takes its coloring from the elements in the earth."

"Nobody has offered to buy it though," Ed said. "Or even tell me what it's worth. Oh well, it's nice just to have it. I'll bet nobody else in Williamstown has one."

POTTY PRINCE

MACHYNLLETH, Wales — Prince Charles went for a stroll in Machynlleth on Wednesday and stopped to chat with Mari Morgan, 74, who handed him a chamber pot with a mirror in the bottom. The Prince of Wales looked amazed. Then he smiled and said: "Why do you want to give me that?" Mrs. Morgan said it was a wedding present. "I will get married immediately for that," said the 30-year-old heir to the British throne.

The Bridge Expert

Many years ago. when bridge was in its infancy, the trumping of partner's ace was considered to be a terrible thing; and the one who did it was derided and ostracized. But times have changed; and it is recognized that the trumping of partner's ace can often be the only winning play. Such was the case in today's deal, which was played in the 1977 Fall National Championships.

North-South vulnerable.
East deals.

NORTH

SOUTH
♠ Q 10
♡ K 9 6 4
◇ K 6 5
♣ Q 10 7 2

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇	Dble.
2 ♣	3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♣.

It should be noted that South's jump to three hearts was the correct bid. Whenever partner makes a takeout double, one should jump whenever he has 10 or more high-card points.

When East won the opening lead with her king of clubs, she wasn't sure what to do next, for she didn't know what the club setup was. As East-West were playing their system of leads, if one held three cards in partner's bid suit, he would lead the third highes. Thus, from East's position, West might have possessed the 10-7-6, the Q-10-6, the Q-7-6, or the singleton six.

So, after cashing the diamond ace, she didn't know how to get West into the lead so that East could ruff a second diamond lead. Should she gamble, and underlead the ace of clubs, hoping that West held the club queen? She decided against the latter (as it happened, it would have worked out just as well if she had underled the ace, for West would have trumped).

Thus, choosing not to gamble at trick three, East led the ace of clubs — and West now rose to the occasion. She trumped her partner's ace and returned a diamond, which East ruffed for the setting trick.

Had West not trumped the ace of clubs, declarer would have had it in her power to fulfill the contract by picking up West's king of spades, thus bringing home five spade tricks.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, March 3
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You climb to more elevated position — pace is steady. Eschew the sensational. Deal with Aquarian who instills confidence. Superior pays compliment and you cold be due for promotion, more money. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Moon aspect coincides now with travel, filling in spaces, checking missing links. Family reunion could be on agenda. One who is sensitive confides problem. By sympathetic; make intelligent concessions. Yes, you may have to stretch the budget.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't judge by appearances — dig beneath surface indications. Emotions could cloud judgment. Know it and check costs in time, money and feelings. Romance is in picture. You could get involved. Know it and don't play games. Keep your eyes open.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on ties of permanent nature. Partnership and marital status figure prominently. Organize. Check assets, deficit. Being priorities into crystal-clear focus. Don't fool yourself. Study Gemini message. You get answer to important proposal. Looks good. More responsibility, more money.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You make progress, but you do so through outside intervention. Don't force issues — what you need is going to be made available. Yes burden is to be removed. You can expand horizons, improve display, distribution, Aries, Libra figure prominently — so does the number 9.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stress on change, variety, unique relationship, giving of yourself, imprinting style. Leo, Aquarius figure in scenario. You get chance to correct past errors, to make new start in new direction. Leo, Aquarius, Scorpio figure prominently — so does the number 1.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Now you can build for future) on a solid structure. The flimsy falls away, to be replaced by facts, figures, loyal friends, superiors who want to make room for you at top. Intrigue is brushed aside by those who really do care about your happiness. You'll see!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasis on flexibility, scattering of efforts, humor, versatility, brief disputes with close neighbors or relatives. Laughing at your own foibles wins friends, allies. Yes, the mail is on the way, the message is significant and the short journey brings desired results. In matters of speculation, stick with number 3.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22—Dec. 21): If aware of fine print, details, you could make financial gain. A coup is possible — someone sends you signals which can be transformed into vital, timely actions. It is up to you — and the sky is the limit. Yes, it may be necessary to tear down for purpose of rebuilding reorganization. Aquarius, Taurus and Leo could figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Write, speak, express views — open lines of communications, initiate changes. One who attracts you will know it without much doubt. Gemini, Sagittarius and Virgo figure in scenario. Stick with number 5. Get promises in writing. Yes, you are going places!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get backstage view — communicate, refuse to be stifled by fears, doubts. Aura of drama is present — encourage it. Family situation may be trying but there is value, tradition and love involved. You'll sense it and finally know it and be pleased, satisfied.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on friendship, romance, profit from business enterprise. Virgo figures prominently — so does another Pisces and the number 7. See as is, but allow for poetic license. Give yourself a chance to dream. You're due for pleasant surprise from unorthodox source.

IF MARCH 3 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are sensitive, fond of travel, very expressive and have a problem with your weight, Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. April could be your most significant month of 1978, a year featuring preparation, the insuring of greater personal security.

RADIATION EXPERT TO SPEAK

Fourteeen B.C. organizations are sponsoring a public meeting to hear Sister Dr. Rosalie Bertell of Buffalo, a cancer research expert, speak on radiation hazards.

The meeting will be held at the Newcombe auditorium in the Provincial Museum on Monday, March 13, at 8 p.m.

She will discuss open-pit uranium mines proposed for Clearwater and Kelowna which environmentalists say could contaminate the Fraser and Okanagan watersheds.

She will also discuss the proposed four nuclear reactors to be constructed at Sedro Woolley, Washington.

Widely known for her research in low-level radiation effects, she says existing levels of radiation from nuclear weapon tests, uranium mining operations and nuclear reactors, are already affecting people.

Student Actors on Stage

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Something special is in store tonight, Friday and Saturday for Victorians interested in the development of young theatre professionals.

William Saroyan's The Time of Your Life will be performed by students of Camosun College's professional actor training program.

This is another of the program's "in-progress" public productions, all of which are professionally guest-directed. Saroyan's play is being directed by Robert Graham, whose last assignment in Victoria was Bastion Theatre's The Glass Menagerie.

The Time of Your Life will be performed at the theatre on the Carey Road campus of the college at 3814 Carey (the former Mount View secondary school). Curtain time is 8.

Audiences are desirable for the "in-progress" productions, says artistic director of the program, Jean-Paul Destrube.

"They are part of the training process for the young actors," he says. "We are not offering a complete and polished production, but an interesting and well-directed and we believe, sincere, presentation of a fine play that reveals the talents and the developing technique of some very promising students."

When the program focuses on the production of a fully-mounted commercially competitive play at a down-town theatre, Destrube says, much that is important to the students — such as regular class sessions and practice — becomes disrupted as all available time is devoted to rehearsal and set-building.

Under Destrube the emphasis is on teaching with in-production performance kept in perspective as the only realistic means of familiarizing students with a practical theatre situation, and the sharing that takes place between audience and actors.

There are 12 students in the program this winter, none of whom have had previous experience or training but all having talent and serious intentions of seeking a professional theatre career. Destrube, an actor and mimist, teaches them mime, movement and acting techniques.

Their voice training not only includes speech work with Helen Greene, but goes an essential step further with coaching in singing by artist-teacher Elizabeth Taylor. Judith Koltai-Peevy also takes movement classes and this aspect is further explored in dance and some ballet instruction by Bebe Eversfield and tap by Sherry Black.

Guest instructors come from various Canadian professional theatre centres to conduct workshops in such special areas as improvisation.

It is the Camosun program's policy to bring in a guest director for each of their public performances, the next of which will be Shakespeare's All's Well That Ends Well directed by Fred Euringer who is the professional director working with Malaspina College's theatre program.

Slopes Need Special Care

Features of the local landscape are hills and valleys leading to a high percentage of gardens on sloping ground and causing conditions with which the average beginner is not familiar.

When sloping soil is disturbed annually for a vegetable plot and regularly cultivated, it tends to gravitate downhill, and this downhill movement is aggravated by rainfall and summer watering.

To offset this downward movement the gardener must always dig and cultivate so as to work the soil back uphill where it belongs.

If the gardener is not conscious of this, the soil at the top of the plot will drop several inches each year and in a few years it will be down to hardpan.

When preparing the soil in spring with a spade or a digging fork it is much easier to work from the botton, throwing the soil downhill, than it is to start at the top and throw it uphill, and most beginners start out with this method.

The same problem of soil gravitating down grade is experienced when preparation is done with a motorized rototiller. Each strip must be worked from the top to the bottom, and none from the bottom to the top.

On steep slopes it is better to prepare strips crosswise leaving a narrow path between to prevent downward gravitation.

After digging or tilling comes levelling of the surface. This is always done in the oopposite direction, bottom to top, to work more of the soil uphill.

The same rule applies to all cultivating and hoeing during the growing season, and when raking weeds which have been removed from the rows of plants.

When the vegetable plot is on a faily steep gradient the owner is soon aware of what is happening to the soil, but it takes longer to become apparent when the drop is a matter of a few feet over the length of the lot. On these gradual slopes it is just as important to start digging at the highest point, and to start to level and cultivate from the lowest point.

Watering also has to be done with care. The greater the slope the better the drainage, and the more watering is needed to keep the plants in good condition.

Little is gained by leaving a sprinkler running over a long period. The water will not remain at root level and the downward movement of the soil is hastened when it is saturated with water.

There are two ways to lessen this problem. First, by adding large quantities of humus, in the form of compost or old manure, to the soil when preparing. The small particles of humus act as sponges and hold the moisture at root level.

Second, to operate the sprinkler for several short periods instead of one long period.

The most important issue is to prevent the disturbed soil from washing downhill during periods of heavy winter rainfall.

Prevention in this instance is much easier than trying to correct the effects at a later date, and is accomplished by covering the surface with humus before the rainy season starts in November.

This covering, which should be at least three inches deep, can be made with compost, or with fresh manure if the plot contains no winter vegetables that woud be forced into unnatural growth by the nutrients. The covering soaks up the rain and prevents runoff.

If the garden layout includes a large area of grass, the clippings should be spread to dry for a week, then put into a pile with a little good soil between the layers. A season's collection will cover and protect a large area of sloping ground.

Some gardeners may think this serious consideration of soil on a sloping hillside is a lot of work, but the returns in good food year after year are well worth the effort needed in protecting and conserving every square inch.

LAKE HILL

I have listed this 8-yr.-old, 1348 sq. ft. home on one of the nicest, quietest cul-de-sac streets I have seen in this city. All the homes are beautifully kept here. This home has that unique floor plan where the living room (19x14), seperate formal dining room (11x10), and family kitchen are all on the front side of the home facing the neighbours' well-kept front yards. The three bedrooms are across the back for maximum privacy. Large ensuite master bedroom with walk-in closet. Downstairs has two more professionally finished bedrooms, washroom and 19x13 rec. room with second floor-to-ceiling fireplace. Personal reasons cause this lovely home to be placed on the market at this time. Asking only $73,500. MLS. GEORGE WALL, 386-2955 or 477-0548.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to all our relatives and friends for their kindness, sympathy and help during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father. Special thanks to Dr. Gloster, nurses of C.D.H., emergency room nurses who made Ralph's fridays bearable. Ambulance drivers for their kindness, Rev. J. Ware for his comforting services, pallbearers, Sea Cadets and those who sent cards, flowers and donations to the Cancer Fund. And to all who took time to visit and chat with Ralph during his long illness. God Bless You All! — Carol, Murray and Ken MacKenzie.

MRS. FIELDER WOULD LIKE to thank friends and neighbours for their kind expressions of sympathy in the passing of Mr. J. H. Fielder. Thanks to Dr. Mateko, nurses and staff of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

309 IN MEMORIAM

FANSTONE, Lawrence — In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Lawrence Fanstone, who passed away, March 2, 1966.
—Remembered always by his wife, Lillian Emily and daughter Rose.

FEST—Herbert William (Frenchy), died March 2, 1976.
Always thoughts of you.
—Your loving wife, Kathleen.

HOLLAND—In loving memory of my loving father, Charles E. Holland, who passed away March 2, 1977 at Victoria, B.C.
If I had one lifetime wish,
One dream that could come true,
I would pray to God with all my heart,
For yesterday and you.
If teardrops were a stairway
And memories a lane,
I would walk all the way to heaven
And bring you back again.
A thousand times I needed you,
A thousand times I've cried
If all my love could have saved you dad
You never would have died.
—Always remembered and sadly missed, by his loving daughter, V. Stanley and six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

HOLLAND—Charles Edward — In loving memory of father and grandfather who passed away on March 2, 1977.
March comes with sad regret,
It brings back memories we'll never forget,
A wonderful father laid to rest,
For each of us he did his best,
His place on Earth no one can fill
We miss you Dad and always will.
"See you in the morning."
—Harold, Marry, Deborah, Susan and Richard.

HOLLAND—In remembrance of C. E. Holland, who passed away, March 2, 1977.
A year has come and gone, but the loneliness lingers on.
It seems so long ago that he was taken and we were left alone.
But we know he is near, looking over us with loving care.
We shall meet again, when the time is right and we are called home to start our other life.
—Remembered and missed by son Tom and daughter-in-law Arlene.

HOLLAND—In loving memories of my dear husband Charles Edward Holland, passed away March 2, 1977, Victoria, B.C.
One year has passed since that sad day,
When the one I loved was called away.
God took him home, it was His will
Within my heart he liveth still.
—Ever remembered by his loving wife Helen Holland, Victoria, B.C.
Praise the Lord.
Gone but not forgotten.
We will meet again.

LOWE — In memory of our dearest husband, father and grandpa, Don, who died March 2, 1977.
"The good a man does lives after him."
—Always missed and fondly remembered. Bea, Dale, Cliff, Debbie, John, Tami and Pamela.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE. SANDS

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember. Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Rodriquez Asks For His Tapes

Times News Services

OTTAWA — NDP MP John Rodriquez (Nickel Belt) Wednesday demanded that the government turn over to him any tape recordings made of his conversations with FBI informer Warren Hart.

But Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais denied that any such tapes ever existed. He said outside the Commons the RCMP has informed him that they "never had his (Rodriguez's) voice on any tape," but that the investigation within the RCMP is continuing.

Last week, he told reporters that Rodriguez and then solicitor-general minister Warren Allmand were "incidentally" recorded while Hart — working for the RCMP security service — was conducting electronic surveillance on another man.

Hart, who worked for the RCMP from 1971 to 1975 infiltrating so-called radical groups across Canada, said the security service ordered him to conduct electronic surveillance on Allmand and Rodriguez. He said the RCMP thought Allmand was a Communist, but did not give any reason for recording conversations with Rodriguez.

The statements were made in documents released last week by Conservative MP Elmer MacKay (Central Nova).

In the Commons, Rodriguez asked Speaker James Jerome to obtain from the government "any tapes or other objects resulting from electronic surveillance against myself."

He also asked Jerome to find out why he was under surveillance and why he was not informed later.

AECL Tale 'Confuses'

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie left the Commons in confusion Wednesday with statements that no money has been paid in post-contract services to an agent involved in a nuclear reactor sale.

Opposition MPs said they could not understand the minister's replies. They said they would press him on the issue again today.

Gillespie told the House no payment had been made on the post-contract services portion of a contract dealing with a reactor sale to South Korea.

"I do not know how many times I will have to repeat that for his benefit," the minister said in reply to questions from David MacDonald (PC—Egmont).

But later Gillespie said in an interview what he really meant was that "no further payment has been made" beyond a $2 million advance already given the agent, Shaul Eisenberg of Tel Aviv.

MacDonald described the exchange as "an incredible thing," saying he felt the minister had forgotten about the advance payment to the agent.

Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland-Durham), chairman of the public accounts committee when it started the AECL investigation, said he found it hard to understand the answers.

"The long and short of it is that Eisenberg is $2 million ahead even if he does nothing," Lawrence said.

What caused the furore was a statement from AECL chairman Ross Campbell that the government company may never be able to get its money's worth out of Eisenberg for post-contract services.

The $2 million advance on the part of the contract was included in a $15.4 million payment to Eisenberg in the spring of 1976.

A Commons committee that investigated the payment agreed with reports from the federal auditor-general that insufficient documentation is available to back $8 million of the money.

Campbell said it will depend on the circumstances whether his company gets its worth on the post-contract services, saying the fuss over the whole agent question has hampered relations between the two.

He said that under the deal, Eisenberg was to submit invoices for the post-contract services which would at first be credited against the $2 million advance. Over the period of six or seven years the agent could get another $3 million.

But Campbell said the first invoice from Eisenberg had been rejected and none had been received since.

Gillespie said the government will try to get the work done, but added he has been told that the controversy over the payments "made it virtually impossible for Eisenberg to work in South Korea."

He said that, in any case, the $15.4 million paid to Eisenberg "is less than the total that would have been paid had we not renegotiated the contract."

In the spring of 1976, Campbell renegotiated the deal to change a contract giving Eisenberg a flat-fee payment of $20 million.

Demonstration For Panama

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — About 100 U.S. students walked out of their schools Wednesday to demonstrate against U.S. Senate ratification of the new Panama canal treaties. The students called on President Carter to visit the Canal Zone and tell residents why he favors "giving the canal away." The treaties now are under consideration by the Senate.

Mexico Death Probe Starts

TORONTO (CP) — An external affairs department spokesman said Wednesday that Canadian officials are not satisfied with the investigation by Mexican authorities into the death of Lonnie Neely, an RCMP contable who died while on vacation.

The spokesman said that Ken Burke, first secretary to the Canadian ambassador in Mexico, has been sent to the west coast resort town of Mazatlan to investigate the cause of Neely's death.

Authorities in Mazatlan have said Neely, 22, died Feb. 18 or early Feb. 19 as a result of a drunken accident in which he jumped from a third-floor hotel balcony, but the spokesman said that "we're hoping Ken Burke can come up with something more concrete."

Dr. William Parker, Manitoba chief medical officer examined Neely's body and said Wednesday that Neely died of "blows to the head and his body was covered in bruises."

Neely worked in Blairemore, Alta., and his parents home is in Swan Lake, Man.

Mexican authorities said Neely and fellow-vacationer, RCMP Constable Les Kjemhus, both began drinking soon after they arrived and Neely tried to break down the door of an elderly American couple staying in the same hotel.

Baltacor Sotto, a Mazatlan police officer, said in a telephone interview that three security guards chased Neely from the room.

"There were no shots, no guns fired. . . just a chase," Sotto said.

He said that after Neely jumped from the balcony he was taken to hospital but he was already dead.

Neely's staff-sargeant in Blairemore said he did not believe stories that Neely was drunk out of his mind.

"Lonnie did not drink any more than the rest of us," he said.

Unity, Economy Linked

LAFLECHE, Sask. (CP) — Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen told a Liberal party meeting Wednesday it is useless and futile to try to separate the issues of national unity and the economic health of the country.

MacEachen said every part of Canada must be given a feeling of full participation in the country.

It is important to clear the way about uncertainity of Quebec's future and the only solution to that situation is to win the referendum, he said.

As for the country's economic well being, MacEachen said the recent first minister's conference emphasized the need for Canada to improve its competitiveness in the world market.

MacEachen also spent part of the day in Gravelbourg where he addressed francophone students at College Mathieu. MacEachen compared the problems of francophones outside of Quebec in Saskatchewan with similar problems experienced by Acadians in his home province of Nova Scotia.

INVESTIGATE ARNETT: MLA

Vancouver East NDP MLA Alex Macdonald said Wednesday that the government should investigate whether a civil servant in the premier's office was used for partisan political activity.

Jan Duncan, Bennett's constituency secretary, said last week that John Arnett, the premier's press secretary, worked on the preparation of Your MLA Reports, a Social Credit publication.

Bennett said Monday the allegation that Arnett helped prepare the publication was a "silly, stupid charge."

He said Arnett collected information consisting of old news releases and supplied it to the constituency.

"It is imperative that this matter of John Arnett's role in helping in the preparation of a partisan pamphlet now being distributed in Premier Bennett's riding is cleared up," Macdonald said.

Arnett orginally was hired as director of information in the education department under the NDP government.

After the Social Credit Party was elected in December, 1975, he transferred to the premier's office as press secretary, at a salary of $28,000 a year.

Etna Erupts

CATANIA, Sicily (Reuter) — Mount Etna, Europe's largest active volcano, erupted Wednesday, hurling molten lava and rocks hundreds of metres into the air. Police said a three-kilometre stream of lava from a crater on Etna's northwestern ridge posed no immediate threat to local inhabitants.

UBC ASSAULTER GIVEN PROBATION

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of British Columbia scientist found guilty of indecently assaulting a five-year-old girl last summer was granted a conditional discharge Wednesday in provincial court.

Dr. Glenn Lee Slemmer, 38, of Vancouver was placed on two years' probation by Judge H. J. McGivern.

Slemmer, a United States citizen, who came here four years ago to work at the UBC cancer centre, was found guilty of indecent assault May 22. Court was told he put his hand under the girl's clothing while her mother slept nearby..

McGivern said he weighed heavily on a psychiatric report that said Slemmer was an intelligent man who posed no threat to the community.

Defence lawyer James Sumpton said a conditional discharge was necessary to avoid Slemmer's deportation to the U.S. He argued Slemmer was involved in valuable research at UBC and was making significant discoveries in the field of breast cancer.

Entered as evidence in the case were children's clothing, crayons, nudist's books, photographs of children and catalogue cutouts of children pasted together on paper.

Prosecutor Judy Bowers argued that the clothing and pictures indicated Slemmer had a long history of sex deviation and that a conditional discharge would not be in the public interest.

Distance Learning Institute Urged

A special institute to deliver "distance education" in B.C. and co-ordinate programs should be created by Education Minister Pat McGeer, according to a ministry report.

The report, released this week by the ministry's distance education planning group (DEPG), recommends the institute operate as a support agency for the post-secondary education system by providing centralized service.

The system would also include public libraries and industrial and community sites, according to the report.

It was presented to McGeer by the group manager, economist Pat Carney.

Distance education is defined in the report as delivery of programs to people socially or geographically isolated from traditional learning institutions.

These programs include adult basic education, vocational, technical and careers training, professional upgrading and academic courses.

Shift workers, those beyond commuting distance of campuses, the elderly and the handicapped were some examples given of people who could make use of distance learning programs.

Programs should be tailored to meet individual needs, a practice that is impractical for traditional college campuses, the report said.

Third- and fourth-year academic courses are low priority according to a province-wide DEPG survey, the report stated.

The most effective methods of getting distance education to the people will include tutoring, printed matter, audio or video tapes, computer-assisted learning and broadcast systems, the report says.

"Interactive systems, which provide for a two-way flow of information or communication between teacher and student, are considered to be the most educationally effective," the report states.

DRUGSTORE BURNS

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A pharmacy on the bottom floor of a two-storey office building in this central Interior British Columbia city was heavily damaged by fire early today. Several offices on the second floor also were damaged.

A fire department spokesman said the blaze appeared to be contained in one building, despite fears the flames could spread to an adjacent paint store.

Other nearby businesses received considerable smoke and water damage, the spokesman said.

Police said a firemen suffered a leg injury. His condition was not known.

No damage estimate was available and cause of the fire was under investigation.

$6.6M SEWAGE VOTE IN SOOKE

Sooke residents will vote later this year on a $6,640,000 sewage and collection disposal referendum.

The Capital Regional Disttrict's public works committee Wednesday discussed the plan, which would include a collection system covering most of Sooke from Sooke River to Whiffin Spit, a treatment plant and a short outfall into Sooke Bay.

The proposal will be referred to the Sooke forum council for consideration of the areas to be included.

The committee was told Sooke was divided into five areas for a preliminary study.

The average estimated cost per house annually for operation and installation of the system varies depending on the area included.

The cheapest would be to include the entire area at $251 per connection. If the Broom Hill area is excluded, the remaining connections would cost $265 per year. Exclusion of the Billings Point area would raise costs to $295 per house.

Exclusion of both Broom Hill and Billings Point would raise costs to $315 per connection, according to preliminary figures.

TV Eye Harm Denied

TORONTO (CP) — Parents who warn their children not to sit too close to the television because they will harm their eyes are misinformed, an eye specialist told family doctors Wednesday at an ophthalmology seminar.

Dr. Bruce Lennox said a child's eyes can adjust from long to short distances more quickly than those of an adult.

He told the seminar that people who suffer from migraine headaches often see flashing lights or experience nausea before the onset of a headache and suggested that sufferers take medication to ward off the headache as soon as these symptoms occur.

Dr. William Macrae of the Hospital for Sick Children said that two per cent of the general population, including many children, suffer from strabismus, often called squint or crossed eyes.

A child sees double when the eyes fail to focus together and unless the condition is corrected, permanent blindness in one eye may result, Dr. Macrae told the seminar, sponsored by the Ontario Medical Association, the University of Toronto medical school and the Ontario chapter of the College of Family Physicians of Canada.

He added that strabismus can be present in a child's eyes even without any obvious squint and could mean that vision loss may not be noticed until it is too late to correct the condition.

Dr. Macrae disputed what he said was a commonly held assumption that an infant is too young to be tested for squint because he cannot identify letters or numbers.

Referring to the "screaming baby test," Dr. Macrae said that by covering one eye at a time, a person can determine if the child can see because when the good eye is covered, the infant screams.

Mystery Deaths On Yacht

PAPEETE. Tahiti (UPI) — Lory Susan Hoskam, the only uninjured survivor of the tragic voyage of the yacht Spellbound, has left Tahiti for the United States, police said today.

A Kirkland, Wash., couple died under bizarre circumstances during an around-the-world voyage on the Spellbound, their daughter was in serious condition with a fractured skull and their son suffered a broken wrist.

Papeete police said they will turn the mysterious case over to U.S. investigators.

Gary Edwards, 27, told police his father, Lawrence, 50, was killed instantly Friday when he slipped and hit his head in the 54-foot yacht's cockpit. He said his 44-year-old stepmother, Joan, committed suicide with a pistol the following day.

He said he wrapped both bodies in 175 pounds of chains and buried them at sea, but could not remember the exact location.

Also on board the vessel were Edwards' sister, Kerry, who was taken to a Papeete hospital in critical condition with a fractured skull, and Edwards' girlfriend, Mrs. Hoskam, who was unharmed.

Mrs. Hoskam, also a resident of Kirkland, Wash., left Tahiti Wednesday for the United States, police said.

The Spellbound was spotted Monday sailing erratically near the island of Rangiora, 180 miles northeast of Tahiti. A rescue vessel was dispatched and guided the boat to Rangiora. Gary said he had trouble sailing with a broken wrist.

Gary told police in Papeete that his sister had trouble "keeping her balance" on the boat and suffered her head wound when she fell onto her bunk.

"This situation is not at all normal," Papeete Police Capt. Michel Bereze said. "These people who fall all the time."

"There are several points which need to be explained," he said.

World Anarchy Possible by 2000

LONDON (AP) — British Foreign Secretary David Owen called Wednesday for a new world economic order to avert international anarchy and chaos by the year 2000.

Owen, delivering the Gilbert Murray Memorial Lecture to the Oxford Union Society, urged that:

—Japan double its foreign aid budget within one year instead of five as planned;

—The Soviet Union and other Communist countries cut military aid and increase other forms of aid to developing countries. He said weapons make up about two-thirds of Moscow's aid budget compared to one-fourth of the U.S. aid total;

—Third World countries trim military spending, which he said climbed to $51 billion in 1976, or three times the amount they received in development aid.

Owen said he was being deliberately pessimistic in assuming the major powers "will go on as we are going now until the year 2000." He offered a prediction of what might happen if those powers cling to the status quo.

He foresees the current world recession leading to countries protecting their trade, followed by a decline in aid for needy countries that would hamper their industrial expansion. Their markets would in turn shrink and deepen the general recession.

Owen said some debtor-countries might renege on commitments. This would touch off a worldwide banking crisis and severe deflation, and "in the developing countries, with plummeting living standards, political extremists and demagogues would vie with each other in making impossible promises of better things to come." He said governments would change repeatedly, extremism would mount and the world would be threatened with chaos and anarchy.

He said "the trends are there" for his grim prediction, but added the major powers still can avert it if "a new and rational basis for organizing the world's economy and managing its resources can be agreed."

Carter Nudging Miners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, nervously awaiting the outcome of the United Mine Worker contract ratification vote, is taking subtle steps to guide 166,000 striking miners toward approval of the pact.

Officially, the administration is staying out of the ratification drive put together by union leaders. Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said at a news conference Wednesday it would be inappropriate for federal officials to campaign for the pact.

But sources said the administration approached Senator Edward Kennedy, (Dem. Mass.) earlier this week to discuss whether he would be willing to help in the drive.

Sources said the discussion Monday included the possibility of Kennedy making a trip to West Virginia to urge miners to vote an end to their strike that began 87 days ago. Kennedy decided against such a step.

Several top administration officials believe ratification is far from certain.

Marshall said there is little chance for new negotiations and said the administration is prepared to act immediately to end the strike if the contract is turned down.

Pilot Relates Hijack

NICOSIA (Reuter) — The pilot of the Cyprus Airways plane commandeered by two Arab gunmen 10 days ago said Wednesday he was convinced that negotiations to free the hostages were completed before the bloody confrontation between Greek-Cypriot National Guard troops and Egyptian commandos erupted.

The British pilot, Captain Sam Melling, was giving evidence at a preliminary hering of charges against Samir Mohammed Khadar and Zayed Hussein al-Ali.

Khadar, a 28-year-old Jordanian, and Ali, 26, who holds a Kuwaiti passport, have been charged with the premeditated murder of Egyptian editor Youssef El-Sebaei, a close associate of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. The charge carries a mandatory death penalty.

Melling described how negotiations began for release of the hostages. Eventually agreement seemed close and the two accused gave permission for the crew to leave, Captain Melling said.

Then the shooting began. "We called to everybody to get down on the floor, which they did very quickly. The accused were in the cabin, toward the rear. Everybody was quite frightened," he recalled.

In reply to defence questions, Melling said he was convinced negotiations to release the hostages, in return for Cyprus passports and safe conduct for the accused, had been successfully completed before the shooting started.

Meanwhile, in Cairo, the two Arab gunmen will be tried in absentia by an Egyptian court, the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram reports.

Damages $1.05m In Drug Paralysis

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese court Wednesday awarded damages of $1.05 million to 16 persons who claimed they took an anti-diarrhea drug and contracted a nerve-paralysing disorder that has struck about 11,000 Japanese.

The drug is sold in Canada under the name Entero-viaform.

A lawyer for the plaintiffs in Kanazawa, a city on the Sea of Japan 320 kilometres (200 miles) west of Tokyo, complained that the court had granted "a mere 35 per cent of what we demanded" from three drug companies — Ciba-Geigy Japan Ltd., Tanabe Ltd. and Takeda Chemical Industries Ltd.

Plaintiffs elsewhere said they see the size of the award as a move to pressure them into settling out of court.

A total of 4,045 drug-users who claim they contracted the disorder have asked $672 million in 21 lawsuits filed in courts all over Japan since the government in 1970 banned the anti-diarrhea drug — quinoform, also known as clioquinol. It had been used in Japan since 1953.

Some cases have been settled out of court, some plaintiffs died and courts in Tokyo and Okayama earlier granted damages to 55 Japanese.

The disorder is known as SMON — an acronym for subacute myelo opticoneuropathy. The condition affects spinal and optic nerves. It causes numbness of the limbs, defective vision, psychic disorders, diarrhea and other stomach ailments.

In Osaka, 300 patients and supporters protesting the Kanazawa settlement gathered at Tanabe headquarters, demanding to see company executives. The officials refused.

Tanabe has claimed the disorder is virus-caused and a spokesman said the company will appeal the Kanazawa decision.

A Ciba-Geigy spokesman said: "We are admitting that the drug caused SMON, but only in Japan and we are doing this only as a formality in order to expedite pending cases."

Soweto to Get Home Rule

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — The white-minority government has pledged to give full local autonomy to Soweto, South Africa's largest urban community and home for 1.5 million blacks.

"I undertake that within a stipulated period of coming into being of the Community Council of Soweto, it shall be accorded full autonomy in local affairs," Connie Mulder, the minister in charge of black affairs, said in a statement after Tuesday's parliamentary session in Cape Town. He did not specify what the stipulated period would be.

The nine million urban blacks living in areas designated as white are a major stumbling block in the government's plans to make the country's 19 million blacks citizens of ministate tribal homelands. Soweto has been the hotbed of militant opposition to the plan and its leaders have demanded local autonomy.

Mulder did not mention Soweto's Committee of Ten led by Nthato Motlana. Most members of the committee, a self-appointed leadership group recognized by the majority of the community, have been in detention since Oct. 19 along with other adult and student leaders.

Computer Curbs Follow $1M Liquor Theft

A $1.75 million computerized inventory system is being developed by the B.C. Liquor Distribution Branch in the wake of the disappearance of more than $1 million worth of stock.

Deputy Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Tex Enemark said today all security matters throughout the liquor distribution system are under review and security has been tightened while the inventory system is being installed with the help of thd B.C. Systems Corp.

Consumer Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said Wednesday well over $1 million of liquor at retail value has gone missing because of shoddy security.

The minister said he is not accusing liquor employees of thefts because he has still not heard from the RCMP who were called in several weeks ago to conduct an investigation.

"But I can tell you that the security has been shoddy and I can tell you it is easier to steal a case of liquor than it is to steal a bottle. And I can tell you that it is easier to steal a forklift load of liquor than it is to steal a case."

Mair said in an interview he suspects that hard liquor made up most of the missing stock and quantity of missing merchandise is for the branch's current fiscal year which ends March 31.

"I don't know how far back the problem goes," Mair said, "but I suspect that it was going on during the NDP's term and even during the old Social Credit government's days.

There are 203 liquor stores throughout B.C. that produce annual gross sales of close to $500 million. Almost all the liquor, wine and beer is handled through the liquor control board's Vancouver warehouse.

"There has been a very casual attitude towards security and we intend to turn the place (warehouse) into a sort of armed camp," he said.

"For example there was nobody full-time at the gate checking on what went out against invoices. There were not enough security people and the security chief didn't even have a private office so he could talk on the phone without being overheard."

RESERVES CUSHION FALL

Pressure Mounts In Dollar Slide

Times News Services

The United States dollar, which fell to record lows Wednesday, came under renewed pressure on Europe's money markets today.

The Canadian dollar was also traded down following an announcement that the Bank of Canada spent $706.6 million in foreign reserves during the month of February to cushion the currency's fall.

At noon, the dollar was changing hands at 89.38 U.S. cents on the interbank wholesale market, down from Wednesday's close of 89.49 U.S. cents.

Figures released by Ottawa show that as a result of intervention by the central bank last month, official monetary reserves have fallen to $3,698.8 million in U.S. funds, their lowest value in nearly eight years.

West Germany's central bank decided not to take measures to halt the U.S. currency's slide.

"It looks like we're headed for a 1.90-mark dollar now," a German dealer said after hearing the bank's announcement.

Gold bullion stood at its highest level this year after the regular morning fixing by dealers in London.

Gold was fixed at $183.50 U.S. an ounce, up 50 cents on Wednesday's close, and $14 an ounce more expensive than it was Jan. 3, the first trading day of 1978.

The West German central bank decided it would not erect barriers to foreign capital or change credit policy to arrest the U.S. currency's year-long decline.

There had been speculation the West Germans might follow the Swiss and impose controls on foreign capital to discourage speculators from unloading dollars to buy marks. Such a move would probably have boosted the dollar in the short term, financial sources said.

The U.S. dollar was fixed at 2.0085 marks shortly before the announcement, but dropped to 2.0020 marks after the bank's central council statement was released in Frankfurt.

On Wednesday, the dollar was fixed at 1.9920 marks, breaking the two-mark barrier for the first time.

Canada's official monetary reserves have fallen to their lowest value in nearly eight years.

By Feb. 28, total reserves had fallen 19 per cent in the month to $3,698.8 million. It was the lowest level for reserves since March 31, 1970, shortly before the government freed the dollar to float and find its own value in currency markets against other currencies.

All figures are in terms of U.S. dollars.

Sinclair Stevens, Progressive Conservative finance critic, said the reserves loss was "about 40 per cent higher than we had expected." He said he expects the govern-

CHAPLIN'S COFFIN VANISHES IN NIGHT

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (Reuter) — Charlie Chaplin's coffin has disappeared from the grave where the comedian was buried above Lake Geneva, police said here today.

A police spokesman told reporters he could give no further details but that a police statement might be issued later.

The comedian died at his home in Corsier-sur-Vevey, near Montreux, on Christmas day last year. He was buried in the local village cemetery on Dec. 27.

A police official in Vevey said the coffin had apparently been taken away last night.

"The grave is empty, the coffin has gone. Judging by the state of the disturbed soil it looks as though it was taken away last night," he said.

Crazy-Quilt Pattern In Gas Hike

The Hillside Esso gas station had three customers at 10:20 a.m. today while the Gulf station across the street had only one.

Yet Esso gas was selling at 88.9 cents per gallon while Gulf was 5 cents cheaper at 83.9.

It was all part of a crazy quilt of prices across the city this morning as oil companies phased in increased rates.

Stations listed standard gasoline at 82.9, 83.9, 87.9 or 88.9 at different locations.

Because of a $1 a barrel increase in crude oil Jan. 1, oil companies may increase their wholesale prices effective today.

Gulf and Esso in separate statements said they expected retail prices to rise 5 cents a gallon across British Columbia while Shell said its stations probably would boost prices 4 cents a gallon.

All companies are expected to have their prices up 4 or 5 cents by Friday afternoon.

Prices for supreme and unleaded gasoline will go up by similar amounts.

The price increases may not last, however, because of a continuing price war.

Last fall, prices went from 82.9 to 86.9 because of a previous $1-a-barrel increase in crude oil prices. Service stations gradually reduced this price to the 83.9 level which prevailed until today's increases.

Some stations have already cut their new price from 88.9 to 87.9.

Price increases were felt in all other petroleum products as well.

Just after midnight Esso pushed its furnace oil price to 58.1 cents a gallon from 54.3 cents, a boost of 3.8 cents.

There will be a similar round of gas price increases Aug. 1 following another $1-a-barrel increase in crude oil prices June 1. Oil companies must wait 60 days to pass along their increased costs.

RENTAL CONTROL TO GO?

VANCOUVER (CP) — There is a 90-per-cent chance the British Columbia government will start to phase out its residential rent control program by the end of June, Consumer Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said Wednesday.

Mair said his ministry is compiling up-to-date statistics of rental and housing accommodation and vacancies in different regions of the province that will be used in any de-control program.

"But I am nervous about the whole thing," he said. "I don't want a horror story on our hands."

Hydro Unions Huddle

Officials from four unions representing 9,500 B.C. Hydro employees huddled today with the B.C. Federation of Labor for a strategy discussion.

On the agenda was the possibility of co-ordinated strike action beginning as early as Monday.

Three of the four unions are in a position to strike.

A substantial majority of the 3,600 office workers Wednesday rejected the Crown corporation's latest contract offer.

Fred Trotter, president of Local 378, Office and Technical Employees Union, said his union is seeking more negotiations with Hydro before taking strike action.

OTEU contract negotiations are stalled over wages and pensions. The union wants a guarantee that Hydro will not raise the rate of contribution or change the benefits of the pension plan during a two-year agreement.

In the Fraser Valley, electrical workers represented by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers continued a wildcat strike over the suspension of three linemen.

The IBEW, Local 258, is the only union to sign a new collective agreement with Hydro.

Postal Strike Poised

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers is poised for strike action if conciliation fails to resolve the contract dispute between the union and the post office, CUPW president Jean-Claude Parrot said Wednesday.

The Public Service Staff Relations Board has scheduled hearings today and Friday to set terms of reference for the three-member conciliation board.

CUPW, representing 23,000 mail sorters and postal clerks, predicted a tough argument over the terms of reference.

"At the hearings, the post office and treasury board will parade all the restrictions on full collective bargaining contained in the Public Service Staff Relations Act . . . and other federal legislation."

The union is asking that the board be given "the widest possible terms of reference."

The last contract covering inside postal workers expired June 30, but the union will not be in a legal strike position until seven days after the conciliation board has reported.

Parrot said about 3,000 off-duty postal workers set up information picket lines across the country Wednesday to press the union's demand that the post office be made into a Crown corporation.

He said the union will attempt to resolve its dispute through conciliation, but added: "It is obvious that we are going into a position where very shortly we may well have to strike."

Parrot said the union started negotiations last April "and we still don't know the position of the employer on our demands."

Key union demands are the right for CUPW to veto proposed technological changes it feels would adversely affect members and an end to the use of casual, non-union labor in the post office.

The union says a major difficulty in contract talks is that bargaining for the government is conducted by federal treasury board officials rather than top post office department officials, who are more familiar with the problems.

STRIKE FORCE manning the picket lines tries to stop a car belonging to a supervisor from entering a Calgary municipal yard this morning. Local 37 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees went on strike shortly after 7 a.m. today after the city offered a two-per-cent pay increase and a reduction in the work week to 38 hours from 40. A number of services, including garbage collection, swimming pools, ice arenas, the Calgary Zoo, and water and sewage installations have been suspended.

INDIANS VOW COOK PROTEST

A plan by native Indians to demonstrate at all celebrations marking the bicentennial of Captain James Cook's arrival in what now is B.C. has been endorsed by the West Coast District Council of Chiefs, a council spokesman said Wednesday.

He said the council, which represents 4,000 Nootkas in 13 bands on Vancouver Island, has also endorsed proposals by the Mawachaht Indian Band of Gold River that the concept of the bicentennial be rejected, and an advertising campaign mounted to give the Indians' version of Cook's 1778 arrival at Friendly Cove on the west coast of the island.

The Nootkas recently announced they will boycott the provincial government's bicentennial celebrations and keep visitors out of the remote coastal settlement, about 40 kilometres west of Gold River, unless they received a new longhouse, sewers, cable television, a ferry, gymnasium and unstated land grants from the provincial government.

Travel Industry Minister Grace McCarthy said the demands are outrageous but the government offered a $100,000 longhouse — which she later increased to $200,000 — and assistance in the creation of a crafts centre for the manufacture and sale of Indian art work.

The Mawachaht band will meet next week to decide on Mrs. McCarthy's latest offer, but the Indian spokesman said band members are angry because the government has not taken their demands seriously.

He said it is doubtful they will accept the minister's offer.

Rains Rake California

LOS ANGELES — Mud smashed into houses and power lines snapped under the weight of crashing branches as the hills and towns of southern California buckled Wednesday before a new onslaught of rain.

The storm slowed to a trickle in many areas by midday, but Pat Rowe, a National Weather Service spokesman, said a new storm is blowing eastward across the Pacific Ocean, and more rain is expected to drench many areas today.

In the exclusive San Fernando Valley community of Encino, a small hill was reduced to muddy ooze that inundated one house and damaged two others.

N. H. Green and his wife were awakened early Wednesday by the sound of the mud smashing into their newly remodelled home. The $100,000 house was badly damaged, but the Greens managed to escape injury.

Southern California Edison Co. said about 100,000 customers were briefly without electric service after more than 100 power lines were downed or damaged by the storm. Power outages were longest, spokesman Bob Krauch said, in Ranch Palos Verdes, where 4,400 customers were without service for three to seven hours.

Gale-force winds buffeted San Diego County, where 13 centimetres of rain fell in 24 hours at Cuyamaca Reservoir. A flash flood watch was issued for deserts and coastal mountains.

Many city streets in Los Angeles and throughout southern California were flooded, and minor traffic accidents kept police busy.

Meanwhile, a sheriff's deputy drowned and hundreds of Phoenix homes were threatened by flooding in the wake of a storm that dumped up to eight inches of rain on parts of Arizona.

'Public Hearings' Kept Secret

DUNCAN (CP) — What were billed as "public hearings" by a provincial study group collecting information on the Cowichan River estuary were held in private, much to the dismay of concerned officials here.

A spokesman for the environment ministry said, however, that it was never intended to hold public hearings.

"It was a misunderstanding," the spokesman said. "When we announced that there would be public hearings, we meant that any member of the public could present a brief to the task force.

"The presentations were to be made by appointment with the task force."

Duncan Mayor Ken Paskin said he is surprised the hearings were held in private.

"This is going to make it very difficult for the people involved, such as local politicians, regional district board and North Cowichan council members, who are going to be asked to make decisions on the estuary, yet they are not allowed to hear or be present, when briefs are presented."

North Cowichan Mayor George Whittaker said he is upset because he wanted to hear the feelings of some of the people presenting briefs.

Study chairman Bryan Gates said his group was on a special, in-camera, fact-finding mission.

"We are not holding a public hearing, or a public meeting, and never advertised the hearings as such, although it did appear in the press as a public hearing."

The study group, instructed to come up with an over-all plan for the area, includes North Cowichan Alderman Graham Bruce, Cowichan regional director Lorne Campbell and Norm Worsley of the provincial economic development minstry.

Barbara Wallace (NDP — Cowichan-Malahat) told the task force Wednesday it should carefully consider the province's commitment to preserving agricultural land.

The Duncan area has the highest concentration of land within the Agricultural Land Reserve on Vancouver Island, which is starved for farm land, she said.

Record Rights

The sale of oil and gas exploration rights in B.C. during the current fiscal year hit an all-time high of $196 million.

Last year's sales were $45.6 million.

Ozard Asks for Pay

Bill Ozard planned to go down to the travel ministry office today to pick up his pay cheque but he didn't really expect to get one.

He's the man who was hired as a travel marketing supervisor at $2,035 a month.

But two hours after he reported for work Feb. 16 he was told the job had been withdrawn.

The job was apparently withdrawn because Ozard ran an ad in Victoria newspapers thanking those who had helped him get the position. Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy was on the list and not at all happy about the fact.

Ozard and his lawyer, Scott Marshall, feel he is still employed by the travel ministry.

"It is a fundamental fact of contract law that once an offer is made and accepted, it is binding and cannot be withdrawn," says Ozard.

He said he has a letter from A. G. Richardson, chairman of the Public Service Commission, stating the job had been withdrawn.

In return, a letter was hand-delivered to Richardson last Friday saying Ozard considers himself to still be employed. He has yet to get a reply.

Richardson said today he is waiting for legal advice and expects to answer Ozard by Friday.

In the meantime, Ozard, a Victoria native and former deputy minister of travel for Nova Scotia, is going to try and collect a pay cheque for the month of February.

Hydro Cuts Condo Rate

B.C. Hydro has announced reduced residential rates for condominiums previously paying commercial rates for communal uses.

Although condominium customers now qualify for the lower rate, it will come into effect from today only for those who apply before April 1.

Introduction of the lower rates comes after owners of a large Vancouver West End condominium development won B.C. Energy Commission backing last month that the higher rate was undue discrimination against the strata corporation.

Hydro has been charging individual condominium owners residential rates but commercial rates to the strata corporation for electricity used for facilities such as garages, pools and outdoor lighting.

"Application by customers is necessary because Hydro has no method of identifying those who may be entitled to the new rate," the corporation said in a news release.

KM. MILEAGE IS KLICKAGE?

TORONTO (CP) — Klickage could become the new metric slang word for mileage if Toronto librarian Mary Virtue has her way.

The word, submitted by Ernest McCallum, 69, of Sawyerville, Que., was chosen top entry in a country-wide contest started last month by Ms. Virtue.

Among the 600 ideas from persons across Canada were kmileage with the k silent and kiltage for persons with a Scottish background.

She plans to write to the Metric Commission asking that klickage become part of the metric vocabulary.

The winning word will be included in Brave New Words, a dictionary by Bill Sherk of Toronto.

Seventeen persons submitted the winning word but McCallum's was the first received, said Ms. Virtue, a librarian at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute.

McCallum, a retired engineer, is not impressed with the metric system.

"It's for the birds," he said.

The winner will have use of a new car for two weeks, a jogging T-shirt with the winning entry on it and a set of four metric books.

Each entrant gets a metric converter.

Vander Zalm Raps UIC Delays

Federal government delays of up to three months in processing Unemployment Insurance Commission applications are costing tyhe province at least $10,000 daily in welfare payments, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said today.

The minister said the chief complaint among social workers throughout the province has been the wholesale referral of legitimate UIC applicants to them by federal UIC officers unable to process the UIC applications in time.

The ministry undertook a two-month survey and discovered between 39 and 46 per cent of all new welfare applicants are people awaiting UIC benefits.

In four offices in the Vancouver area the percentage was nearly 75 per cent.

"We are faced with an intolerable situation where people who qualify for and should be getting UIC are forced to come to welfare because of inefficiency and ineptness on the part of UIC offices," Vander Zalm said.

Human resources offices across the province are reporting that delays of six weeks for UIC processing are now standard and that waiting periods of two and three months are not uncommon.

Vander Zalm said he will bring up the problem next week at a meeting with his federal counterpart in Ottawa.

Art Theft Loot Problem

CALGARY (CP) — City police officers say they are frustrated by some of the problems encountered in trying to solve a series of multi-million-dollar art thefts.

Last month, detectives raided a southwest Calgary home and seized art works valued at about $5 million.

As more art works were recovered a question emerged—where would police store the recovered items?

It was decided to store them at police headquarters, but there was not enough space. Offices had to be emptied to make room for the hundreds of boxes.

Supt Ernie Reimer said about 20 per cent of the recovered items have been identified by their owners. The rest must be displayed so that those who had been robbed can view the collection and identify their belongings.

Reimer said police estimate it would take two days to unpack the articles and put them on display. But that task, which began last weekend, will not be completed until next week.

Three detectives have been assigned to prepare the items for inspection, Reimer added.

Raymond Hertzog, 39, an associate professor at the University of Calgary, and Ernest McLeod, 35, a junior high school teacher, were to appear in provincial court Thursday on 38 counts arising from the raid.

the weather

Cold dry Arctic air covers most of the province. Most of B.C. reported below-freezing temperatures overnight and recordings of minus 10 to minus 15 were common in the Interior. Strong March sun should bring temperatures to 5 to 10 degrees above during the day along the coast but it is unlikley that Interior points will rise much above zero. Little change in the present pattern of bright brisk days and cool crisp nights is expected for a day or two.

TRAMP FLIGHT EYED

NEW YORK (AP) — Seaboard World Airlines, an all-cargo airline, applied today for permission to carry passengers along with freight across the Atlantic, charging as little as $100 — approximately $50 cheaper than the Laker Airways Skytrain trip — for a New York-to-London flight.

The proposal would make Seaboard's giant 747s an airborne version of tramp steamers, the ocean traders whose primary business is cargo but which carry passengers cut rate.

Seaboard said it can alter the configuration of its planes to make room for anywhere from 19 to 250 passengers. The number it would carry would vary depending on how much freight business the airline was handling.

In addition to London, Seabord has asked for approval of flights, one-way or round-trip, to Paris, Frankfurt, Rome, Milan, Zurich, Glasgow, Brussels, Copenhagen, Oslo and Stockholm.

Seaboard operates from New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Boston.

Joint Russian-Czech Mission in Space

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has launched a spaceship manned by a Russian and a Czechoslovakian, the Tass news agency reported today.

It was the world's first two-nation space launch.

Tass said the Soyuz-28 spacecraft would link up with the Salyut-6 space laboratory, in which Soviet cosmonauts Yuri Romanenko and Georgy Grechko this Saturday will break the 84-day world record for the longest single flight in space. They have been orbiting the earth since Dec. 10.

The agency identified the crew of the new space capsule as Alexei Gubarev, the Soviet commander, and Czechoslovak "cosmonaut researcher" Vladimir Remek. It said both reported feeling well and were carrying out their work program.

"With the launching of the Soyuz-28," Tass said, "a new stage is opened in the exploration and use of outer space for peaceful purposes jointly by the socialist countries under the 'Intercosmos' co-operation program."

It noted that the program calls for the launching of Polish and East German cosmonauts as well in 1978.

Some Just Enter For the Hell of It

The Central Saanich Cross-Country is very dirty and slightly dotty but contestants have a rousing time thrashing and splashing their way through the rolling countryside

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Even if Saturday's weather is fine and sunny, hundreds of residents and visitors are certain to get wet.

In fact they'll be soaked. And muddy. Perhaps scratched and bruised. And probably more than a little tired.

But, strange as it seems to the uninitiated, that's all part of the fun in the Central Saanich Cross-Country Run, an event which started off in a relatively small way in 1968 and now attracts a huge field of athletes.

Last year there were 800 youngsters and adults in the eight classes; this year there could be even more.

Busloads of competitors from Vancouver-area track clubs and others from Washington will be coming over to compete against the local talent.

They are the dedicated types who grimly relish the loneliness of the long-distance runner and take their year-round training seriously.

But there are other free spirits with a more cavalier approach, who enter for the hell of it. And this is one of the things that gives the Central Saanich run its slightly dotty reputation.

Meet director Malcolm McAvity recalled that last year one such impromptu group — he believes they were provincial government employees — entered a team calling themselves "The Dusty Sneakers."

"They didn't place all that well but they had fun," he added.

Then there's the traditional rivalry between staffers of the Sidney Review and a team from the Armed Forces diving unit, which also competes in the Sidney whaleboat race.

"They always taunt each other, boasting how hard they've been training and what they're going to do to the opposition."

This kind of spirit reflects the philosophy of the man who began the whole thing, the late Basil ("Nip") Parker, a teacher at Glenlyon School.

McAvity, a former student of Parker's, says despite being an amputee he was a formidable participant in sport and outdoor activities of every kind.

In starting the Central Saanich run, Parker was trying to provide something for students other than the stars who predictably made all the teams, he said.

It was to be something anyone could strive for, basically a fun event, and that's how it is to this day.

McAvity said unlike some so-called cross-country races which are run mainly over roads, this one is almost entirely over open country.

There are fences to clamber over, inches-deep mud to plow through and a notorious water obstacle — Hagan Creek — to negotiate, twice.

In the past, more than one runner has come to momentary grief in the rain-swollen creek, emerging soaked to the skin.

The course for the open men's class and the juvenile boys (16 and 17-year-olds) is five miles but for all others it's 2¾ miles, except the bantam girls (11 and 12) who run two miles.

The event starts at 1 p.m. Saturday in Centennial Park on Wallace Drive, and most of the races finish at picturesque St. Stephen's Church, St. Stephen's Road (off Mount Newton Cross Road).

Much of the action takes place over the scenic fields of Woodwyn Farm on the West Saanich Road. McAvity says two good observation spots are the weir on the farm — "it's always fun to see them splashing through the creek" — and the western end of Mount Newton Cross Road, with a fine view of the whole Hagan Valley.

Afterwards there's tea and prizegiving, with Central Saanich Mayor Jean Butler handing out trophies and masses of ribbons, including special awards for the veterans (over age 40 for men, and 35 for women) who complete the rugged course more or less intact.

Any rash soul beset by spring madness who feels like having a go should bear in mind that entries — 75 cents per individual, $3 per team of six runners — have to be in by 12:45 p.m. Saturday.

May the course be with you.

13% Hike In Saanich Police Bill

Saanich police board approved a record $3,575,000 budget Wednesday, an increase of more than 13 per cent over last year.

The hefty increase is a matter of concern for board chairman Mayor Mel Couvelier but he said today he doubts the budget can be pared any further.

Only $65,000 was cut during Wednesday's seven-hour session, which the mayor described as the most exhaustive budget screening the board has ever conducted.

"But I am confident we have trimmed every piece of fat that can be trimmed unless we are actually going to make cutbacks in the strength of the police department, and I don't think anyone is advocating that," Couvelier added.

The 13-per-cent-plus increase upsets council's general 1978 budget strategy, which has instructed municipal staff to keep expenditures to the 1977 level plus a six-per-cent allowance for increased salaries.

Couvelier noted that $3.1 million or 87 per cent of the total police budget goes to salaries.

"As a consequence we are locked into these increases."

But he expressed confidence that other municipal departments will bring in their budgets at well under the police level, adding: "They'll just damn well have to."

The police board chopped a proposal by Chief Bob Peterson to hire four civilians this year so that officers now doing clerical chores could be switched to police duties.

Couvelier told members he would have difficulty persuading council that the hirings are justified at a time when other department heads have been told to hold the line.

Based on eight months' expenditure the salaries of the four would total $34,000, but Couvelier said the full-year costs in 1979 would be $54,000.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Today we are taxed for welfare and to support the unemployed. Can you tell me what country first decided that the poor and unemployable were a social responsibility. What is the historical background. J.B.R.

A. England was the first to recognize the unemployed and unemployable were a social responsibility. During the reign of Henry VIII (1509-47) large cities raised money to look after the poor. During the Stuart dynasty (1603-1701) legislation was passed making it a duty. The Privy Council of the time saw to it that magistrates raised taxes to assist the poor.

Second Look At Parade Ban On Youngsters

Angry members of the Victorian Celebrations Society Wednesday night directed the executive to take a second look at its ban on children in the Victoria Day parade.

President Ozzie Osborne said the ban would be reviewed because of the strong objections of some members and the many letters and phone calls of protest.

But he told a stormy meeting of the society at Victoria city hall he favored the ban.

Osborne was heckled throughout his speech as he said he had promised the downtown merchants there would be a separate children's parade on Saturday, May 20, before the Victoria Day parade two days later.

Osborne said the merchants wanted to get involved in the festival, offering prizes to the youngsters after the Saturday parade, which would be four blocks long.

He said the Victoria Day parade on Monday, May 22, was something for adults — children should have a parade of their own.

But several VCS members shouted: "They want to be in the adult parade. They look forward to it all year."

Other members said that if anyone has to be removed from the parade it should be some of the American bands which come to Victoria to earn points to qualify them for the Rose Bowl parade.

"Remove the American bands, not the Victoria youngsters," one member shouted.

Osborne several times had to say: "Shut up, let me finish. You've had your say."

Osborne said the executive had tried to compromise by lowering the age to 12 for the Victoria Day parade from the original announcement of 15.

However, if the age was reduced any further the children's parade would not attract many people, Osborne said.

He said the executive will review the decision but he will continue to argue in favor of separate parades.

At the start of the meeting letters from baton-twirling groups and other citizens were read out, all protesting the ban on youngsters.

Each letter was greeted by loud applause from the members.

However, when the debate began, Osborne said the question should go back to the executive because a full debate by the members would take several hours.

The meeting voted 24-11 to refer the question back to the executive provided it would review the decision.

"Yes, there will be a review. This is a positive motion," Osborne said.

Oil Spilled In Harbor

An estimated maximum of 500 gallons of bunker oil was spilled on the Inner Harbor upland area and shoreline early this morning during tank filling operations at the Gulf Oil bulk storage plant on Songhees Road.

The company's Victoria manager, Bob Porter, said only about 20 to 30 gallons entered the water and the area was immediately boomed to prevent the spill from spreading.

Clean-up work was expected to be completed today, he said, but because this involves digging it will take somewhat longer to re-fill and restore the site.

He said the spill was caused by "operating failure" at about 8 a.m. today, as one tank was being filled from another.

BREAD RISING

Bread prices are going up in Victoria.

The wholesale price has risen 1.75 cents a loaf but at the retail level the price will be about 4 cents higher.

McDonald's will bring in higher prices on Tuesday and McGavins has already increased prices.

1,700 Coming To Decry Job Lack

The B.C. Federation of Labor expects to bring about 1,700 people in about 40 buses to Victoria from the Lower Mainland for an unemployment demonstration on March 30, Victoria Labor Council was told Wednesday night.

David Rice, chairman of the council's unemployment committee, said the federation has been told by ferry authorities that total is the maximum the ferries can accommodate.

He said the federation is negotiating with B.C. Ferries to see if arrangements can be made to bring more people across for the demonstration, slated to coincide with the opening of the legislative session.

Rice said the plan is for the trade unionists and the unemployed, including those from Vancouver Island, to gather at Memorial Arena and then parade through downtown streets to the front of the Legislative Buildings prior to the opening of the session at 3 p.m.

The demonstration is part of the federation's publicity campaign to make jobs the top political issue in the country.

200 Fight To Save School

Parents of children attending Tolmie elementary school said Wednesday night they like their neighborhood school and asked trustees not to kill a good thing.

The request came during a quiet public hearing to discuss possible closure of the school.

About 200 people attended the meeting, organized by the Greater Victoria school board to gather facts and get input from parent and teachers who will be affected by the board's decision to reduce space next year due to declining enrolment.

Tolmie was first on the list of six elementary schools singled out for possible closure next year.

School superintendent Allan Stables chaired the meeting, which was attended by six of the nine Victoria school trustees.

After a factual presentation of the school facilities by Evan Oakley, administrative assistant to Stables, the trustees collected several briefs from staff and parents for examination.

'Tough Marbles'

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce created a monster when it helped found the Victorian Celebrations Society, former chamber president Helen Beirnes said today.

She said the society was created to unite groups interested in Victoria celebrations but instead it is carrying on feuds with all other tourist groups in the city.

Beirnes was replying to VCS president Ozzie Osborne who earlier this week criticized the chamber and the Visitors Information Centre for using Victorian Days costumes during a tourist blitz of Alberta and not inviting him along.

"All I can say to Mr. Osborne is: tough marbles," Miss Beirnes said.

"We didn't have room for figureheads on the blitz, we were all too busy. The only people we invited were workers. We invited Fred Usher, who is a director of the society."

She said the society does not have any exclusive right to the Victorian Days costumes because they were created to be worn by everyone.

"I thought the society was complaining because not enough people were wearing the costumes. Now they are complaining because we wore them on the tourist blitz," she said.

"I think the society should get on with the job of promoting Victoria and they should forget their own little power trips."

Miss Beirnes said the Victorian Days celebration was created by the chamber, which established the Victorian Days Association. There was also a Victoria Celebrations Committee operating separately in the city.

The two organizations merged to form the society and to bring unity to the May festival.

"The organization was founded to end quarrels like this but instead we seem to have created a monster. I hope the society will end this petty bickering and start working for the good of the city."

The VCS came under fire a week ago when information centre president Ted Balderson said quarrels among local tourist groups seemed to have ended, with the exception of the VCS. He said he hoped the society would begin working in harmony with other Victoria groups.

Osborne was replying to this charge when he complained about not being invited on the tourist blitiz of Alberta.

FLOODWATER CLEAN-UP will cost about $5 million and take four to six months at the Safe Harbor Dam on the Susquehanna River. Recent flooding caused water to pour into the main generator room, saturating the electric circuits in the generators. the copper windings in each generator has to be removed, dried, and checked for damage.

8,000 Seats for Charter

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Air has allocated 8,000 airline seats to a charter program that will begin in the summer, the company said Wednesday.

Prices for the program will be $199 for a return ticket from Vancouver to Toronto and $215 for a return ticket from Vancouver to Montreal.

The airline said that the program will offer 20 departures from Vancouver to Toronto and Montreal destinations and 10 Vancouver-bound departures from Montreal and Toronto.

A CP Air spokesman said most of the charter seats would be on B-747 aircraft with the remainder of seats on DC-8 aircraft.

Boeing Seeks New Buyers

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — In the same way that auto manufacturers lure buyers with a variety of models and options, the world's largest commercial airplane builder is campaigning for its share of a $75 billion 10-year market.

The Boeing Co. sales and engineering executives are presenting three new designs to foreign and domestic airline companies. They include:

—The 757, a twin-engine transport with the body of a 727 trijet, new high-technology wings and advanced power plants. The plane would carry about 160 passengers.

—The 767, also a twin-engine aircraft, with about 200 seats, although different body lengths might provide seating for 180 to 210 or so passengers.

—The 777, a trijet designed for longer ranges than the 757 or 767, with a capacity of 200 to 210 passengers.

Whether the company will move ahead with one or all of the programs is unknown. Boeing has not had a new transport project since the start of the 747 superjet of 1966.

Airlines would not only have the option of one of the three designs but also of engine selection. Four prospective engine builders are General Electric, Pratt Whitney, SNECMA of France and Rolls-Royce of Britain.

There appears to be sizeable markets in the next 20 years for all three design categories. Some experts have suggested world airlines will need to commit about $75 billion for new technology equipment during the next decade.

Prices probably are not firm yet, but using the 767 as an example, it can be assumed that the twin-engine airplane would cost about $21 million to $23 million in 1977 dollars.

By the time deliveries might begin in about 1982, the price probably would climb to the $25-million-plus range, reflecting inflation.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to all our relatives and friends for their kindness, sympathy and help during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father. Special thanks to Dr. Gloster, nurses of C.D.H., emergency room nurses who made Ralph's fridays bearable. Ambulance drivers for their kindness, Rev. J. Ware for his comforting services, pallbearers, Sea Cadets and those who sent cards, flowers and donations to the Cancer Fund. And to all who took time to visit and chat with Ralph during his long illness. God Bless You All! — Carol, Murray and Ken MacKenzie.

MRS. FIELDER WOULD LIKE to thank friends and neighbours for their kind expressions of sympathy in the passing of Mr. J. H. Fielder. Thanks to Dr. Mateko, nurses and staff of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

309 IN MEMORIAM

FANSTONE, Lawrence — In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Lawrence Fanstone, who passed away, March 2, 1966.
—Remembered always by his wife, Lillian Emily and daughter Rose.

FEST—Herbert William (Frenchy), died March 2, 1976.
Always thoughts of you.
—Your loving wife, Kathleen.

HOLLAND—In loving memory of my loving father, Charles E. Holland, who passed away March 2, 1977 at Victoria, B.C.
If I had one lifetime wish,
One dream that could come true,
I would pray to God with all my heart,
For yesterday and you.
If teardrops were a stairway
And memories a lane,
I would walk all the way to heaven
And bring you back again.
A thousand times I needed you,
A thousand times I've cried
If all my love could have saved you dad
You never would have died.
—Always remembered and sadly missed, by his loving daughter, V. Stanley and six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

HOLLAND—Charles Edward — In loving memory of father and grandfather who passed away on March 2, 1977.
March comes with sad regret,
It brings back memories we'll never forget,
A wonderful father laid to rest,
For each of us he did his best,
His place on Earth no one can fill
We miss you Dad and always will.
"See you in the morning."
—Harold, Marry, Deborah, Susan and Richard.

HOLLAND—In remembrance of C. E. Holland, who passed away March 2, 1977.
A year has come and gone, but the loneliness lingers on.
It seems so long ago that he was taken and we were left alone.
But we know he is near, looking over us with loving care.
We shall meet again, when the time is right and we are called home to start our other life.
—Remembered and missed by son Tom and daughter-in-law Arlene.

HOLLAND—In loving memories of my dear husband Charles Edward Holland, passed away March 2, 1977, Victoria, B.C.
One year has passed since that sad day,
When the one I loved was called away.
God took him home, it was His will
Within my heart he liveth still.
—Ever remembered by his loving wife Helen Holland, Victoria, B.C.
Praise the Lord.
Gone but not forgotten.
We will meet again.

LOWE — In memory of our dearest husband, father and grandpa, Don, who died March 2, 1977.
"The good a man does lives after him."
—Always missed and fondly remembered. Bea, Dale, Cliff, Debbie, John, Tami and Pamela.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember. Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

YOU CAN TELL MORE PEOPLE ABOUT THE ITEMS YOU WANT TO SELL WITH A CLASSIFIED AD!

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were slightly higher in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EST was 294,200 shares, compared with 268,600 shares traded up to the same time Wednesday.

Power Corp. A climbed ¼ to $10¼, Toronto Dominion Bank ⅛ to $17¼, Alberta Gas Trunk Line A ¼ to $15, Alcan ⅛ to $25⅜ and Moore Corp. ⅝ tnorcen Energy Resources dipped ⅜ to $15⅛, Domtar Inc. ¼ to $14¼, Bank Canadian National ⅛ to $14¾ and Inco A ¼ to $15⅜.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today, failing to generate much enthusiasm over a steadier showing by the dollar in foreign exchange.

Trading was fairly quiet. NYSE volume came to 13.24 million shares at mid-afternoon.

The dollar began a modest rally late Wednesday after hitting new lows against several leading foreign currencies. But traders seemed skeptical that it was ready to launch any significant rebound.

Analysts also said the market was restrained by uncertainty over whether striking members of the United Mine Workers will approve a proposed contract settlement when they vote on it this weekend.

Ambac Industries led the active list, climbing three to 44⅛ on word of a merger agreement between the company and United Technologies.

United Technologies rose ¾ to 34⅝.

London

LONDON (CP) — Reduced reserve figures sent the London stock market sharply lower near the close of light trading. The Financial Times index was down 8.2 to 435.6 an hour before the close. Leading industrials sagged, while gold issues firmed with higher international bullion prices. Canadian stocks gained.

Because we care...

And because we are still in the cough and cold season—there are a few timely facts you should be aware about in treating yourself for a cold.

In the first place a cold is a virus and contrary to most people's thinking Antibiotics do not affect the cold virus, but are useful in treating those conditions arising from the Cold Virus.

A Virus or Viruses which usually break down or weaken the body's natural defense mechanisms, and allow various bacteria to attack the mucous membranes of the mouth, throat, nose and chest, etc. results in the feeling of symptoms such as aches, fever, sore throat, running nose or plugged nose or cough. Sometimes only one or two of these are experienced or maybe all.

When the throat, nose or chest are affected there is also, usually a cough and it is with this particular ailment people start getting into trouble. First, because in the initial stage they don't do anything about it and secondly after a few days, they will either go into a drug store or grocery store—pick off the shelf or ask for one of those popular cold remedies they have heard advertised that will definitely stop the cough.

This is wrong and can prove dangerous because there are different types of coughs and depending on which type and how long you have had it—to stop the coughing completely can be harmful.

Some types of cough may be completely suppressed and others should not, at least not continuously.

So the next time you are afflicted with a cold and a cough, remember two things: start treating it right away and go to your United Pharmacist, he will have the right preparation and can and will explain the proper use of it to you.

Also BECAUSE WE CARE — HERE IS A SPECIAL NOTE OF CAUTION TO THOSE PEOPLE WHO ARE BEING TREATED FOR HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE:

If you get a cough or cold, don't take just any cold preparation, no matter how effective and persuasive it may be advertised. Go to your United Pharmacist and seek his advice because there are many preparations for coughs and colds which contain ingredients which can affect the treatment your Doctor is giving you and could antagonize its effectiveness.

So play safe and don't believe everything you hear or see advertised—ask your United Pharmacist. He will take the time—has the knowledge and desire to help you—BECAUSE HE CARES.
